A New English Dictionary on Historical Principles James Augustus Henry Murray, Sir William Alexander Craigie, Charles Talbot Onions, 1919

Stalin and Mao Lucien Bianco, 2018-03-15 China's ascent to the ranks of the world's second largest economic power has given its revolution a better image than that of its Russian counterpart Yet the two have a great deal in common Indeed the Chinese revolution was a carbon copy of its predecessor until Mao became aware not so much of the failures of the Russian model but of its inability to adapt to an overcrowded third world country Yet instead of correcting that model Mao decided to go further and faster in the same direction The aftershock of an earthquake may be weaker but the Great Leap Forward of 1958 in China was far more destructive than the Great Turn of 1929 in the Soviet Union It was conceived with an idealistic end but failed to take all the possibilities into account China's development only took off after and thanks to Mao's death once the country turned its back on the revolution Lucien Bianco's original comparative study highlights the similarities the all powerful bureaucracy the over exploitation of the peasantry which triggered two of the worst famines of the 20th century control over writers and artists repression and labor camps The comparison of Stalin and Mao that completes the picture leads the author straight back to Lenin and he quotes the observation by a Chinese historian that If at all possible it is best to avoid revolutions altogether

Development and Gender Capital in India Shoba Arun, 2017-09-06

The Indian state of Kerala has invoked much attention within development and gender debates specifically in relation to its female capital an outcome of interrelated historical cultural and social practices On the one hand Kerala has been romanticised with its citizenry particularly women being free of social divisions and uplifted through educational well being On the other hand its realism is stark particularly in the light of recent social changes Using a Bourdieusian frame of analysis Development and Gender Capital in India explores the forces of globalisation and how they are embedded within power structures Through narratives of women s lived experiences in the private and public domains it highlights the anomie of gender through complexities and contradictions vis vis processes of modernity development and globalisation By demonstrating the limits placed upon gender capital by structures of patriarchy and domination it argues that discussions about the empowered Malayalee women should move from a mere politics of rhetoric and representation to a more embedded politics of transformation meaningfully taking into account women s changing roles and identities This book will be of interest to scholars and students of Development Studies Gender Studies Anthropology and Sociology
