Censorship & Cultural Regulation in the Modern Age Beate Müller, 2004 Censorship has become a fashionable topic not only because of newly available archival material from Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union but also because the new censorship inspired by the works of Foucault and Bourdieu has widened the very concept of censorship beyond its conventional boundaries This volume uses these new materials and perspectives to address the relationship of censorship to cultural selection processes such as canon formation economic forces social exclusion professional marginalization silencing through specialized discourses communicative norms and other forms of control and regulation Two articles in this collection investigate these issues theoretically The remaining eight contributions address the issues by investigating censorial practice across time and space
