Highway Quality Compendium ,2007 Road Network Upgrading and Overland Trade Expansion in Sub-Saharan Africa Piet Buys,Uwe Deichmann,David Wheeler,2006 Recent research suggests that isolation from regional and international markets has contributed significantly to poverty in many Sub Saharan African countries Numerous empirical studies identify poor transport infrastructure and border restrictions as significant deterrents to trade expansion In response the African Development Bank has proposed an integrated network of functional roads for the subcontinent Drawing on new econometric results the authors quantify the trade expansion potential and costs of such a network They use spatial network analysis techniques to identify a network of primary roads connecting all Sub Saharan capitals and other cities with populations over 500 000 The authors estimate current overland trade flows in the network using econometrically estimated gravity model parameters road transport quality indicators actual road distances and estimates of economic scale for cities in the network Then they simulate the effect of feasible continental upgrading by setting network transport quality at a level that is functional but less highly developed than existing roads in countries like South Africa and Botswana The authors assess the costs of upgrading with econometric evidence from a large World Bank database of road project costs in Africa Using a standard approach to forecast error estimation they derive a range of potential benefits and costs Their baseline results indicate that continental network upgrading would expand overland trade by about 250 billion over 15 years with major direct and indirect benefits for the rural poor Financing the program would require about 20 billion for initial upgrading and 1 billion annually for maintenance The authors conclude with a discussion of supporting institutional arrangements and the potential cost of implementing them

Indonesia has urbanized rapidly since its independence in 1945 profoundly changing its economic geography and giving rise to a diverse array of urban places These places range from the bustling metropolis of Jakarta to rapidly emerging urban centers in hitherto largely rural parts of the country Although urbanization has produced considerable benefits for many Indonesians its potential has only been partially realized Time to ACT Realizing Indonesia's Urban Potential explores the extent to which urbanization in Indonesia has delivered in terms of prosperity inclusiveness and livability The report takes a broad view of urbanization's performance in these three key areas covering both the monetary and nonmonetary aspects of welfare It analyzes the fundamental reforms that can help the country to more fully achieve widespread and sustainable benefits and it introduces a new policy framework the ACT framework to guide policy making This framework emphasizes the three policy principles of Augment Connect and Target Augment the provision and quality of infrastructure and basic services across urban and rural locations Connect places and people to jobs and opportunities and services Target lagging areas and marginalized groups through well designed place based policies as well as thoughtful urban planning and design Using this framework the report provides policy recommendations differentiated by four types of place that differ in both their economic characteristics and the challenges that they face multidistrict metro areas single district metro areas nonmetro urban areas and nonmetro rural areas In addition to its eight chapters Time to ACT Realizing Indonesia's Urban Potential includes four spotlights on strengthening the disaster resilience of Indonesian cities the nexus between urbanization and human capital the invisible crisis of wastewater management and the potential for smart cities in Indonesia If Indonesia continues to urbanize in line with global historical standards more than 70 percent of its population will be living in towns and cities by the time the country celebrates the centenary of its independence in 2045 Accordingly how Indonesia manages this continued expansion of its urban population and the mounting congestion forces that expansion brings will do much to determine whether the country reaches the upper rungs of the global ladder of prosperity inclusiveness and livability
