Maria Mitchell, 2015-07-06 Maria Mitchell Life Letters and Journals compiled by Phebe Mitchell Kendall is a great insight into the life of Maria Mitchell as the first American woman to earn a living as an astronomer. She discovered a comet way back in 1847 which was also named after her. In essence this book celebrates women's education and women's rights. It also provides an excellent resource into astronomy and science. As her sister Phebe Mitchell Kendall showcases a side of Maria Mitchell which textbooks and journals could never capture. The introduction itself is gripping enough with a personal biography and trivia relating to the famous astronomer and her upbringing. Maria Mitchell Life Letters and Journals is spread over thirteen chapters and appendix including a highly descriptive and moving narrative as well as journals and letters exchanged between Maria Mitchell and others including colleagues and well wishers. It is through the letters that the reader can gauge the true intelligence, grit, and determination which were the defining characteristics of this versatile personality. The author is able to bring out the many facets of her sister through this work, the most impressive of these being the section describing her stint at Vassar College where she went beyond the mandate of astronomy and science to stand up and further women's rights as the chairman of a standing committee on American Association for the Advancement of Women among her various other achievements and accolades bestowed upon her. In parts inspiring and in others leaving the reader awestruck, this book meanders through the trials and tribulations of a woman way ahead of her times, contributing selflessly to the advancement of science and making an indelible mark in the field of astronomy.

Maria Mitchell, Life, Letters, and Journals, 1896 Mitchell, Maria, 1901. Maria Mitchell Henry Albers, 2001. America's first woman astronomer was born in 1818 on Nantucket Island, Massachusetts. Patiently observing the skies with her father as early as age twelve, Maria eventually discovers a telescopic comet. For this 1847 feat, she is awarded a Gold Medal by the King of Denmark. Other honors and world fame follow. When Vassar College opens in 1865, Maria is there as its first Professor of Astronomy. She remains to serve under three Vassar presidents. A passionate seeker of truth and wisdom, Maria Mitchell's keen views are revealed in her journals. Her growth as an advocate for women's rights is dramatically portrayed. At eighteen, she is hired as the first librarian for the Nantucket Atheneum where she educates herself studying the books she orders. Twenty years later, we see her now internationally renowned as a welcome guest in salons of the world's leading scientists and literary figures. Maria's tales of daring travel by bumpy stagecoach, Russian droshkys, Mississippi River boats, and Atlantic side wheelers are here, as are her perceptive accounts of the celebrities of her day. Journeying westward alone, escorting a Chicago debutante on her Grand Tour, taking a teenage nephew to Russia, complete with daunting, sometimes comical adventures, all come to life. She organizes Vassar students to observe meteors and undertake eclipse expeditions. In her journals, we see Maria Mitchell grow under the tutelage of her father in a warm and active family.
