Toward a Recovery of Nineteenth Century Farming Handbooks

While researching texts written about nineteenth century farming, I found a few authors who published books about the literature of nineteenth century farming, particularly agricultural journals, newspapers, pamphlets, and brochures. These authors often placed the farming literature they were studying into an historical context by discussing the important events in agriculture of the year in which the literature was published (see Demaree, for example). However, while these authors discuss journals, newspapers, pamphlets, and brochures, I could not find much discussion about another important source of farming knowledge: farming handbooks. My goal in this paper is to bring this source into the agricultural literature discussion by connecting three agricultural handbooks from the nineteenth century with nineteenth century agricultural history.

To achieve this goal, I have organized my paper into four main sections, two of which have sub-sections. In the first section, I provide an account of three important events in nineteenth century agricultural history: population and technological changes, the distribution of scientific new knowledge, and farming's influence on education. In the second section, I discuss three nineteenth century farming handbooks in connection with the important events described in the first section. I end my paper

Titles are centered and written in 12-point, Times New Roman font. The title is not bolded, underlined, or italicized.

The thesis statement usually is the last sentence of the introduction.

The thesis is a clear position that you will support and develop throughout your paper. This sentence guides or controls your paper.

MLA requires double-spacing throughout a document; do not single-space any part of the document.

The introductory paragraph, or introduction, should set the context for the rest of the paper. Tell your readers why you are writing and why your topic is important.

If your paper is long, you may want to write about how your paper is organized. This will help your readers follow your ideas.

Museums and Education Eilean

Hooper-Greenhill,2007-12-12 At the beginning of the 21st century museums are challenged on a number of fronts The prioritisation of learning in museums in the context of demands for social justice and cultural democracy combined with cultural policy based on economic rationalism forces museums to review their educational purposes redesign their pedagogies and account for their performance The need to theorise learning and culture for a cultural theory of learning is very pressing If culture acts as a process of signification a means of producing meaning that shapes worldviews learning in museums and other cultural organisations is potentially dynamic and profound producing self identities How is this complexity to be measured What can this measurement reveal about the character of museum based learning The calibration of culture is an international phenomenon and the measurement of the outcomes and impact of learning in museums in England has provided a detailed case study Three national evaluation studies were carried out between 2003 and 2006 based on the conceptual framework of Generic Learning Outcomes Using this revealing data Museums and Education reveals the power of museum pedagogy and as it does questions are raised about traditional museum culture and the potential and challenge for museum futures is suggested

Plagiarism Bill Marsh,2012-02-01 Plagiarism takes an in depth look at the history of plagiarism in higher education in light of today s Web based plagiarism detection services Challenging the widespread assumption that plagiarism is a simple matter of student cheating or scriptural error Bill Marsh argues that today s teachers and educational institutions may be cheating themselves and their students in pursuing quick fix solutions to the so called epidemic of student plagiarism When students submit papers cribbed from materials found on the Web or purchase research papers from Internet paper mills these acts of sedition must also be recognized for better or worse as examples of new media composition techniques Examining Web based plagiarism detection services and software such as Glatt EVE Plagiarism Finder and Turnitin com Marsh contends that these services regulate writing and reading practices in ways consistent with precomputer even preindustrial efforts to manage and refine human behavior As he weaves together print history education rhetoric and communication theory Marsh shows that the rules governing plagiarism and the proper use of borrowed materials have their origins in early intellectual property law in the reading practices of twelfth century monks and the precepts of medieval alchemy Through an examination of these prescholastic models this book calls for a revised approach to academic writing in computer mediated environments
