Upload this completed word doc into your Lab Notebook

Summary: This practical will help you design your own experiment and help you test your own hypothesis that you have developed yourselves. You'll also learn about animal contests, and how various traits affect contest outcomes.

The aim of this practical is to give you hands on experience testing a hypothesis so you will have a better idea of what constitutes the Scientific Method. You will learn how to develop a hypothesis and a methodology to test it.

You will be given two scientific papers to read before you start your experiment.

While reading the paper, pay attention to the hypothesis the researchers were testing. See if you can figure out why they were interested in this hypothesis. Take note of the methods they used and try to understand why they chose those methods and whether this allowed them to answer their hypothesis. Then see how they analysed and visualised their data in the results, and what their conclusions were.

Answer the following questions for one of the papers. Still read both papers though for comparison and later discussion.

➤ What is their question?

To examine whether the success of male-male fights is influenced by the UV reflectance of the nuptial throat patch of male European green lizards.

➤ Why did they ask this question/why is this research important?

Animal communication through colour signals is very important in sexual selection.

➤ What methods did they use to answer this question?

Some males nuptial throats were treated with UV-reducing agents. They were then pitted against males without UV-reducing agents to see whether they would be more likely to win or lose a fight (if escape the other lizard = loser, if maintain aggression and other lizard escapes = winner)
