Birthing in the Pacific Vicki Lukere, Margaret Jolly, 2001-11-30 This collection explores birthing in the Pacific against the background of debates about tradition and modernity A wide ranging introduction and conclusion together with case studies from Papua New Guinea New Caledonia Vanuatu Fiji and Tonga show how simple contrasts between traditional and modern practices technocratic and organic models of childbirth indigenous and foreign approaches and notions of before and after can be potent but problematic The difficulties entailed confront public health programs concerned with practical issues of infant and maternal survival in developing countries as well as scholarly analyses of birthing in cross cultural contexts The introduction analyzes central concepts and themes questions of survival safety and well being the significance of postures practices and sites the role of midwives traditional birth attendants and nurses and the role of men in birthing and reproduction Contributors four anthropologists a historian and a community health worker offer insights into the ways mothers midwives and nurses relate the traditional and the modern and how ideas of tradition and modernity have shaped representations of Pacific childbirth The conclusion provides researchers with a guide to relevant literature from several disciplines As a whole the collection warns against either a celebration of emancipation through biomedicine or a recuperative romance about women s past powers in reproduction Contributors Ruta Fiti Sinclair Margaret Jolly Vicki Lukere Shelley Mallett Helen Morton Christine Salomon Papua New Guinea in the Twenty-First Century David Lea, 2023-04-24 Papua New Guinea is a relatively recent independent state engaged in a struggle to develop economically and exercise a degree of sovereignty This work articulates the challenges that confront the young nation including security economic viability delivery of services and control of political corruption While these are matters internal to the functionality of the nation state the author argues that matters have changed dramatically with China s growing influence in the region and the ensuing competition between the United States and China With this increasing geopolitical importance there is the promise of financial benefit but there are also new challenges as there is the ever present danger of becoming enmeshed in superpower competition David Lea argues that lack of economic development and continuing aid dependency may well render island nations such as Papua New Guinea susceptible to political manipulation and further loss of sovereignty including even a risk of military involvement Photography, Anthropology and History Elizabeth Edwards, 2016-04-22 Photography Anthropology and History examines the complex historical relationship between photography and anthropology and in particular the strong emergence of the contemporary relevance of historical images Thematically organized and focusing on the visual practices developed within anthropology as a discipline this book brings together a range of contemporary and methodologically innovative approaches to the historical image within anthropology Importantly it also demonstrates the ongoing relevance of both the historical image and the notion of the archive to recent anthropological thought As current research rethinks the relationship between photography and anthropology this volume will serve as a stimulus to this new phase of research as an essential text and methodological reference point in any course that addresses the relationship between anthropology and visuality

New Guinea Clive Moore, 2003-07-31 New Guinea the world's largest tropical island is a land of great contrasts ranging from small glaciers on its highest peaks to broad mangrove swamps in its lowlands and hundreds of smaller islands and coral atolls along its coasts Divided between two nations the island and its neighboring archipelagos form Indonesia's Papua Province or Irian Jaya and the independent nation of Papua New Guinea both former European colonies Most books on New Guinea have been guided by these and other divisions separating east from west prehistoric from historic precontact from postcontact colonial from postcolonial This is the first work to consider New Guinea and its 40 000 year history in its entirety The volume opens with a look at the Melanesian region and argues that interlocking exchange systems and associated human interchanges are the invisible government through which New Guinea societies operate Succeeding chapters review the history of encounters between outsiders and New Guinea's populations They consider the history of Malay involvement with New Guinea over the past two thousand years demonstrating the extent to which west New Guinea in particular was incorporated into Malay trading and raiding networks prior to Western contact The impact of colonial rule economic and social change World War II decolonization and independence are discussed in the final chapter

Nan'yō Mark R. Peattie, 1992-07-01 Peattie's remarkably readable narrative goes far beyond military and diplomatic history Choice Peattie's comprehensive and fascinating book adds greatly to our knowledge of colonial governments in general the Japanese empire in particular and the global significance of the Pacific Islands The Contemporary Pacific The significance of this book by Peattie a lifelong scholar of the Japanese empire is that it brings Japan's 30 year imperial adventure in the Pacific out of the shadows at last While indispensable for those who have a special interest in the vast part of Micronesia that Japan ruled the author's contribution has an importance for others as well. It offers a carefully researched and penetrating look into the heart and soul of one of the very few non-Western colonial powers in the Pacific. Francis Hezel, Journal of Pacific History 1991-05-01

Tungaru Traditions Arthur Francis Grimble, 2019-03-31 Grimble's ethnographic studies of the Gilbertese prepared between 1916 and 1926 provide an excellent baseline account of a fundamentally pre-contact culture. This collection edited and introduced by H. E. Maude comprises essays on mythology, history and dancing, four chapters on the Maneaba and organized field notes.

Bellona Island Beliefs and Rituals Torben Monberg, 1991-05-01 Monberg's account of the Bellonese religion is descriptive ethnography at its best. It is rich in detail and the organization of the material gives a coherent view of Bellonese culture and society. While not a comparative study in itself, it provides an abundance of data that will be invaluable for other works that are more comparative in nature. From the Editor's Note, Pacific Islands Monograph Series No. 9, Center for Pacific Islands Studies, UH.

In the Eye of the Beholder Barbara Dawson, 2014-11-19 This book offers a fresh perspective in the debate on settler perceptions of Indigenous Australians. It draws together a suite of little-known colonial women apart from Eliza Fraser and investigates their writings for what they reveal about their attitudes to views on and beliefs about Aboriginal people as presented in their published works. The way that reader expectations and publishers' requirements slanted their representations forms part of this analysis. All six women write of their first-hand experiences on Australian frontiers of settlement. The division into adventurers (Eliza Fraser, Eliza Davies and Emily Cowell) and longer-term settlers (Katherine Kirkland, Mary McConnel and Rose Scott Cowen) allows interrogation into the differing representations between those with a transitory knowledge of Indigenous people and those who had a close and more permanent relationship with Indigenous women, even encompassing individual friendship. More pertinently, the book strives to reveal the aspects largely overlooked in colonial narratives of Indigenous agency, authority and individuality.

Beyond a Mountain Valley Paula Brown, 1995-01-01 Beyond a Mountain Valley focuses on Simbu memories, performance and conceptions over the last sixty years, particularly those relating to interactions with newcomers and other island peoples. Simbu speak of their awakening, their transitions, their heroes and their future.

Dispossession and the Environment Paige West, 2016-10-11 When journalists, developers, surf tourists and conservation NGOs cast Papua New Guineans as living in a 'prior nature' and 'prior culture', they devalue their knowledge and practice, facilitating their dispossession. Paige West's searing study reveals how a range of actors produce and reinforce inequalities in today's globalized world. She shows how racist rhetorics of representation underlie all uneven patterns of development and seeks a more robust understanding of the ideological work that capital requires for constant regeneration.

Missiology, 1990 An international review.

The First Taint of Civilization Francis X. Hezel, 2021-05-25 Hezel writes clearly and with erudition and commands an impressive body of information. His book is a tour de force. Not only will it be read eagerly by Pacific scholars, but it should find a wide audience among well-educated Micronesians hungry for greater understanding of how their islands have become ensnared in world geopolitics Ethnohistory Strangers in Their Own Land Francis X. Hezel, 2003-09-30 Hezel has written an authoritative and engaging narrative of a succession of colonial regimes drawing upon a broad range of published and archival sources as well as his own considerable knowledge of the region This is a conventional history and a very good one focused mostly on political and economic developments Hezel demonstrates a fine understanding of the complicated relations between administrators missionaries traders chiefs and commoners in a wide range of social and historical settings Pacific Affairs The tale of Strangers in Their Own Land is one of interplay between four sequential colonial regimes Spain Germany Japan and the United States and the diverse island cultures they governed It is also a tale of relationships among islands whose inhabitants did not always see eye to eye and among individuals who fought private and public battles in those islands Hezel conveys both the unity of purpose exerted by a colonial government and the subversion of that purpose by administrators teachers islands and visitors The history is thoroughly supported by archival materials first person testimonies and secondary sources Hezel acknowledges the power of the visual when he ends his book by describing the distinctive flags that now replace Spanish German Japanese and American symbols of rule the scene epitomizes a theme of the book global political and economic forces whether colonial or post colonial cannot erode the distinctiveness each island claims American Historical Review Missionary Lives Diane Langmore, 1989 Not the Way It Really Was Klaus Neumann, 1992-03-01 One of the most innovative monographs in recent Pacific Islands studies Reviews in Anthropology
