Excerpt from Theism Atheism and the Popular Theology Theodore Parker once said The religion I preach will be the religion of enlightened men for the next thousand years The central principle of this Absolute Religion as he termed it was a lofty and fervent Theism To Parker the human faculties were fully adequate to find such spiritual truth and guidance as they might need The knowledge thus imparted was intuitive in the sense that God Duty and Immortality are perceived at first hand and not mediated by sense perceptions individual and racial experiences or external revelations Belief in God as absolute wisdom goodness and love enthroned in the universe he held to be independent of external demonstration Revealed in feeling tempered by reason and controlled by conscience it is the central nerve of personal and social religion From it flows all power pity peace In proportion as this inward witness is rejected and recourse had to external authority symbolic rites artificial substitutes or historic mediators the religious life becomes unreal and ineffective It does not abide in the light of God s own countenance but gropes in the shadows cast by some great soul who knew God at first hand rejoiced in His presence received His inspirations and did not need to seek Him through physical contact in the consecrated wafer or the testimony of a written Scripture or to adore Him in the eidolon of a human Saviour Theodore Parker was the prophet of this pure Theism this absolute religion of humanity possible to all kinds and conditions of men and good for all times About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Cashdollar,2014-07-14 Charles Cashdollar reinterprets nineteenth century British and American Protestant thought by identifying positivism as the central intellectual issue of the era Positivism meant at first the ideas of the French thinker Auguste Comte later in the century the term indicated a more general opposition to supernatural religion Cashdollar shows that contemporary thinkers recognized positivism at each of these stages as the most fundamental of the proliferating challenges to religious belief He further reveals how the encounter with positivism altered Protestant orthodoxy in both subtle and radical ways Positivists denied that humans could know anything other than physical phenomena Declaring many orthodox beliefs archaic they proposed a new ethically based vision of service to humanity After portraying the dissemination of these positions among British and American Protestants the author explains how each of several groups reacted A few theologians rejected positivism outright but many more responded by recasting their own beliefs The implications of this story of change extend to such topics as Darwinism Biblical criticism the rise of the social sciences theological liberalism and the Social Gospel the beginnings of fundamentalism and the twentieth century debate about creationism and science Originally published in 1989 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905 The American Quarterly Church Review ,1859
