Research Transformed Into Practice:

Clinical Research Transformed Olli S. Miettinen, Johann Steurer, Albert Hofman, 2019-10-15 In this Information Age the practices of clinical medicine should no longer be based on what clinical doctors actively know Rather all of the importantly practice relevant knowledge should not only already exist but also be codified in cyberspace in directly practice guiding expert systems for the benefit of both doctors and patients everywhere Each of these systems discipline specific would prompted by a particular type of case presentation present the doctor a questionnaire specific to cases of the type at issue and document the doctor s answers to the questions If at issue would be a case of complaint about a particular type of sickness the system would translate the resulting diagnostic profile of the case into the corresponding probabilities of the illnesses to be considered Similarly if at issue would be an already diagnosed case of a particular illness the system would ask about and record the relevant elements in the prognostic profile of the case and then translate this profile into the probabilities of various outcomes to be considered probabilities specific to the choice of treatment and prospective time in addition to that profile And besides these systems would analogously address the causal origin etiogenesis of cases of particular types of illness While the requisite knowledge base for these systems notably for the probabilities in them has not been addressed by such patient oriented clinical research as has been conducted very extensively up to now this book delineates the nature of the suitably transformed research gnostic The critically transformative innovation in the research is the studies focus on Gnostic Probability Functions dia etio and prognostic in the framework of logistic regression models This book also presents a vision of how this critically transformative research would most expeditiously be provided for and also conducted among select sets of academic teaching hospitals

Lost in Practice: Transforming Nordic Educational Action Research Karin Rönnerman, Petri Salo, 2014-11-04 Lost in Practice offers a further development of the notion of Nordic educational action research as described in a earlier volume Nurturing praxis 2008 aiming to deepen and enrich understandings of the Nordic educational tradition and its various practices It explores Nordic traditions and theories such as bildung practical knowledge regime and translation theory with the aim of furthering a seminal conversation between practice theory and action research Furthermore it illuminates the use of these theories in the context of Nordic countries by presenting a number of case studies on professional development practices in which specific forms and arenas for enhancing dialogue and meaning making are in focus The practices of study and research circles peer group mentoring and dialogue conferences as developed in the Nordic countries throughout the 20th century are presented and discussed both in terms of established traditions and of practices of collaborative development The book also reflect on the regional traditions and educational practices in the Nordic countries are reflected on in the third part of the book The volume addresses teachers at all levels in the educational system particularly those who are interested in understanding educational action research and furthering collaborative forms of professional development based on insights from different traditions for understanding and Human Rights Transformation in Practice Tine Destrooper, Sally Engle Merry, 2018-11-09 Human rights are increasingly described as being in crisis But are human rights really on the verge of disappearing Human Rights Transformation in Practice argues that it is certainly the case that human rights organizations in many parts of the world are under threat but that the ideals of justice fairness and equality inherent in human rights remain appealing globally and that recognizing the continuing importance and strength of human rights requires looking for them in different places These places are not simply the Human Rights Council or regular meetings of monitoring committees but also the offices of small NGOs and the streets of poor cities In Human Rights Transformation in Practice editors Tine Destrooper and Sally Engle Merry collect various approaches to the questions of how human rights travel and how they are transformed offering a corrective to those perspectives locating human rights only in formal institutions and laws Contributors to the volume empirically examine several hypotheses about the factors that impact the vernacularization and localization of human rights how human rights ideals become formalized in local legal systems sometimes become customary norms and at other times fail to take hold Case studies explore the ways in which local struggles may inspire the further development of human rights norms at the transnational level Through these analyses the essays in Human Rights Transformation in Practice consider how the vernacularization and localization processes may be shaped by different causes of human rights violations the perceived nature of violations and the existence of networks and formal avenues for information sharing Contributors Sara L M Davis Ellen Desmet Tine Destrooper Mark Goodale Ken MacLean Samuel Martinez Sally Engle Merry Charmain Mohamed Vasuki Nesiah Arne Vandenberg Wouter Vandenhoele Johannes M Waldmiller

Transformative Practice and Research in Organizational Communication Salem, Philip J., Timmerman, Erik, 2017-07-12 Communication creates organizations and the ways individuals communicate determines the functions and processes of organizations Understanding communication challenges is necessary in order to understand organizational successes and organizational change Transformative Practice and Research in Organizational Communication is an essential reference publication featuring the latest scholarly research on the practice of organizational communication The chapters cover a range of topics such as business expertise social media and capitalism This book is ideally designed for academicians students professionals and managers seeking current research on organizational communication practices Organisational Transformation in the Russian Oil Industry Sarah Dixon, 2008-01-01 The author of this volume provides an insider view of the story due to her involvement with the Russian oil industry over a long period and her access to information from key players of the industry the book is a welcome addition especially for its sound story line Anyone interested in the transformation of the Russian oil industry will find it a valuable work. It will also inspire researchers to analyse organisational transformation of other types of industries especially electricity and gas in many countries around the world that have undergone radical changes in the past. Subhes C Bhattacharyya International Journal of Energy Sector Management Sarah Dixon has produced a fascinating look at the internal workings of four major Russian oil companies during the decade following their privatisation in the mid 1990s. Dixon has utilised her in depth knowledge of Russia and her business experience in its thriving oil industry to gain access to Russia's powerful business titans. Her insights and careful observations have resulted in a masterful analysis of organisational transformation during Russia's radical institutional upheaval. The book is a valuable contribution to resource based theory by explaining linkages between organisational learning, dynamic capabilities and implementation of organisational transformation. Practitioners will also benefit from the rich case studies offering insight into constraints and enablers of organisational transformation. Sheila M Puffer Northeastern University Boston US Here the example of the Russian oil industry in the context of transition from a planned to a market economy is used to develop a three stage framework for organisational transformation. Four longitudinal case studies of Russian oil companies are drawn upon to explain the process of organisational transformation. The book highlights how and why this process differs between companies within the same industry, explores the complexity of the change process and discusses the importance of the top management team. The links between organisational learning, dynamic capabilities and the implementation of change are analysed. An interesting insight into the constraints and enablers of organisational change is also provided. The framework developed from this study can be successfully applied to other organisations wishing to bring about organisational change. Integrating several perspectives including a resource based view, organisational learning, dynamic capabilities and top management team theory, this book will be of great interest to scholars and researchers of business and management, international business and organisational behaviour.

Higher Education Transformation in Africa Emnet Tadesse Woldegiorgis, Logan Govender, Dennis Zami Atibuni, 2024-11-05 This book critically interrogates the notion of transformation in higher education focusing on epistemological and structural issues in postcolonial and contemporary Africa. The book considers the multifaceted challenges facing higher education in the continent and uses the concept of transformation as a common thread weaving through a range of issues including epistemology, identity, relevance, research, collaboration and decoloniality. Arguing for a holistic approach towards progressive and innovative education systems, the book calls for a fundamental transformation that expands access, enhances quality and competitiveness, addresses past injustices and improves the capacity to act together for a more sustainable and just future. Overall, the book makes a powerful case for the power of transformation in higher education to shape the social, economic and cultural fabric of society. This book's critical evaluation of knowledge production in Africa will be an important read for researchers and policymakers involved in Africa's higher education sector.
