Reality By Design The Rhetoric And Technology Of Authenticity In Education:

Reality By Design Joseph Petraglia, 1998-02 An essential resource for understanding cutting edge developments in contemporary education Using real life examples of educational technology it explains why rhetorical relations must replace cognitive process as the central focus of education

The Oxford Handbook of Rhetorical Studies Michael J. MacDonald, 2017-09-20 One of the most remarkable trends in the humanities and social sciences in recent decades has been the resurgence of interest in the history theory and practice of rhetoric in an age of global media networks and viral communication rhetoric is once again contagious and communicable Friedrich Nietzsche Featuring sixty commissioned chapters by eminent scholars of rhetoric from twelve countries The Oxford Handbook of Rhetorical Studies offers students and teachers an engaging and sophisticated introduction to the multidisciplinary field of rhetorical studies The Handbook traces the history of Western rhetoric from ancient Greece and Rome to the present and surveys the role of rhetoric in more than thirty academic disciplines and fields of social practice This combination of historical and topical approaches allows readers to chart the metamorphoses of rhetoric over the centuries while mapping the connections between rhetoric and law politics science education literature feminism poetry composition philosophy drama criticism digital media art semiotics architecture and other fields Chapters provide the information expected of a handbook discussion of key concepts texts authors problems and critical debates while also posing challenging questions and advancing new arguments In addition to offering an accessible and comprehensive introduction to rhetoric in the European and North American context the Handbook includes a timeline of major works of rhetorical theory translations of all Greek and Latin passages extensive cross referencing between chapters and a glossary of more than three hundred rhetorical terms These features will make this volume a valuable scholarly resource for students and teachers in rhetoric English classics comparative literature media studies communication and adjacent fields As a whole the Handbook demonstrates that rhetoric is not merely a form of stylish communication but a pragmatic inventive and critical art that operates in myriad social contexts and academic disciplines

Authentic Learning Environments in Higher Education Jan Herrington, 2005-01-01 This book is made up of a collection of peer reviewed chapters that reflect the construct of authentic learning learning that is centred on rich real world immersive and engaging tasks Provided by publisher

Worlds Apart Patrick Dias, Aviva Freedman, Peter Medway, Anthony Par, 2013-06-17 An examination of the relationship between written communication in academic and workplace contexts Written for writing researchers teachers program designers and others concerned with writing in academic and business arenas

Writing/Disciplinarity Paul Prior, 2013-11-05 Over the past century the explosive growth of scientific technical and cultural disciplines has profoundly affected our daily lives However processes of enculturation in sites such as graduate education that have helped to form these disciplines have received very limited research attention In those sites graduate students write diverse documents including course papers departmental examinations theses and dissertations grant and fellowship applications and disciplinary publications Thus writing is one of the central domains of enculturation an activity through which graduate students and professors display and negotiate disciplinary knowledge genres identities and institutional contexts This volume explores this intersection of writing and disciplinary enculturation through a series of ethnographic case studies These case studies provide the most thorough descriptions available today of the lived experience of graduate seminars combining analysis of classroom talk students texts and professor s written responses institutional contexts students representations of their writing and its contexts and professors representations of their tasks and their students Given the complexities that the ethnographic data displayed the author found that conventional notions of writing as a process of transcription and of disciplines as unified discourse communities were inadequate As such this book also offers an in depth exploration of sociohistoric theory in relation to writing and disciplinary enculturation Specific case studies introduce apply and further elaborate notions of writing as literate activity authorship as mediated by other people and artifacts classroom tasks as speech genres enculturation as the interplay of authoritative and internally persuasive discourses and disciplinarity as a deeply heterogeneous laminated and dialogic process This blend of research and theory should be of interest to scholars and students in such fields as writing studies rhetoric writing across the curriculum applied linguistics English for academic purposes science and technology studies higher education and the ethnography of communication

Interacting With Audiences Ann M. Blakeslee, 2000-10 This volume examines how scientists learn about and then address their audiences studying scientific rhetoric in actual practice For scholars and students in scientific and technical writing rhetoric studies of science and related areas

Learning to Rival Linda Flower, Elenore Long, Lorraine Higgins, 2000-04-01 Learning to Rival tells the inside story of college and high school writers learning to rival to actively seek rival hypotheses and negotiate alternative perspectives on charged questions It shows how this interdisciplinary literate practice alters with the context of use and how in learning to rival in school and out students must often negotiate conflicts not apparent to instructors This study of the rival hypothesis stance a powerful literate practice claimed by both humanities and science initially posed two questions how does the rival hypothesis stance define itself as a literate practice as we move across the boundaries of disciplines and genres of school and community how do learners crossing these boundaries interpret and use the family of literate practices especially in situations that pose problems of intercultural understanding Over the course of this project with urban teenagers and minority college students the rival hypothesis stance emerged as a generative and powerful tool for intercultural inquiry posing in turn a new question how can the practice of rivaling support the difficult and essential art of intercultural interpretation in education The authors present the story of a literate practice that moves across communities as well as the stories of students who are learning to rival across the curriculum Learning to Rival offers an active strategic approach to multiculturalism addressing how people negotiate and use difference to solve problems In the spirit of John Dewey s experimental way of knowing it presents a multifaceted approach to literacy research combining contemporary research methods to show the complexity of rivaling as a literate practice and the way it is understood and used by a variety of writers As a resource for scholars teachers and administrators in writing across the curriculum studies writing program administration service learning and community based projects as well as literacy rhetoric and composition this volume reveals how learning a new literate practice can force students to encounter and negotiate conflicts It also provides a model of an intercultural inquiry that uses difference to understand a shared problem Other Floors, Other Voices John M. Swales, 2013-11-05 The author describes this volume as a textography because it combines certain elements of both text analysis and ethnography Through analysis of texts textual forms and systems of texts it shows the lives life commitments and life projects of people deeply embedded in the literate culture of the university The people examined work in a single building but their textual lives are maintained in different times and spaces measured by the dimensions of text production and text circulation in their fields of work These domains of text time and space are to some degree differentiated by the three specialties that mark the three floors of a small building at a major research university the ethnographic site of this journey into textual lives computing taxonomic botany and English as a second language This research site provides the opportunity to re examine the concept of discourse community and to investigate the nature and origination of academic discourse from a new perspective The author is a distinctive member of the applied linguistics and composition communities an original stamped by the global village of language education in which he has lived his life and revealed in his own autobiographical account embedded within this book This book now reveals him as a person making text about how people are embedded in making their textual lives within the discursive landscapes their communities afford In doing so he shows not only his own love of language as a way of life but also his appreciation of how all his subjects find their labors of love in the language they create This book has been written to appeal to a general academic audience as well as to specialists in rhetoric discourse analysis and composition Critical Theory and Science Fiction Vivian E. Jackson, 2010-07 Critical Theory and Science Fiction A Lens Into Technology in Education looks to show that reflection is our quantum leap into a past that provides the reasons for our challenges in education Through reflection we gain perspectives on how to best change a future that will ultimately become our history This text is an important and much needed contribution to the study and analysis of the issues of technology and science fiction and their relationship to curriculum as well as the broader field of education Jackson develops a critical theory of technology Rather than simply accepting technological advancements the work demystifies and questions the impacts of technology in new critical insightful and exciting ways A must read William M Reynolds Georgia Southern University Curriculum A River Runs Through It Using science fiction as a way to look at contemporary education philosophy and practice would seem an unlikely technique and so it is likely to succeed Science fiction remains remarkably advanced over the education establishment which like the military is always getting ready to deal with the previous situation Utopia Gr u topos means nowhere or moving the space now here Only the arts anticipate the future because only the artist lives in the present Eric McLuhan The Role of Thunder in Finnegans Wake and Laws of Media The New Science Marshall McLuhan co author

Designing Interactive Worlds With Words David S. Kaufer, Brian S. Butler, 2000-04-01 No two writing situations are exactly the same and skilled writers like skilled painters must develop the know how to represent the objects of their writing as part of a flexible art This special art of writing lies hidden between grammar the well formedness of sentences and genre the capacity of texts to perform culturally holistic communicative functions e g the memo the strategic report the letter to the editor Concealed between grammar and genre this less visible art of writing is what Kaufer and Butler call representational composition Texts within this hidden art are best viewed not primarily as grammatical units or as genre functions but as bearers of design elements stimulating imagistic narrative and information rich worlds and as an invitation to readers to explore and interact with them This volume presents a systematic study of the principles that underlie writing as representational composition Drawing from student models derived from a studio method the authors use each chapter to present a different aspect of what unfolds across the course of the book into a cumulative interactive and unified body of representational principles underlying the design of texts They reveal what makes the textual representations achieved by expert writers worthwhile and at the same time difficult for novice writers to reproduce Extending the framework of their 1996 volume Rhetoric and the Arts of Design into a realm of textual design this volume will interest students and instructors of writing rhetoric and information design

Learning, Training, and Development in Organizations Steve W.J. Kozlowski, Eduardo Salas, 2009-08-06 This scholarly book in SIOP's Organizational Frontier series looks at research on enhancing knowledge acquisition and its application in organizations. It concentrates on training design and delivery given the changing nature of work and organizations. Now that work is increasingly complex, there is greater emphasis on expertise and cognitive skills. Advances in technology such as computer simulations and web-based training are necessitating a more active role for the learner in the training process. In the broad context of the organization systems, this book promotes learning and development as a continuous lifelong endeavor.

Behind the Curtain of Scholarly Publishing Greg Giberson, Megan Schoen, Christian Weisser, 2022-06-15. Until now, there has been little consideration of the intellectual and historical impact editors have had on the young and ever-evolving field of writing studies. Behind the Curtain of Scholarly Publishing provides new and seasoned scholars with behind-the-scenes explorations and expositions of the history of scholarly editing and the role of the scholarly editor from the perspectives of current and former editors from important publications within the field. Each chapter in the collection examines the unique experiences and individual contributions of its authors during their time as editors, offering advice to scholars and potential editors on how to navigate the publication process and understand editorial roles. The contributors provide multiple perspectives on the growth, transformation, and in some cases, founding of some of the most influential publishing venues in writing studies. The personal and historical narratives, along with the unique perspectives and insightful analyses of the individual authors in Behind the Curtain of Scholarly Publishing, offer needed transparency and context to what has historically been an opaque yet inevitable and consequential part of academic life. This volume will help researchers in the field understand the publishing process.

Instruction and Technology Brad Mehlenbacher, 2010. Mehlenbacher unpacks the complex relationships between instruction and technology while emerging as a sensitive guide to the frequently confusing and disparate landscapes of learning with technology. Karen Schriver, President KSA Communication Design Research.

Collaborative Learning, Reasoning, and Technology Angela M. O'Donnell, Cindy E. Hmelo-Silver, Gijsbert Erkens, 2005-09-07. This volume presents research findings on the use of technology to support learning and reasoning in collaborative contexts. Featuring a variety of theoretical perspectives ranging from sociocultural to social psychological to information processing views, Collaborative Learning, Reasoning, and Technology includes an international group of authors.

Reconceiving Writing, Rethinking Writing Instruction Joseph Petraglia, 2013-11-05. To a degree unknown in practically any other discipline, the pedagogical space afforded composition is the institutional engine that makes possible all other theoretical and research efforts in the field of rhetoric and writing. But composition has recently come under attack from many within the field as fundamentally misguided. Some of these critics have been labelled New Abolitionists for their insistence that compulsory first-year writing should be abandoned. Not limiting itself to first-year writing courses, this book extends and modifies calls for abolition by taking a closer look at current theoretical and empirical understandings of what contributors call general writing skills instruction GWSI the curriculum which an overwhelming majority of writing instructors is paid to teach that practically every composition textbook is written to support and the instruction for which English departments are given resources to deliver The vulnerability of GWSI is hardly a secret among writing professionals and its intellectual fragility has been felt for years and manifested in several ways in persistently low status of composition as a study both within and outside of English departments in professional journal articles and conference presentations that are growing both in theoretical sophistication and irrelevance to the composition classroom and in the rhetoric and writing field s ever increasing attention to nontraditional sites of writing behavior But to date there has been relatively little concerted discussion within the writing field that focuses specifically on the fundamentally awkward relationship of writing theory and writing instruction This volume is the first to explicitly focus on the gap in the theory and practice that has emerged as a result of the field s growing professionalization The essays anthologized offer critiques of GWSI in light of the discipline s growing understanding of the contexts for writing and their rhetorical nature Writing from a wide range of cognitivist critical theoretical historical linguistic and philosophical perspectives contributors call into serious question basic tenets of contemporary writing instruction and provide a forum for articulating a sort of zeitgeist that seems to permeate many writing conferences but which has until recently not found a voice or a name

Cscl 2 Timothy Koschmann, Rogers P. Hall, Naomi Miyake, 2013-05-13 CSCL 2 Carrying Forward the Conversation is a thorough and up to date survey of recent developments in Computer Supported Collaborative Learning one of the fastest growing areas of research in the learning sciences A follow up to CSCL Theory and Practice of an Emerging Paradigm 1996 this volume both documents how the field has grown and fosters a meaningful discussion of how the research program might be advanced in substantive ways Recognizing the long standing traditions of CSCL work in Europe and Japan the editors sought to broaden and expand the conversation both geographically and topically The 45 participating authors represent a range of disciplinary backgrounds including anthropology communication studies computer science education psychology and philosophy and offer international perspectives on the field For each chapter the goal was not only to show how it connects to past and future work in CSCL but also how it contributes to the interests of other research communities Toward this end the volume features a conversational structure consisting of target chapters invited commentaries and author responses The commentaries on each chapter were solicited from a diverse collection of writers including prominent scholars in anthropology of education social studies of science CSCW argumentation activity theory language and social interaction ecological psychology and other areas The volume is divided into three sections Part I explores four case studies of technology transfer involving CSILE one of the most prominent CSCL projects Part II focuses on empirical studies of learning in collaborative settings Part III describes novel CSCL technologies and the theories underlying their design Historically there has been a certain amount of controversy as to what the second C in CSCL should represent The conventional meaning is collaborative but there are many C words that can be seen as relevant With the publication of this volume conversational might be added to the list and in this spirit the book might be viewed as an invitation to join a conversation in progress and to carry it forward
