Spends, 1988-1989 Katherine A.H. On Location Serra Tinic, 2005-12-15 Film and television production are important components of the Canadian economy In Vancouver popular American television series like The X Files and Canadian series like Da Vinci s Inquest have boosted the city s profile as a centre for international and domestic productions Serra Tinic s On Location is the first empirical analysis of regional Canadian television producers in the context of developing global media markets Tinic observes that global television production in Vancouver has been a contradictory process that has on one level led to the homogenization of culturally specific storylines while simultaneously facilitating the development of new avenues for international ventures The author explains how federal and regional network considerations funding guidelines and partnerships with international co producers affect the capacity of Canadian television producers to negotiate culturally specific storylines in the development process She further interrogates the concepts of globalization culture and national identity and their relationship to broadcasting from the perspectives of members of the television industry themselves highlighting the extent to which industry practices in Vancouver epitomize current trends in global television production On Location fills a major gap in contemporary media and cultural studies debates that question the connections between the politics of place culture and commerce within the larger context of cultural globalization

Culture, Communication and National Identity Richard Collins, 1990-10-01 There can be no political sovereignty without culture sovereignty So argued the CBC in 1985 in its evidence to the Caplan Sauvageau Task Force on Broadcasting Policy Richard Collins challenges this assumption He argues in this study of nationalism and Canadian television policy that Canada s political sovereignty depends much less on Canadian content in television than has generally been accepted His analysis focuses on television drama at the centre of television policy in the 1980s Collins questions the conventional image of Canada as a weak national entity undermined by its population's predilection for foreign television Rather he argues Canada is held together not by a shared repertoire of symbols a national culture but by other social forces notably political institutions Collins maintains that important advantages actually and potentially flow from Canada's weak national symbolic culture Rethinking the relationships between television and society in Canada may yield a more successful broadcasting policy more popular television programming and a better understanding of the links between culture and the body politic As the European Community moves closer to political unity the Canadian case may become more relevant to Europe which Collins suggests already fears the Canadianization of its television He maintains that a European multilingual society without a shared culture or common European audio visual sphere and with viewers watching foreign television can survive successfully as a political entity just as Canada has

Communication Technology Darin Barney, 2011-11-01 When the Internet began to emerge as a popular new mode of communication many political scientists and social commentators believed that it would revolutionize our democratic institutions Today voter turnout is at an historic low and Internet usage is at an all time high Can we still make the claim that new information and communication technologies ICTs enhance democratic life in Canada What effect does the technological mediation of political communication have on the practice of Canadian politics How have such technologies affected the distribution of power in society Darin Barney investigates the links between ICTs and democratic processes arguing that the potential of digital technologies to contribute to a more democratic political system will remain largely untapped unless the more conventional dimensions of Canadian politics the economy and modes of governance are reoriented
