Thrillers and the 1930s Brian Diemert,1996 In Graham Greene's Thrillers and the 1930s Brian Diemert examines the first and most prolific phase of Graham Greene's career demonstrating the close relationship between Greene's fiction and the political economic social and literary contexts of the period Situating Greene alongside other young writers who responded to the worsening political climate of the 1930s by promoting social and political reform Diemert argues that Greene believed literature could not be divorced from its social and political milieu and saw popular forms of writing as the best way to inform a wide audience Diemert traces Greene's adaptation of nineteenth century romance thrillers and classical detective stories into modern political thrillers as a means of presenting serious concerns in an engaging fashion He argues that Greene's popular thrillers were in part a reaction to the high modernism of writers such as James Joyce Gertrude Stein and Virginia Woolf whose esoteric experiments with language were disengaged from immediate social concerns and inaccessible to a large segment of the reading public Postmodern Fiction and the Break-Up of Britain Hywel Dix,2011-11-03 A monograph analysing the symbolic role played by contemporary fiction in the break up of political and cultural consensus in British public life The Third Spring Adam Schwartz,2005-02 This book is the first detailed examination of these four authors as part of a Roman Catholic counter modern community of discourse It is informed by extensive research in the writers works scholarship on them and their personal papers André Maurois (1885-1967) J. Gossman,2014-01-13 Respected by his peers and hugely successful internationally in his own time Andr Maurois is now hardly read Moderate and conciliatory in everything including his literary style he appealed to the educated reader of his time but did those very qualities prevent him from achieving lasting distinction and impact Keynes, Bloomsbury and The General Theory Piero V.
