Religious Fundamentalisms And The Human Rights Of Women:

Religious Fundamentalisms and the Human Rights of Women C. Howland, 1999-09-03 Dialogue on the conflict between religious fundamentalism and women's rights is often stymied by an all or nothing approach fundamentalists claim of absolute religious freedom while some feminists dismiss religion entirely as being so imbued with patriarchy as to be eternally opposed to women's rights This ignores though the experiences of religious women who suffer under fundamentalism and fight to resist it perceiving themselves to be at once religious and feminist In Religious Fundamentalisms and the Human Rights of Women Howland provides a forum for these different scholars both religious and nonreligious to meet and seek common ground in their fight against fundamentalism Through an examination of international human rights national law grass roots activism and theology this volume explores the acute problems that contemporary fundamentalist movements pose for women's equality and liberty rights

Women, Islam and International Law

Ekaterina Yahyaoui Krivenko, 2009 Islam and women's human rights entertain an uneasy relationship Much has been written on the subject This volume addresses it from a new perspective It attempts to define some basis for constructive dialogue and interaction in the context of international law and more precisely in the context of participation of many Muslim States in the United Nations Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women Having discovered a constructive potential in both Islam and women's human rights the author concentrates on the role which international law should play in promoting dialogue and constructive interaction This is done mainly through analysis of the regime of reservations and of the practice of reservations developed in the context of Muslim States' participation in the CEDAW The basic thesis defended is the following Islam as articulated in the practice of States and women's human rights as reflected in international instruments are both results of human activity Their analysis in this study reveals more commonalities than one might expect International law should be more attentive to their voices and more innovative in using these commonalities in order to promote constructive dialogue between them and thus help to improve the situation of women suffering from discrimination and inequalities

Competing Fundamentalisms and Egyptian Women's Family Rights Jasmine Moussa, 2011-06-22 The debate surrounding women's family rights under Shar'a derived law has long been held captive to the competing fundamentalisms of universalism and cultural relativism These two conflicting perspectives fail to promote practical tools through which such laws can be reformed without prejudice to their religious nature This book examines the development of Egypt's Shar'a derived family law and its compatibility with international obligations to eliminate discrimination against women It highlights the interplay between domestic reform processes grounded in the tools of tahayyur talfiq and ijtihad and international institutions and mechanisms In attempting to reconcile these two seemingly dissonant value systems this book underscores the shortcomings of Egypt's legislation proposes particular reforms while simultaneously presenting alternatives to insular interpretations of international women's rights law

Global Health

Disputes and Disparities Dru Bhattacharya, 2013 Global Health Disputes and Disparities explores inequalities in health around the world looking particularly at the opportunity for and limitations of international law to promote population health by examining its intersection with human rights trade and epidemiology and the controversial issues of legal process religion access to care and the social context of illness Using a theoretical framework rooted in international law this volume draws on a wide range of rich empirical data to assess the challenges facing the field including international legal treaty interpretation and specific issues related to the application of law in resolving pressing issues in gender access to care and social determinants of health In doing so it illustrates the challenges for implementing rights based approaches to address health disparities with profound implications for future regulations and policymaking It includes both interviews with leading scholars as well as a variety of case studies from prominent international forums including formal claims brought before the Human Rights Council and the Committee on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women as well as regional and national experiences drawn from disputes in India Indonesia South Africa and the USA This volume is an innovative contribution to the burgeoning fields of global health and human rights and will be of interest to students and researchers in public health global health law and sociology interested in the social determinants of health and social justice from both theoretical and practical perspectives

Bantu, Kirsteen Kim, 2024-05-10 This volume fulfills the need for an accessible academic book that addresses the gender issues that women face as Christian disciples whether in formal leadership roles or engaging leadership in informal means and considers these issues in the context of world Christianity In an era in which mission is from everywhere to everywhere when local churches strive to be missional and when Christians are engaged in intercultural ministry this book invites a scholar practitioner conversation engaging multiple disciplines and perspectives to explore the role of women in the mission of God An interdisciplinary and intercultural conversation about women will enrich the church s ongoing effort to be faithful to God s call to women and men to participate in God s work in the world A Critical

Analysis of the Efficacy of Law as a Tool to Achieve Gender Equality Natalie Persadie, 2012-07-26 Law is often perceived as an instrument that can effect social change While this might be so it must be complemented by the necessary financial and human resources to make the law effective Natalie Persadie explains that among developing countries such as Trinidad and Tobago the achievement of legal advances for women at either the international or national levels is particularly difficult where practical measures are not subsequently implemented This is perhaps attributable to a lack of political will Important issues such as gender equality and domestic violence are not given priority and laws aimed at protecting women and promoting women s rights are ineffective scant or unenforced Gender justice can only be realized through a multilevel approach from above and more importantly from below as women have the potential to effect real national and international legal and institutional change to ensure gender equality at both levels Advancing the Legal Status of Women in

Islamic Law Mona Samadi, 2021-05-25 Mona Samadi examines the sources of gender differences within the Islamic legal tradition and describes how Islamic law entitles individuals to justice according to their status abilities and potential In the case of men and women s capabilities the underlying principle is that they are entitled to the same rights as long as their capabilities are the same In the legal construction of women s status women have been prescribed lacking the same abilities and capabilities as men As such their status and rights differ justifying men to be the maintainers of women By presenting the historical development of women s status and how women s legal status is debated in contemporary Muslim societies Mona Samadi convincingly provides various methods for facilitating change within the Islamic legal theory framework of Religion Mine Yıldırım, 2017-01-20 The right to freedom of religion or belief as enshrined in international human rights documents is unique in its formulation in that it provides protection for the enjoyment of the rights in community with others This book explores the notion of the collective dimension of freedom of religion or belief with a view to advance the protection of this right The book considers Turkey which provides a useful test case where both the domestic legislation can be assessed against international standards while at the same time lessons can be drawn for the improvement of the standard of international review of the protection of the collective dimension of freedom of religion or belief The book asks two main questions what is the scope and nature of protection afforded to the collective dimension of freedom of religion or belief in international law and secondly how does the protection of the collective dimension of freedom of religion or belief in Turkey compare and contrast to international standards In doing so it seeks to identify how the standard of international review of the collective dimension of freedom of religion can be improved Genre et fondamentalismes/Gender and Fundamentalisms

Fatou Sow, 2018-09-26 When why and how can religion and culture be both sources and places of expression for fundamentalisms particularly in relation to politics Those are the central questions asked throughout this book alongside a discussion on the result when religion strengthened by culture is used as a political tool to access moral and social power Cultural and religious messages often form the basis of decisions laws and programs made in politics and have a direct effect on society in general and on women and gender relations in particular The various forms taken by fundamentalisms in some African countries and the contexts under which they have emerged the ways in which they re shape identities and relationships between men and women are also analysed in this book These fundamentalisms are frequently sources of concern in social debates in feminist and feminine organizations as well as in academia and politics The manipulation of cultures and religions are becoming progressively political and consequently can cause social discrimination or even physical moral and symbolic violence

Handbook of Research on Development and Religion Matthew Clarke, 2013-01-01 With eighty percent of the world's population professing religious faith religious belief is a common human characteristic This fascinating and highly unique Handbook brings together state of the art research on incorporating religion into development studies literature and research The expert contributors illustrate that as religious identity is integral to a community's culture exclusion of religious consideration will limit successful development interventions it is therefore necessary to conflate religion and development to enhance efforts to improve the lives of the poor Issues addressed include key tenets beliefs and histories of religions religious response to development concerns gender environment education microfinance humanitarian assistance and the role of faith based organisations and missionaries in the wider development context Practical case studies of countries across Africa Eastern Europe and the Pacific including Australia underpin the research providing evidence that the intersection between religion and development is neither new nor static By way of conclusion suggestions are prescribed for extensive further research in order to advance understanding of this nascent field This path
