social sciences      Constructing Sexualities and Gendered Bodies in School Spaces Jón Ingvar Kjarran, 2017-02-20 This book sheds light on how sexuality and gender intersect in producing heteronormativity within the school system in Iceland. In spite of recent support for progressive policies regarding sexual and gender equality in the country, there remains a discrepancy between policy and practice with respect to LGBTQ rights and attitudes within the school system. This book draws on ethnographic data and interviews with LGBTQ students in high schools across the country and reveals that although Nordic countries are sometimes portrayed as queer utopias, the school system in Iceland has a long road ahead in making schools more inclusive for all students.

Calling Bodies in Lived Spaces Kaia Dorothea Mellbye Schultz Rønsdal, 2018-08-13 Kaia Rønsdal combines the perspective of production of space, ethical theory, and fieldwork focusing on the contradictions in lived space by observing encounters and interactions between different groups of people in everyday public space. It is an interdisciplinary contribution to the science of diaconia. The interest lies with the lives that diaconia traditionally have been concerned with and the spaces where these lives are lived, exploring the concept of calling through narratives of these lives and spaces. The book challenges and contributes to traditional and contemporary notions of calling as it is understood in the Scandinavian tradition. These notions stemming from interpretations of Luther place the calling among humans as opposed to it being something exclusively divine and ecclesiastical. The discussion on the calling is enriched with concepts stemming from French sociology and human geography, primarily from H. Lefebvre and M. Foucault, as well as phenomenological contributions. These are concerned with the significance of body, space, urbanity, and spatial interpretation as space is a relational formative phenomenon constituted in practice and interaction. Through methodologies developed from phenomenology and spatial theory, where the researcher subject is an evident embodied participant, detailed accounts from the field form the material describing everyday life in an Oslo cityscape. From this material, the concept of calling is explored, developing the discussion from the perspective of the spaces of others. The assumption being that it is in the spaces where people meet and bodies respond to other bodies, whether marginalised or not, that calling may manifest itself. Through spatial analysis of the minute details of bodies and socialities in everyday life, new material for ethical considerations is explored. The analysis and discussion may enrich and further deepen the understanding of what takes place in public spaces, recognising them as a source of knowledge in a range of disciplines. These everyday encounters may also be described and analysed as contributions to the development of theory and praxis of diaconia.

The Badlands of Modernity Kevin Hetherington, 2002-11 The Badlands of Modernity offers a wide-ranging and original interpretation of modernity as it emerged during the eighteenth century through an analysis of some of the most important social spaces. Drawing on Foucault's analysis of heterotopia or spaces of alternate ordering, the book argues that modernity originates through an interplay between ideas of utopia and heterotopia and heterotopic spatial practice. The Palais Royal during the French Revolution, the masonic lodge, and in its relationship to civil society and the public sphere, and the early factories of the Industrial Revolution are all seen as heterotopia in which modern social ordering is developed Rather than seeing modernity as being defined by a social order the book argues that we need to take account of the processes and the ambiguous spaces in which they emerge if we are to understand the character of modern societies The book uses these historical examples to analyse contemporary questions about modernity and postmodernity the character of social order and the significance of marginal space in relation to issues of order transgression and resistance It will be important reading for sociologists geographers and social historians as well as anyone who has an interest in modern societies Official Gazette of the United States Patent and Trademark Office ,1987 Experience and Conflict: The Production of Urban Space Panu Lehtovuori,2016-12-05 When designing planning and building urban spaces many contradictory and conflicting actors practices and agendas coexist This book propounds that at present this process is conducted in an artificial reality Concept City characterized by a simplified and outdated conception of space It provides a constructive critique of the concepts underlying the practices of planning and architecture and in order to facilitate more dynamic inclusive and subtle practices it formulates a new theory about space in general and public urban space in particular The central notions in this theory are temporality experiment and conflict which are grounded on empirical observations in Helsinki Manchester and Berlin While the book contextualizes Lefebvre s ideas on urban planning and architecture it is in no way limited to Lefebvorean discourse but allows insights to new theoretical work including that of Finnish and Swedish authors In doing so it suggests and develops exciting new approaches and tools leading to experiential urbanism Recounting Migration Christina R. Clark-Kazak,2011 Christina Clark Kazak a former international aid worker uses extensive interviews done in Kampala and Kyaka II refugee settlement Uganda to present the narratives of ten young people living as refugees Their accounts reveal both political awareness and individual agency in everyday and extraordinary circumstances The author shows how refugee youth seek to influence decision making processes in families communities and at policy levels through formal and informal mechanisms as well as through non political channels such as education and music She juxtaposes their interpretations of the situations with the discourse and bureaucracy of international aid organizations showing the sometimes radical differences between these perspectives Clark Kazak not only provides insight into the politics of labelling but offers recommendations for future research policy and programs for refugee young people A remarkable and compelling look at the lives of young refugees Recounting Migration challenges stereotypes by giving these migrants a long overdue opportunity to speak for themselves Down on Their Luck David A. Snow,Leon Anderson,1993-02-12 David Snow and Leon Anderson show us the wretched face of homelessness in late twentieth century America in countless cities across the nation Through hundreds of hours of interviews participant observation and random tracking of homeless people through social service agencies in Austin Texas Snow and Anderson reveal who the homeless are how they live and why they have ended up on the streets Debunking current stereotypes of the homeless Down on Their Luck sketches a portrait of men and women who are highly adaptive resourceful and pragmatic

Their survival is a tale of human resilience and determination not one of frailty and disability

Wild Spaces in Urban Development Amartya Deb, 2023-09-08 This fascinating book examines how microsites of spontaneous nature can reframe our understanding of the relationship between urban development and green space Metropolitan cities are facing stark inequalities of green space distribution hindering goals of sustainable development But outside of human control spontaneous nature grows in spaces that are neglected or are unaccounted for Drawing on existing literature and primary research in a range of towns and cities including Quito in Ecuador Bengaluru and Kolkata in India and Whitby in the United Kingdom the book delves into the morphology meanings and values of those small scale assemblages of wild growth which are typically overlooked Discussing instead how such settings can be integrated into everyday urban life the book offers a fresh perspective on issues around green infrastructure heritage conservation and environmental education enabling cities worldwide to become more nature positive A unique examination of an under researched topic this book will appeal to students researchers and professionals across landscape architecture urban planning urban ecology and all related fields

Begging questions Dean, Hartley, 1999-09-16 Begging is widely condemned but little understood It is increasingly visible yet politically controversial Recent changes in British social security housing and mental health provision can be seen to have exacerbated the extent of begging in the UK and its persistence is an indictment of the failures of social policy throughout the Western world Though begging is intimately linked to issues of street homelessness mental health substance abuse and social exclusion this book specifically focuses on begging as a distinctive form of marginalised economic activity It looks at the significance of face to face contact between beggars and passers by the preoccupation with the classification of beggars the stigma associated with begging and judgements required by the passer by the place of begging in the spectrum of informal economic activity The book provides a comprehensive overview and will stimulate theoretical policy and methodological debates driving forward the research agenda It is important reading for researchers academics and students in social policy social work sociology politics and socio legal studies and also for social work practitioners and particularly policy makers

Asphalt Children and City Streets Mônica Mesquita, Sal Restivo, Ubiratan D'Ambrosio, 2012-01-01 This work explores the urban experiences of street children in sao paulo brazil through the mathematical epistemic regimes at the core of their survival strategies We also draw attention to the situation of street children across time space culture and history Our goal is to recognize understand and validate forms of mathematics constructed and used outside of the established institutions of mathematical production We base our analysis on the mathematical imagination which draws together social constructionism and ethnomathematics Theoretically we draw heavily on the durkheimian tradition in sociology and anthropology We focus on a form of practice that links the formal and the informal in order to realize the full power of mathematical knowledge as a social thing in durkheim s sense a product of the collective consciousness that expresses collective realities and a category of knowledge present in every culture This is as true for mathematics at the margins as it is for professional mathematics Our work contributes to an emerging political manifesto of the marginal that demonstrates the social realities and social power of their mathematics This book should be of interest to social scientists students of mathematics and ethnomathematics and everyone interested in the situation of marginalized children
