Cataloging Policy and Support Office,2009      Senses of the Empire Eleanor Betts,2017-02-24 The Roman empire afforded a kaleidoscope of sensations Through a series of multisensory case studies centred on people places buildings and artefacts and on specific aspects of human behaviour this volume develops ground-breaking methods and approaches for sensory studies in Roman archaeology and ancient history Authors explore questions such as what it felt like and symbolised to be showered with saffron at the amphitheatre why the shape of a dancer's body made him immediately recognisable as a social outcast how the dramatic gestures loud noises and unforgettable smells of a funeral would have different meanings for members of the family and for bystanders and why feeling the weight of a signet ring on his finger contributed to a man's sense of identity A multisensory approach is taken throughout with each chapter exploring at least two of the senses of sight hearing smell taste and touch The contributors' individual approaches vary reflecting the possibilities and the wide application of sensory studies to the ancient world Underlying all chapters is a conviction that taking a multisensory approach enriches our understanding of the Roman empire but also an awareness of the methodological problems encountered when reconstructing past experiences
