Policies and Organizations for Urban Water Management V. A. Koelzer, B. A. Bigler, 1975 Policies and Organizations for Urban Water Management Victor A. Koelzer, Alexander B. Bigler, 1975 Urban Water Policies and Decision-making in the Detroit Metropolitan Region George M. Walker, 1970 The Private Sector and Water Pricing in Efficient Urban Water Management Cecilia Tortajada, Francisco González-Gómez, Asit K. Biswas, Miguel A. García-Rubio, 2016-01-08 This book focuses on participation of the public and private sectors in urban water management and on the role of water pricing It discusses in depth topics such as public choices of urban water service management dynamics of privatization and regulation of water services adoption of water demand instruments impacts of price and non price policies on residential water demand quality of water services lessons from not for profit public private partnerships and critical examinations of models and projections of demands in water utility resource planning in England and Wales Appropriateness of water prices and tariffs in achieving socially desirable outcomes is also analyzed and a global survey of urban water tariffs is approached with a focus on sustainability efficiency and fairness This book was originally published as a special issue of the International Journal of Water Resources Management Pro-Poor Strategies in Urban Water Provisioning Akosua Sarpong Boakye-Ansah, 2021-02-25 Water utilities are the main instrument for countries to achieve universal service coverage In pursuing universal service coverage water utilities have turned to pro poor water services to extend water services in low income areas This thesis discusses the use of pro poor water services by water utilities in Kenya with the intention of highlighting the dimensions of the approach that require attention of policy makers and practitioners when engaging with the concept Based on the analysis of the technologies financial and organisational arrangements associated with the pro poor concept this thesis shows that the use of pro poor strategies allows water utilities to reduce the risks of servicing low income areas while still claiming to fulfil their mandate of providing access to all in a commercially viable manner The analysis also shows that rather than a decision of the water utility the choice for pro poor strategies emerges as the result of a consensus or compromise between the different actors that constitute the broader institutional environment in which water utilities operate The thesis concludes that while pro poor water services may serve the interests of water utilities and other stakeholders in the absence of well directed subsidies and proper monitoring they will not result in low income households benefiting from more affordable and reliable access to water Transnational Corporations in Urban Water Governance Joyce Valdovinos, 2021-08-14 This book examines the role played by business in urban water governance by analyzing the evolution of the global private water sector along with four public private partnerships in Mexico and the U S The local nature of water services often hides the global developments behind the rise of transnational water corporations which have gone from being local operators to becoming dynamic and powerful actors within an interconnected transnational space for water This book focuses on the French groups Veolia and Suez two of the most prominent private actors in global water governance and the development and adaptation strategies of both companies in the cities of Aguascalientes Mexico City Atlanta and Milwaukee over the past 30 years Drawing on over 100 interviews conducted with corporate executives public authorities and local users of water services this book moves beyond the simplistic dichotomy of the public private debate and develops a theoretical framework that analyzes the economic and political power wielded by transnational business actors in global water governance Not only does the book explain how Veolia and Suez strategically mobilize resources at difference scales in order to expand their global operations but it also provides a nuanced picture of how state regulation remains of central importance to understanding the dynamics and evolution of the global water sector Students and scholars interested in business and the environment including public private partnerships business management and transnational corporations and water governance will find this book of great interest as will professionals and policymakers working in these fields

Abraham R. Matamanda, Tazviona R. Gambe, Johannes I. Bhanye, Tafadzwa C. Maramura, Oratilwe Annastacia

Khoza, 2025-09-04 This book focuses on urban water supply and governance in the Global South using urban Zimbabwe as a case study to provide insights and perspectives into the realities of the water governance Applying a resilience and sustainability perspective we argue that fragmentation of responsibilities between various institutions the difficulty of coordination at various levels and the politics centered on water supply constrain effective water governance in Zimbabwe This has resulted in a downward spiral in urban water services in Zimbabwe's urban centers Additionally the innovative nature of this study is to draw from an often neglected dimension in urban water governance which is the political ecology which brings into perspective the varying interests associated with environmental contests and conflicts that influence water allocation and sharing among urban areas by the public sector Therefore this book dwells on understanding the politics economic and ecology of water governance through an interdisciplinary lens This analysis is critical for this study because Zimbabwe's current state of obsolete water infrastructure has also had a negative impact on the supply of high quality portable water services to the public in urban areas This book will be a critical read for academic and professionals in the fields of urban geographers planners sociologists and water experts It will also be useful for undergraduate and postgraduate students from Geography Urban and regional Planning Political Science Development Studies and Economics

Indian Water Policy at the Crossroads: Resources, Technology and Reforms Vishal Narain, Annasamy Narayanamoorthy, 2016-01-12 This book reviews and analyzes emerging challenges in water policy governance and institutions in India Recent times have seen the contours of water policy shaped by new discourses and narratives there has been a pluralization of the state and a changing balance of power among the actors who influence the formulation of water policy Discourses on gender mainstreaming and Integrated Water Resource Management IWRM are influential though they have often remained rhetorical and difficult to put into practice Debate over property rights reform and inter linking of rivers has been polarized At the same time there has been a rising disenchantment with policy initiatives in participatory irrigation management cleaning up of water bodies and pollution control Fast depletion of groundwater resources and the importance of adopting new irrigation methods are getting increased focus in the recent policy dialogue The contributors review current debate on these and other subjects shaping the governance of water resources and take stock of new policy developments The book examines the experience of policy implementation and shows where important weaknesses still lie The authors present a roadmap for the future and discuss the potential of alternative approaches for tackling emerging challenges A case is made for greater emphasis on a discursive analysis of water policy to examine underlying policy processes The contributors observe that the ongoing democratization of water governance coupled with the multiplication of stresses on water will create a more visible demand for platforms for negotiation conflict resolution and dialogue across different categories of users and uses Finally the authors propose that future research should challenge implicit biases in water resources planning and address imbalances in the allocation of water from the perspectives of both equity and sustainability

A. Bressers, 2013-05-29 In an increasingly global community of researchers and practitioners new technologies and communication means have made the transfer of policies from one country or region to another progressively more prevalent There has been a lot of attention in the field of public administration paid to policy transfer and institutional transplantation This book aims to create a better understanding of such transfers in the water management sector These include the adoption of modern water management concepts such as integrated water resources management and forms of water governance which are strongly promoted and sometimes also imposed by various international organizations Transfers also occur within the scope of development aid or for the purpose of creating business opportunities In addition many research organisations consultancies and governmental agencies are involved in cross border work The purpose of this book is therefore to present practical examples of the transfer of modern water management from one locality to another and to critically discuss the transferability of policy and governance concepts by analysing the contextual needs and factors Case studies are included from North America Europe the Middle East and Asia It is argued that in many cases context matters in water management and that there is no panacea or universal concept that can be applied to all countries or regions with different political economic cultural and technological contexts Yet it is also shown that some countries are facing pressing and similar water management issues that cut across national borders and hence the transfer of knowledge may be beneficial Urban Water Ecosystems in Africa and Asia Shamik Chakraborty,Amit Chatterjee,Pankaj Kumar,2024-12-13 This book examines urban water ecosystem management and restoration through selected case studies in Asia and Africa Employing a socioecological approach this volume presents insights on the interlinkages between water humans and environmental conservation in an urban context Topics include human health risks population displacement and migration water pollution water scarcity flood management water infrastructure afforestation and the effects of climate change Case studies are drawn from a variety of countries in Africa and Asia including China Japan India Vietnam Bangladesh Kenya Malawi and Tunisia which demonstrate a wide range of different challenges and opportunities Overall this book argues that to better manage urban water resources there needs to be a shift from urban water management to urban water ecosystem management This shift needs to acknowledge the complex biophysical and socio political dimensions of water ecosystems This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of water resource management ecosystem services urban studies environmental conservation and sustainable development Institutional and Policy Analysis of River Basin Management The Murray Darling River Basin, Australia Anjali Bhat, William Andrew Blomquist,2005 Water Policy and Water Markets Guy J.-M.
