Reproductive Tract Infections:

Reproductive Tract Infections Adrienne Germain, King K. Holmes, Peter Piot, Judith Wasserheit, 2013-06-29 Reproductive tract infections RTIs have become a silent epidemic that is devastating women's lives. Each year thousands of women die needlessly from the consequences of these infections including cervical cancer, ectopic pregnancy, acute and chronic infections of the uterus and the fallopian tubes, and puerperal infections. For many women this happens because they receive medical attention too late, if at all. The terrible irony of this tragedy is that early diagnosis and treatment for many RTIs do not require high technology health care. For the hundreds of millions of women with chronic RTIs acquired from their sexual partners, life can become a living hell. Infection is a major cause of infertility and it leads to scorn and rejection in many countries. These women may experience constant pain, have festering lesions of the genital tract, be at enhanced risk of secondary diseases, and endure social ostracism. The problems associated with RTIs have grown even greater in the past decade with the emergence of human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) and AIDS. Preexisting sexually transmitted disease, particularly when associated with genital tract ulcers, raises women's vulnerability to the transmission of HIV 3-5 fold.

Wasserheit, 1991 Reproductive tract infections RTI are a problem for women in the 3rd World that is ignored by international policy makers program planners and international donor agencies The author claims that contrary to a growing body of evidence this can be attributed to many misconceptions about RTIs It is mistakenly believed that few women suffer from RTIs and those that do are prostitutes The facts indicate the contrary Gonorrhea alone has been found in 12% of Asian women 18% of Latin American women and 40% of African women Other forms of RTI that show a significant prevalence are syphilis genital herpes chancroid genital warts bacterial vaginosis candidiasis trichomoniasis chlamydia Cervical cancer while not an RTI is believed to be aggravated by RTIs and of the 1 2 million new cases reported annually 3 4 of them are in developing countries Pelvic inflammatory disease PID is another RTI that can lead to infertility Studies on the prevalence of PID are scarce but in the ones that have been done in Africa the rate is as high as 20% This article details women's biological and social risk of RTIs including behavioral factors associated with STDs The author's final conclusion is that the problem of RTIs has already proved to be significant even with the limited number of studies performed It is in the best interest of the women of the 3rd world to further study and begin treating this possibly life threatening problem Bailey & Scott's Diagnostic Microbiology - E-BOOK Patricia M.
