Philippakos, Steve Graham, 2022-11-18 Writing skills are essential for success in the 21st century school and workplace but most classrooms devote far more time to reading instruction with writing often addressed in isolation or excluded In this insightful professional development resource and text leading researchers discuss why and how to integrate writing and reading instruction in grades K 12 and beyond Contributors explore how to harness writing reading connections to support learning in such areas as phonics and spelling vocabulary understanding genre and text structure and self regulated strategy development as well as across content areas and disciplines Special considerations in teaching emergent bilingual students and struggling literacy learners are described User friendly features include guiding questions classroom examples and action questions that help teachers translate the research and concepts into practice An NCTQ Exemplary Text for Reading Instruction Handbook of Individual Differences in Reading Peter Afflerbach, 2015-08-11 The central unifying theme of this state of the art contribution to research on literacy is its rethinking and reconceptualization of individual differences in reading Previous research focused on cognitive components of reading signaled the need for ongoing work to identify relevant individual differences in reading to determine the relationships of individual differences to reading development and to account for interactions among individual differences Addressing developments in each of these areas this volume also describes affective individual differences and the environments in which individual differences in reading may emerge operate interact and change The scant comprehensive accounting of individual differences in reading is reflected in the nature of reading instruction programs today the outcomes that are expected from successful teaching and learning and the manner in which reading development is assessed An important contribution of this volume is to provide prima facie evidence of the benefits of broad conceptualization of the ways in which readers differ The Handbook of Individual Differences in Reading moves the field forward by encompassing cognitive non cognitive contextual and methodological concerns Its breadth of coverage serves as both a useful summary of the current state of knowledge and a guide for future work in this area Contemporary Composition Studies Edith Babin, Kimberly Harrison, 1999-12-30 Composition studies is a rapidly growing and constantly changing field At present however graduate students new to the field and writing teachers who want to make new connections between theory and practice have little choice of current reference works that define key terms in composition studies and provide information about the scholars and researchers who have shaped and are shaping the discipline This book supplies this information in an easily accessible format and places both scholars and terms in the context of the field's development Included are alphabetically arranged entries for 108 individuals who have developed the field and 128 terms central to the discipline The first part of the book provides entries for leaders in composition studies Each entry identifies the areas in which the scholar has contributed most influentially to the field and provides both a chronological overview of the person's contributions and a bibliography of representative works The second part includes entries for terms that are problematic both for newcomers and for those already familiar with the discipline The entries for the terms show how the disciplinary context has shaped the ways in which they have been used The entries also indicate how established thinkers in composition studies and other disciplines have explained or defined the terms provide examples of the terms in context and list scholars often associated with them An appendix includes entries for scholars from other disciplines who have contributed to the field

Reading Empirical Research Studies John R. Hayes, Richard E. Young, Michele L. Matchett, Maggie McCaffrey, Cynthia Cochran, 2020-10-07 For the most part those who teach writing and administer writing programs do not conduct research on writing Perhaps more significantly they do not often read the research done by others because effective reading of articles on empirical research requires special knowledge and abilities By and large those responsible for maintaining and improving writing instruction cannot without further training access work that could help them carry out their responsibilities more effectively This book is designed as a text in graduate programs that offer instruction in rhetoric and composition Its primary educational purposes are to provide models and critical methods designed to improve the reading of scientific discourse to provide models of effective research designs and projects appropriate to those learning to do empirical research in rhetoric Aiming to cultivate new attitudes toward empirical research this volume encourages an appreciation of the rhetorical tradition that informs the production and critical reading of empirical studies The book should also reinforce a slowly growing realization in English studies that empirical methods are not inherently alien to the humanities rather that methods extend the power of humanist researchers trying to solve the problems of their discipline The Reading/writing Connection Carol Booth Olson, 2007 This is an especially well researched and documented text the author's voice is one that is knowledgeable yet does not intend to intimidate She speaks to her audience as a dedicated professional to professional I could only hope that my students would read and retain her words of wisdom Anna L Bolling California State University Stanislaus I haven't seen any books that come close to what Carol Olson has developed Harry Noden Kent State University The illustrations and scanned in documents make Booth Olson's book readable interesting relevant and real life These visuals from actual students help transform her ideas from theory into practice Kathy Bussert Webb The University of Texas at Brownsville This is the only secondary text that I have found to explain and provide authentic examples of reading writing workshop process The activities are practical and motivating Hurray for Olson Donna Uebler Bradley University Now in its second edition The Reading Writing Connection features an array of individual reading and writing strategies activities and mini lessons that teachers can implement in their classrooms Well respected author Carol Booth Olson extends far beyond most books intended for teachers of language arts by integrating reading and writing in creative theory based ways Lauded by students and professors as a clear and straightforward text this revised and updated edition includes plenty of material about teaching the writing process and responding to literature and provides examples of lessons that help readers learn specific strategies Unique in its field The Reading Writing Connection provides student models at middle and high school levels in almost every chapter illustrating actual student responses to reading and writing activities The text is also rich with literary selections giving teachers easy access to the literature featured in the activities and demonstration lessons Features New to the Second Edition Extensive coverage of differentiated instruction for English Language Learners A new chapter entitled Introducing Students to the Cognitive Strategies in Their Mental Tool Kits that summarizes and clarifies students use of cognitive strategies in their thinking An extensive and revised companion website that features reading and writing rubrics student models blackline masters of graphic organizers and much more available at www.ablongman.com/olson2e
