Adolescent Drinking and Family Life Geoff Lowe, David R. Foxcroft, David Sibley, 2022-12-29 Originally published in 1993 Adolescent Drinking and Family Life portrays teenage drinking not as a symptom of pathology but as a perfectly normal developmental phase within the context of the home environment Drinking is predominantly social behaviour and the family is seen as a major agent of socialization The authors have therefore explored family dynamics and the influence which the home environment has upon adolescent drinking to come up with a new theoretical model A major feature of this approach is the interaction of ideas from family life psychology and human geography The authors present a typology of domestic regimes illustrated by case studies of boundary enforcement and transgression The general theme of boundary transgression applied here to both the psychosocial environment and built form represents an interesting new theoretical perspective The integration of these two fields is an innovation which should stimulate further interdisciplinary work in adolescence and addiction research Adolescent Drinking and Family Life will be interesting to researchers and practitioners in adolescence family dynamics and alcohol as well as any social scientist with an interest in the link between behaviour and the home environment This new approach had important implications for health education and for interventions concerned with adolescent alcohol use at the time Today it can be read in its historical context

Eighth Special Report to the U.S. Congress on Alcohol and Health from the Secretary of Health and Human Services, 1993 The Oxford Handbook of Adolescent Substance Abuse Robert A. Zucker, Sandra A. Brown, 2019 This Handbook's content provides a definitive overview of the research knowledge base for adolescent substance abuse the most significant social problem of adolescence Its contributors are leading researchers in their fields making the volume unique in the breadth as well as depth of its coverage Topics covered range from basic neuroscience to genetics to behavioral precursors and correlates to social relationships to cultural variation to clinical correlates to social policy The Handbook's comprehensive scope and the depth of its analysis make it suitable both as a text for graduate level courses as well as a core reference for professionals in the field

Changing Addictive Behavior Jalie A. Tucker, Dennis M. Donovan, G. Alan Marlatt, 2001-02-15 This volume proposes that prevailing clinical approaches to treating addictive behaviors are actually best suited to a minority of the population with problems in the case of substance abusers those with substantial functional impairment and physical dependence But what about persons with mild to moderate addictive behavior problems for whom intensive treatment may prove unnecessarily costly disruptive and stigmatizing Or those substance abusers who are unable or unmotivated to abstain but want to reduce the harm associated with drug use Contributors draw upon cutting edge theory and research to examine ways that traditional therapeutic treatments can be supplemented by public health interventions that extend the reach and effectiveness of care Timely and pragmatic the book points the way toward necessary evolutions in the roles of behavior change specialists in today s challenging health care environment Alcohol and Tobacco Joanne B. Fertig, John P. Allen, 2000-06 Despite the frequent co occurrence of alcohol tobacco addiction until recently little was known about the relationship between ethanol nicotine This compendium is based on presentations at a symposium held in 1994 Scientists at the conference were senior researchers concerned with co occurrence of alcohol tobacco dependence They summarized the state of knowledge on a specific topic in their assigned domains identify issues most in need of further investigation The papers are in 2 sections psychosocial biological mechanisms of alcohol tobacco use alcohol tobacco use dependence treatment early intervention policy Illustrations
