Li,2009-02-01 Lack of knowledge about immigrant and minority students learning outside school has contributed to the difficulties educators encounter when trying to embrace cultural diversity Many educators do not have the knowledge base about immigrant and minority children s culturally specific ways of learning in nonschool settings Given the changing cultural landscapes in today s schools we have an imperative to develop more situated understandings of immigrant and minority children s literacy learning experiences embedded in the social and cultural fabrics of their everyday lives outside school This volume of research meets this important need in the field It not only focuses on the complexity of literacy learning in diverse home contexts but also examines how literacy is practiced and lived in multiple ways within families of various backgrounds including those of Asian African and African American Hispanic White European and mixed heritages In addition it explores how these various culturally embedded home practices will inform school education and policy making in a larger socio political context The book makes an original and significant contribution to the fields of literacy education and school home and community partnerships Since immigrant and minority families literacy activities and the cultural contexts of their practices at home are not readily accessible to school personnel program developers policy makers or even researchers and educators this book will serve as an important resource for teachers practitioners undergraduate and graduate students teacher educators and university researchers who are in the fields of literacy education family literacy and new literacy studies minority and or immigrant education and second language education

Handbook of Early Literacy Research Susan B. Neuman,David K. Dickinson,2011-10-10 The field of early literacy has seen significant recent advances in theory research and practice These volumes bring together leading authorities to report on current findings integrate insights from different disciplinary perspectives and explore ways to provide children with the strongest possible literacy foundations in the first 6 years of life The Handbook first addresses broad questions about the nature of emergent literacy summarizing current knowledge on cognitive pathways biological underpinnings and the importance of cultural contexts Chapters in subsequent sections examine various strands of knowledge and skills that emerge as children become literate as well as the role played by experiences with peers and families Particular attention is devoted to the challenges involved in making schools work for all children including members of linguistic and ethnic minority groups and children living in poverty Finally approaches to instruction assessment and early intervention are described and up to date research on their effectiveness is presented

Handbook of Reading Disability Research Anne McGill-Franzen,Richard Allington,2010-09-17 Bringing together a wide range of research on reading disabilities this comprehensive Handbook extends current discussion and thinking beyond a narrowly defined psychometric perspective Emphasizing that learning to read proficiently is a long term developmental process involving many interventions of various kinds all keyed to individual developmental needs it addresses traditional questions What is the nature or causes of reading disabilities How are reading disabilities assessed How should reading disabilities be remediated To what extent is remediation possible but from multiple or alternative perspectives Taking incursions into the broader research literature represented by linguistic and anthropological paradigms as well as psychological and educational research the volume is on the front line in exploring the relation of reading disability to learning and language to poverty and prejudice and to instruction and schooling The editors and authors are distinguished scholars with extensive research experience and publication records and numerous honors and awards from professional organizations representing the range of disciplines in the field of reading disabilities Throughout their contributions are contextualized within the framework of educators struggling to develop concrete instructional practices that meet the learning needs of the lowest achieving readers

Eyegames—Easy and Fun Visual Exercises Lois Hickman,2010-09-01 Developing healthy visual motor abilities is more difficult in the complex stimulus of today s world than ever before Our visual experiences can be overwhelmed by the vast complexity of artificial colors and sounds which did not exist in our ancestors lives Much more time is spent indoors exposed to a myriad of unnatural colors movement and imagery We hibernate inside interacting with machines instead of being out in the sunlight looking at the far horizons exploring natural environments More and more time is spent sitting rather than moving watching rather than doing Here is a book that has An overview of the development of vision with a checklist of warning signs of vision problems based on the studies of behavioral optometry A discussion of the importance of integrating all the senses equally in the development of optimal visual skills rooted in the field of occupational therapy Practical playful activities designed to improve visual skills in both adults and children Excellent for use at home in the clinic at school or amid outdoor settings

Ethnocultural Diversity and the Home-to-School Link Christine M. McWayne,Fabienne Doucet,Susan M. Sheridan,2019-05-09 This book explores family school partnerships and how they can be most effectively leveraged to ensure academic success for students from socioculturally diverse backgrounds. It presents an innovative framework for building collaborative learning partnerships with culturally diverse families for improved student achievement and more meaningful ties between schools and their communities. It promotes understanding of familial and communal knowledge and recognizing families' resilience in addressing academic, social, and linguistic barriers. Chapters reimagine family-school partnerships within a context of shared power and authority, examine a spectrum of interventions that support culture-based modes of learning, and emphasize the potential for transformative learning to occur when students' out-of-school lives are understood and meaningfully leveraged in school. Chapters also discuss how to foster bridges between parents and teachers, provide teachers with access to the rich cognitive and cultural resources of families, and enable all parties to begin viewing families as truly equal partners in children's education. The book concludes with a commentary chapter that identifies necessary areas for further research. Topics featured in this volume include: The contribution of racial and ethnic socialization to family-school partnerships during early childhood; Fathers and their role in family-school partnerships; The importance of Indigenous family engagement in systems of education; Home-school partnerships and mixed-status immigrant families in the United States; Family-school partnership research with the migrant and seasonal farm-working community; The role of humility in working with families across international contexts; Interventions that promote home-to-school links; Ethnocultural Diversity; and the Home to School Link. This is a must-have resource for researchers, professionals, and graduate students in education, child and school psychology, educational policy and politics, family studies, developmental psychology, sociology of education, and anthropology.
