Biomedicine and Deliberative Governance Katerina Sideri, 2016-04-08 Biomedical patents have been the subject of heated debate Regulatory agencies such as the European Patent Office make small decisions with big implications which escape scrutiny and revision when they decide who has access to expensive diagnostic tests whether human embryonic stem cells can be traded in markets and under what circumstances human health is more important than animal welfare Moreover the administration of the Trade Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights by the World Trade Organization has raised considerable disquiet as it has arguably created grave health inequities Those doubting the merits of the one size fits all approach ask whether priority should be given to serving the present needs of populations in dire need of medication or to promoting global innovation The book looks in detail into the legal issues and ethical debates to ask the following three main questions First what are the ideas goals and broader ethical visions that underpin questions of governance and the legal reasoning employed by administrative agencies Second how can we democratize the decision making process of technocratic institutions such as the European Patent Office Finally how can we make the global intellectual property system more equitable In answering these questions the book seeks to contribute to our understanding of the role and function of regulatory agencies in the regulation of the bioeconomy explains the process of interpretation of legal norms and proposes ways to rethink the reform of the patent system through the lens of legitimacy      Memories and Representations of Terror Daniel Feierstein, 2023-10-06 Memories and Representations of Terror Working Through Genocide explores how memories and representations shape our understanding of historical events particularly the ways in which societies create narratives about genocide and its aftermath using Argentina's last military dictatorship 1976-1983 and its contested legacy as a case study Feierstein examines how memories and representations of genocide are the terrain in which both the strategic objectives of genocide and the possibilities of challenging those objectives are contested These memories and representations provide the foundation upon which critical judgments about the past are constructed and offer the potential for assuming responsibility and working through the consequences of genocide This book proposes that terror continues to hijack the actions and identities of surviving societies via a process of the construction of memories and social representations of the lived experience in a final stage of genocide Feierstein terms symbolic enactment In doing so Feierstein examines the contributions of various disciplines to comprehending memory processes and social representations It covers a range of topics from the nature of memory based on the neuroscientific discoveries of the last half century to psychoanalytic theories on the functioning of the mind including the role of psychic defense mechanisms the unconscious mind collective pacts of denial and different forms of desensitization It also explores historiographical debates between forms of history and forms of memory as well as sociological contributions to the analysis of social frames of memory cultural
