Representative Men Ralph Waldo Emerson,2020-04-21 is natural to believe in great men If the companions of our childhood should turn out to be heroes and their condition regal it would not surprise us All mythology opens with demigods and the circumstance is high and poetic that is their genius is paramount In the legends of the Gautama the first men ate the earth and found it deliciously sweet Nature seems to exist for the excellent The world is upheld by the veracity of good men they make the earth wholesome They who lived with them found life glad and nutritious Life is sweet and tolerable only in our belief in such society and actually or ideally we manage to live with superiors We call our children and our lands by their names Their names are wrought into the verbs of language their works and effigies are in our houses and every circumstance of the day recalls an anecdote of them The search after the great is the dream of youth and the most serious occupation of manhood We travel into foreign parts to find his works if possible to get a glimpse of him But we are put off with fortune instead You say the English are practical the Germans are hospitable in Valencia the climate is delicious and in the hills of Sacramento there is gold for the gathering Yes but I do not travel to find comfortable rich and hospitable people or clear sky or ingots that cost too much But if there were any magnet that would point to the countries and houses where are the persons who are intrinsically rich and powerful I would sell all and buy it and put myself on the road to day The race goes with us on their credit The knowledge that in the city is a man who invented the railroad raises the credit of all the citizens But enormous populations if they be beggars are disgusting like moving cheese like hills of ants or of fleas the more the
