Practice, Judgment, and the Challenge of Moral and Political Disagreement Roberto Frega, 2012-04-05 Practice Judgment and the Challenge of Moral and Political Disagreement A Pragmatist Account offers an account of moral and political disagreement explaining its nature and showing how we should deal with it In so doing it strikes a middle path between troublesome dualisms such as those of realism and relativism rationality and imagination power and justification To do so the book draws on the resources of the pragmatist tradition claiming that this tradition offers solutions that have for the most part been neglected by the contemporary debate To prove this claim the book provides a large account of debates within this tradition and engages its best solutions with contemporary philosophical theories such as perfectionism critical theory moral realism and liberalism The question of the nature of disagreement is addressed both at the general theoretical level and more specifically with reference to moral and political forms of disagreement At the more general level the book proposes a theory of practical rationality based upon the notion of rationality as inquiry At the second more specific level it aims to show that this conception can solve timely problems that relates to the nature of moral and political reasoning

Teachers and the Epistemology of History Henrik Åström Elmersjö, Paul Zazanian, 2024-06-25 This edited book explores conceptual as well as empirical approaches to epistemic beliefs that teachers of history might hold In many parts of the world history teachers are tasked with both upholding historical national myths and at the same time giving students the tools needed to deconstruct history and think critically This ambiguity embedded in the combination of reconstruction and deconstruction is a difficult landscape for teachers to navigate The chapters of this book therefore explore how teachers reason regarding the epistemic nature of history and how this impacts their teaching interpretation of curricula and relationship to their students Contributions consider the implications for prospective history teachers and in service training challenges to the field and point to ways forward The book will be of interest to academics and students of history education as well as practising teachers and museum curators This is an open access book Exploring Philosophy: A

Ridderikhoff, 2012-12-06 Clinicians spend their working lives making decisions such decisions are usually made in interlocking streams rather than in the discrete circumscribed contexts so beloved of scientists When the clinician encounters a patient a complex interactive process is initiated in which the clinician searches his memory to match the symptoms and signs indicated by the patient with the complex disease models which he carries in his head He then makes choices about further questions or tests in order to clarify his understanding of the patient's problem and to formulate a management or treatment plan In recent years there has been increasing interest in how clinicians make such decisions and a realization that decision making in clinical medicine is virtually the same as that in many other professional contexts The scientific study and formal teaching of clinical decision making is a relatively young discipline Less than 20 books have so far appeared which take explicit account of the theoretical and experimental decision making literature in medicine and other related disciplines This book is a distinctive and important contribution to this growing field It combines a comprehensive critical analysis of a wide range of relevant philosophical statistical psychological and medical literature with an interesting set of experimental observations of primary care physicians Dr Ridderikhoff shows great erudition and wide command of a large reference literature Dr Ridderikhoff takes a firmly descriptive rather than prescriptive viewpoint on understanding clinical decision making
