Metacognition and Cognitive Neuropsychology Giuliana Mazzoni, Thomas O. Nelson, 2014-05-12. Control processes are those mental functions that allow us to initiate, monitor and prioritize mental activities. They are crucial to normal mental functioning A better understanding of the nature of control processes and their deficits is important for clinical work and for an adequate theory of consciousness Previously control processes have been examined within the frameworks of two parallel but independent paradigms those of cognitive psychology and of neuropsychology Cognitive psychologists have stressed the theoretical and empirical nature of normal unimpaired control processes neuropsychologists have focused on the relationships between damage to specific functional areas of the brain and deficits in specific control processes Both have contributed extensively to our understanding of control processes However they have tended to operate independently with little if any cross talk between disciplines despite the potential benefits such dialogue is likely to generate This book represents the first attempt to synthesize cognitive and neuropsychological perspectives on control processes It contains state of the art reports on various aspects of control processes by experts from both disciplines Twenty-First Annual Conference on Manual Control ,1986 Quasi-Experimentation Charles S. Lee,Alex Kirlik,M. J. Dainoff,2013-03-07 This handbook is the first to provide comprehensive coverage of original state of the science research analysis and design of integrated human technology systems Singapore Studies Beng Huat Chua,Basant Kapur,1986 This edition brings up to date a decade of research work developments of the Faculty of Arts and Social Science National University of Singapore since the first volume was published in 1985 The state of the respective disciplines covered are reviewed in terms of notable theoretical and conceptual developments major benchmarks during the past decade and research lacunae that need to be addressed as well as their substantive developments and contributions in the Singapore context and possible future directions resulting in a collection of essays that places the Faculty s studies in an international comparative framework
