Excerpt from Readings in English Prose of the Nineteenth Century This volume appears in continuation of the plan which was initiated with a collection of Readings in English Prose of the Eighteenth Century and with a single exception is made in accordance with the same principles that is it undertakes to give a sufficient body of prose readings for the use of those engaged in the general study of English literature in the period in question In the nineteenth century however the mass of material is so great that it has seemed best to abandon the effort to represent the minor prose writers of interest less for intrinsic worth than for their relation to particular ideas and movements and to confine the volume to those of major importance in pure literature exclusive of fiction While many of the names thus omitted such as Southey and Leigh Hunt for example in the earlier period and Borrow and Leslie Stephen in the later are tantalizingly attractive yet the thirteen chosen writers stand out so clearly from among their contemporaries that it happens that not a single additional name was recommended for admission by those critics who were kind enough to look over the editor's list Besides these space has been found rather illogically but on what appear to be imperative grounds of utility for some representation of the great reviews of the early nineteenth century for to study the age of Wordsworth Coleridge and Keats without some acquaintance with the reviewers is out of the question and their work is usually more inaccessible than anything else in this volume Complete compositions other things being equal have of course been preferred or sections chapters and the like having the same independent character Where omissions have been made they are indicated scrupulously About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Readings in English Prose of the Nineteenth Century Raymond MacDonald Alden, 2014-03 This Is A New Release Of The Original 1917 Edition Readings in English Prose of the Nineteenth Century Raymond MacDonald Alden, 2015-10-16 This work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it This work was reproduced from the original artifact and remains as true to the original work as possible Therefore you will see the original copyright references library stamps as most of these works have been housed in our most important libraries around the world and other notations in the work This work is in the public domain in the United States of America and possibly other nations Within the United States you may freely copy and

Readings in English Prose of the Nineteenth Century, Vol. 2 (Classic Reprint) Raymond MacDonald Alden, 2015-07-04 Excerpt from Readings in English Prose of the Nineteenth Century Vol 2 Published in Fraser's Magazine for May a review of Croker's edition of the Life and incidentally a reply to Macaulay's account of Boswell in his review of the same work Boswell has already been much commented upon but rather in the way of censure and vituperation than of true recognition He was a man that brought himself much before the world confessed that he eagerly coveted fame or if that were not possible notoriety of which latter as he gained far more than seemed his due the public were incited not only by their natural love of scandal but by a special ground of envy to say whatever ill of him could be said Out of the fifteen millions that then lived and had bed and board in the British islands this man has provided us a greater pleasure than any other individual at whose cost we now enjoy ourselves perhaps has done us a greater service than can be specially attributed to more than two or three yet ungrateful that we are no written or spoken eulogy of James Boswell anywhere exists his recompense in solid pudding so far as copyright went was not excessive and as for the empty praise it has altogether been denied him Men are unwiser than children they do not know the hand that feeds them Boswell was a person whose mean or bad qualities lay open to the general eye visible palpable to the dullest His good qualities again belonged not to the time he lived in were far from common then indeed in such a degree were almost unexampled not recognizable therefore by every one nay apt even so strange had they grown to be confounded with the very vices they lay contiguous to and had sprung out of About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Readings in English

Prose of the Eighteenth Century (Classic Reprint) Raymond MacDonald Alden, 2017-09-17 Excerpt from Readings in English Prose of the Eighteenth Century The principles governing the choice of selections may be briefly explained In the first place it was thought well to represent the half dozen more or less most important prose writers of the century by fairly generous and complete specimens of their work approximating some twenty to thirty thousand words each These selections cover in the experience of the editor the assignments of prescribed reading set for one or two weeks in college courses dealing with the century as a whole The authors thus largely represented are Defoe Swift Steele Addison Johnson Boswell and Burke About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Catalog Issue Wheaton College (Ill.), 1928 Announcement Barnard College, 1924
