Ocular Proof and the Spectacled Detective in British Crime Fiction Lisa Hopkins,2023-05-31 From Sherlock Holmes onwards fictional detectives use lenses Ocular Proof and the Spectacled Detective in British Crime Fiction argues that these visual aids are metaphors for ways of seeing and that they help us to understand not only individual detectives methods but also the kinds of cultural work detective fiction may do It is sometimes regarded as a socially conservative form and certainly the enduring popularity of Golden Age writers such as Christie Sayers Allingham and Marsh implies a strong element of nostalgia in the appeal of the genre The emphasis on visual aids however suggests that solving crime is not a simple matter of uncovering truth but a complex sophisticated and inherently subjective process and thus challenges any sense of comforting certainties Moreover the value of eye witness testimony is often troubled in detective fiction by use of the phrase the ocular proof whose origin in Shakespeare s Othello reminds us that Othello is manipulated by Iago into misinterpreting what he sees The act of seeing thus comes to seem ideological and provisional and Lisa Hopkins argues that the kind of visual aid selected by each detective is an index of his particular propensities and biases At Home and Abroad in the Empire Robin Hackett,Freda Hauser,Gay Wachman,2009 This book builds upon critical reevaluations of modernism and British literature of the 1930s with a simultaneous focus on discourses of race gender and empire The essays direct attention to the complications and ambivalence accumulating around the meanings of Englishness They reject analyses of texts as chronicles of personal psychological development in favor of analyses that assume texts are shaped by their authors public intellectual involvement In addition they offer detailed specific explorations of ways in which British women in the 1930s narrativize empire and war Thus they will resonate with significance for readers in the early twenty first century for whom empire and war as well as terror and security are part of the discourse of everyday life Robin Hackett is an Associate Professor of English at the University of New Hampshire Freda S Hauser is an independent scholar Gay Wachman is retired from the State University of New York Old Westbury
