When East Meets West Fran Blumberg, 2008-12-18 The impetus for this book was a series of guest lectures for the Issues in Applied Cognition Institute sponsored by Fordham University s Graduate School of Education May 26 27 2005 and convened at Fordham University in New York City and May 30 June 7 2005 at The Beijing Center for Language and Culture in Beijing The book that has since emerged is designed to serve as a reference that brings together theoretical perspectives research findings and cultural practice in the examination of media from a primarily Sino American vantage point as commented upon by Chinese U S and U K researchers and practitioners The need for such a reference is prompted by China's status as a nascent superpower and the ramifications of that emerging status for collaborative ventures and exchange of information with the U S. Clearly one flourishing context in which this sharing will occur is media. The goal of this volume is to provide the basis for consideration of the theoretical and practical issues that both China and the United States media will encounter as they move toward greater economic and political interdependence. This discussion is approached through the lens of media practice research and education and includes the voices of media market researchers, journalists and editors, developers of children's educational programs and academicians. Collectively the chapters offer a select set of snapshots of how media in China and the U S look at one point in time. This moment is one that includes China preparing for the Beijing 2008 Olympics and the U S grappling with its involvement in an unpopular war. However, these images may capture what has been referred to in photojournalism as a decisive moment in the fledgling media interdependency between the U S and China.

Ethics and Media Culture: Practices and Representations David Berry, 2013-08-22. Ethics and Media Culture straddles the practical and ethical issues of contention encountered by journalists. The book's various contributors cover a diversity of issues and viewpoints attempting to broaden out the debates particularly in relation to Journalism Studies, Cultural Studies, Sociology of Culture and Communications, Philosophy and History. The debate concerning media ethics has intensified in recent years, fuelled mainly by the standards of journalist and media practices. The role of practitioners has taken centre stage as concerns over what constitutes ethical and therefore socially acceptable practice and behaviour by the public practitioners and intellectuals alike. The discursive relationship between the production and consumption of information is central to the debate regarding moral conduct, particularly in light of the commercialisation of the media. Considering that media institutions operate in a climate of intense competition, the value of information and its corresponding quality have begun to be critically assessed in terms of ethical understanding. A degree of open-endedness is maintained in discussions throughout this book, which is intended to engage the reader with the issues raised and determine their own conclusions.

Women's Voices in Ireland Caitriona Clear, 2015-12-17. Women's Voices in Ireland examines the letters and problems sent in by women to two Irish women's magazines in the 1950s and 60s, discussing them within their wider social and historical context. In doing so, it provides a unique insight into one of the few forums for female expression in Ireland during this period. Although in these decades more Irish women than ever before participated in paid work, trade unions and voluntary organizations, their representation in politics and public and their workforce participation remained low. Meanwhile, women who came of age from the late 1950s experienced a freedom which their mothers and aunts, married or single in the workplace or the home, had never known. Diary and letters pages and problem pages in Irish-produced magazines in the 1950s and 60s enabled women from all walks of life to express their opinions and to seek guidance on the social changes they saw happening around them. This book, by examining these communications, gives a new insight into the history of Irish women and also contributes to the ongoing debate about what women's magazines mean for women's history      Gender and Media Tonny Krijnen, Sofie Van Bauwel, 2021-10-27 This thoroughly revised second edition provides a critical overview of the contemporary debates and discussions surrounding gender and mediated communication. The book is divided into three parts representing producing and consuming with each section made up of three chapters. The first chapter of each section attempts to answer the most basic questions: Who is represented? Who produces what? and Who consumes what? The second chapter of each section draws attention to the complexity of the relationship between gender and media, concentrating on the why. The third and final chapter of each section addresses the latest debates in the fields of media and gender, adding a vital layer of understanding of the topic at hand. Throughout, text boxes provide additional information on the most important concepts and topics, and exercises help bridge the gap between theory and everyday life media practices. The second edition has been updated in light of current developments with regard to gender, media technologies, and globalisation, including recent theoretical insights and examples. This is an ideal textbook for students studying gender and media and for general courses on gender studies, sociology, cultural studies, and women's studies.

Roughing it in the Suburbs Valerie J. Korinek, 2000-01-01 Korinek shows that rather than promoting domestic perfection, Chatelaine did not cling to the stereotypes of the era but instead forged ahead, providing women with a variety of images, ideas, and critiques of women's role in society.

Nationalising Femininity Christine Gledhill, Gillian Swanson, 1996 What was the relation between gender and nation when the waiting woman was displaced by the mobile woman and homes were flattened by bombs? What happened to notions of femininity, sexual difference, and class as women moved into the workplace and donned dungarees, military uniforms, and utility clothing?

Promotional Culture and Convergence Helen Powell, 2013-04-17 The rapid growth of promotional material through the internet, social media, and entertainment culture has created consumers who are seeking out their own information to guide their purchasing decisions. Promotional Culture and Convergence analyses the environments necessary for creating a culture of collaboration with consumers and critically engages with key areas of contemporary promotional development, including promotional culture's primary industries: advertising, marketing, PR, and branding, and how they are informed by changes in consumer behaviour and market conditions. How industries are adapting in the digital age to attract both audiences and advertising revenue, the evolving dialogues between new consumers and producers, and promotional industries. Ten contributions from leading theorists on contemporary promotional culture present an indispensable guide to this creative and dynamic field and include detailed historical analysis in depth, case studies, and global examples of promotion through TV, magazines, newspapers, and cinema.

Niche Fashion Magazines Ane Lynge-Jorlen, 2017-04-30 Niche fashion magazines speak to a highly fashion-literate readership and mix the codes of style magazines, glossy women's magazines, and art catalogues. They are often produced and read by people engaged in the business of creating fashion taste. Through this business-to-business practice, the niche magazine genre is powerful in shaping the face of fashion. Based on unique analysis of niche fashion magazines and unprecedented access to the making of the respected Danish niche fashion magazine DANSK including interviews with its makers and its readers this book unveils the behind the scenes of niche fashion magazines It pays special attention to the symbolic and material cultures as well as the values and meanings that are shared across magazine producers and their readers It is a valuable contribution to the study and practice of fashion journalism with appeal to students and readers of the increasingly popular high end glossy magazines

Her World, Women and Fashion in Singapore 1974-1989 Nadya Wang, 2025-07-24 Between 1974 and 1989 significant changes were taking place in the lives of Singaporean women and in their local fashion industry These shifts were not only reflected in but actively shaped by the magazine Her World In Her World Women and Fashion in Singapore Nadya Wang uses dress as a lens through which to view fragments of the magazine over 15 years Advocating for a new and decentred understanding of the evolution of the Singapore woman Wang's writing also traces the creation of a fashion industry that pivoted from seeking validation from global fashion cities to establishing itself as the lead of a Southeast Asian fashion community Visual analysis of archival materials is combined with oral history interviews to demonstrate how the women of Singapore engaged with local and global ideas fashion and beauty commodities and imagery of models and beauty queens in their self fashioning Challenging existing understandings of their agency this book attests to the creativity and adaptability of Singapore women and Singapore fashion designers
