Re A (conjoined twins) [2000] HRLR 721

Facts

The parents of conjoined twins, M and J, appealed against a decision to allow an operation to surgically separate them which would result in the death of M. M had severe brain abnormalities, no lungs and was supplied with blood by her sister. J however was normally functioning in all relevant respects. At first instance the judge held that allowing the operation would be in the best interests of both children on the basis that it would allow J a relatively normal life and would prevent further suffering to M as J grew. It was held, on the basis of [Airedale NHS Trust v Bland \[1993\] AC 789](#), that the death of M could be justified by analogy to a doctor removing life sustaining treatment from a patient with no hope of recovery.

Issues

The parents appealed on the basis that the judge had erred in finding that the operation was in the best interests of both children. The Court of Appeal was asked to consider whether this was the case, but addressed both this and the result of liability should the operation proceed (whether necessity would provide a defence).

Decision / Outcome

It was held that

- (1) whilst the views of the parents should be given significant respect, the court must address the matter purely on the welfare of the children.
- (2) In this respect, the trial judge had erred in suggesting that the separation would be of benefit to both children because all life had equal value. M's life was as valuable as J's in these circumstances and the operation could not therefore, be in her best interest.
- (3) The court was then required to balance the interests of the children against one another and concluded that the balance fell in favour of J.
- (4) The operation would not constitute murder because the three elements required to raise a defence of necessity were present:
 - (a) the act was required to avoid an irreparable evil;

Seminar for Murder Barbara M. Gill, 1985 The Seminar Murders Will Scales, 2023-04-28 This story opens with a murder a prominent criminologist at a provincial university is found dead with his head beaten in Neither his academic colleagues nor his students liked the victim it seems and the police investigating the crime are confronted at the outset with too many motives and too many suspects Then the professor of the criminology department is found with her throat cut Apart from being colleagues did this pair have anything else in common Who hated them both enough to kill them Who else is at risk Is there a malign presence stalking the calm corridors of academe and can the police move quickly enough to prevent further deaths In a fast paced narrative persuasive in its realistic depiction of both university life and a police murder investigation the reader is immersed in the events and is present at the interviews of suspects Using multiple strands of narration the author takes us on a forensic path into the mind of a clever and ruthless killer Latinsk Universitetsprogram

Keppel, William J. Birnes, 2003-08-20 Publisher Description Making Murder Public K. J. Kesselring, 2019-01-31 Homicide has a history In early modern England that history saw two especially notable developments one the emergence in the sixteenth century of a formal distinction between murder and manslaughter made meaningful through a lighter punishment than death for the latter and two a significant reduction in the rates of homicides individuals perpetrated on each other Making Murder Public explores connections between these two changes It demonstrates the value in distinguishing between murder and manslaughter or at least in seeing how that distinction came to matter in a period which also witnessed dramatic drops in the occurrence of homicidal violence Focused on the politics of murder Making Murder Public examines how homicide became more effectively criminalized between 1480 and 1680 with chapters devoted to coroners inquests appeals and private compensation duels and private vengeance and print and public punishment The English had begun moving away from treating homicide as an offence subject to private settlements or vengeance long before other Europeans at least from the twelfth century What happened in the early modern period was in some ways a continuation of processes long underway but intensified and refocused by developments from 1480 to 1680 Making Murder Public argues that homicide became fully public in these years with killings seen to violate a king's peace that people increasingly conflated with or subordinated to the public peace or public justice Honolulu Homicide Gary A. Dias and Honolulu advertiser reporter Robbie Dingeman provide inside information about some of Oahu's most disturbing crimes 18 Tiny Deaths Bruce Goldfarb, 2020-02-04 A captivating blend of history, women in science, and true crime 18 Tiny Deaths tells the story of how one woman changed the face of forensics forever Frances Glessner Lee, born a socialite to a wealthy and influential Chicago family in the 1870s, was never meant to have a career let alone one steeped in death and depravity Yet she developed a fascination with the investigation of violent crimes and made it her life's work Best known for creating the Nutshell Studies of Unexplained Death, a series of dollhouses that appear charming until you notice the macabre little details, an overturned chair or a blood-spattered comforter And then, of course, there are the bodies splayed out on the floor, draped over chairs, clothed in garments that Lee lovingly knit with sewing pins 18 Tiny Deaths by official biographer Bruce Goldfarb delves into Lee's journey from grandmother without a college degree to leading the scientific investigation of unexpected death out of the dark confines of centuries-old techniques and into the light of the modern day Lee developed a system that used the Nutshell dioramas to train law enforcement officers to investigate violent crimes, and her methods are still used today The story of a woman whose ambition and accomplishments far exceeded the expectations of her time 18 Tiny Deaths follows the transformation of a young wealthy socialite into the mother of modern forensics Eye-opening biography of Frances Glessner Lee, who brought American medical forensics into the scientific age genuinely compelling Kirkus Reviews A captivating portrait of a feminist hero and forensic pioneer Booklist Murder Most Unfortunate David P. Wagner, 2015-11-03 Rick Montoya, an American translator travelling through Italy, tries to spend his days reveling in art but soon finds himself wrapped up in a scandal Wrapping up an interpreter job in Bassano del Grappa at a conference on artist Jacopo da Bassano, Rick Montoya looks forward to exploring the town And it would be fun to look into the history of two long missing paintings by the master, a topic that caused the only dust-up among the normally staid group of international scholars attending the seminar Bassano has much to offer to Rick, the tourist, starting with its famous covered bridge, an ancient castle, and several picturesque walled towns within striking distance He also plans to savor a local cuisine that combines the best of Venice with dishes from the Po Valley and the surrounding mountains These plans come to a sudden halt when one of the seminar's professors turns up dead Rick is once again drawn into a murder mystery this time with a pair of local cops who personify the best and the worst of the Italian police force At the same time, he's willingly pulled into a relationship with Betta Innocenti, the daughter of a local gallery owner who is equally intrigued by the lost paintings They quickly realize that the very people who might know the story are also the main suspects in the murder and that someone not above resorting to violence is watching their every move In David P. Night in the American Village Akemi Johnson,2019-06-18 A lively encounter with identity and American military history in Okinawa Night in the American Village is by turns intellectual hip and sexy I admire it for its ferocity style and vigor A wonderful book Anthony Swofford author of Jarhead A beautifully written examination of the complex relationship between the women living near the U S bases in Okinawa and the servicemen who are stationed there At the southern end of the Japanese archipelago lies Okinawa host to a vast complex of U S military bases A legacy of World War II these bases have been a fraught issue in Japan for decades with tensions exacerbated by the often volatile relationship between islanders and the military especially after the brutal rape of a twelve year old girl by three servicemen in the 1990s But the situation is more complex than it seems In Night in the American Village journalist Akemi Johnson takes readers deep into the border towns surrounding the bases a world where cultural and political fault lines compel individuals both Japanese and American to continually renegotiate their own identities Focusing on the women there she follows the complex fallout of the murder of an Okinawan woman by an ex U S serviceman in 2016 and speaks to protesters to women who date and marry American men and groups that help them when problems arise and to Okinawans whose family members survived World War II Thought provoking and timely Night in the American Village is a vivid look at the enduring wounds of U S Japanese history and the cultural and sexual politics of the American military empire The Armchair Detective ,1988 Sex-Related Homicide and Death Investigation Vernon J.
