Perspectives on Memory Research Lars-Göran Nilsson, 2014      Perspectives on Memory Research (PLE:Memory)

Lars-Göran Nilsson, 2014-05-09 Originally published in 1979 this book contains papers presented at a conference held in 1977 to celebrate the 500th anniversary of the University of Uppsala. Beyond the commemoration the main reason for this conference was to get students of memory together to discuss and evaluate the memory research that had already been carried out, was presently underway and to speculate about the type of research in this area that would be carried out in the future. The contributors were specifically asked to concentrate on overall theoretical and metatheoretical questions at the cost of empirical problems. With chapters from many of the leading experts in the field, this is an opportunity to enjoy some of their early insights.

Persuasive Communication Richard Young, 2016-07-15 This updated and expanded edition of Persuasive Communication offers a comprehensive introduction to persuasion and real world decision making. Drawing on empirical research from social psychology, neuroscience, business communication, research, cognitive science, and behavioral economics, Young reveals the thought processes of many different audiences, from investors to CEOs, to help students better understand why audiences make the decisions they make and how to influence them. The book covers a broad range of communication techniques, richly illustrated with compelling examples, including resumes, speeches, and slide presentations, to help students recognize persuasive methods that do and do not work. A detailed analysis of the emotions and biases that go into decision making arms students with perceptive insights into human behavior and helps them apply this understanding with various decision making aids. Students will learn how to impact potential employers, clients, and other audiences essential to their success. This book will prove fascinating to many and especially useful for students of persuasion, rhetoric, and business communication.

Raising Parents Patricia Crittenden, 2017-09-19 Helping troubled parents to raise their children adequately is of crucial importance for parents, their children, and society at large. Distressed parents have themselves often been endangered and as a consequence sometimes endanger their children either through maltreatment or through the effects of parental psychiatric disorder. Raising Parents explains how that happens and clusters parents in terms of the psychological processes that result in maladaptive childrearing. The book then delineates DMM Integrative Treatment in terms of assessment, formulation, and treatment. New formulations are offered for problems that have resisted treatment, and cases demonstrate how the ideas can be applied in real treatment settings. The book closes with 10 suggestions for improving professionals' responses to troubled families and endangered children. This edition of Raising Parents introduces DMM Integrative Treatment and demonstrates how to use it with vulnerable families. DMM Integrative Treatment is an interpersonal process, and this book will be essential reading for clinicians from all disciplines, including psychiatry and psychology social work nursing and all types of psychotherapy      Improving Reading and Reading Engagement in the 21st Century Clarence Ng, Brendan Bartlett, 2017-05-31 This book presents cutting edge research findings in areas critical to advancing reading research in the 21st century context including new literacies reading motivation strategy instruction and reading intervention studies While students reading performance is currently receiving unprecedented attention there is a lack of research that adopts an international perspective and draws on research expertise from different parts of the world to present a concerted effort discussing key research models and findings on how to improve reading education Addressing this gap in the literature the book also responds to the challenge of promoting higher levels of literacy and supporting and developing readers who can enjoy and critique texts of every genre      Development in Context Robert H. Wozniak, Kurt W. Fischer, 2014-02-04 In this volume leading developmentalists address the question of how children s thinking develops in context by drawing on the theories of Vygotsky Gibson and Piaget Analyses of the ecology and the dynamics of behavior have become popular emphasizing the particulars of people acting in specific environments and the many complex factors of human body and mind that contribute to action and thought This volume brings together many of the current efforts to deal with development in this richly ecological dynamic way The research reported demonstrates that recent years have produced major shifts in approach Activities are studied as they naturally occur in everyday contexts Children s active construction of the world around them is treated as fundamentally social in nature occurring in families with peers and in cultures Behavior is studied not as something disembodied but within a rich matrix of body emotion belief value and physical world Behavior is analyzed as changing dynamically not only over seconds and minutes but over hours days and years      Persistence and Change W. H. Warren, Jr., R. E. Shaw, 2013-08-21 First published in 1985 This series of volumes is dedicated to furthering the development of psychology as a branch of ecological science In its broadest sense ecology is a multidisciplinary approach to the study of living systems their environments and the reciprocity that has evolved between the two The purpose of this series is to form a useful collection a resource for people who wish to learn about ecological psychology and for those who wish to contribute to its development The series will include original research collected papers reports of conferences and symposia theoretical monographs technical handbooks and works from the many disciplines relevant to ecological psychology This volume holds proceedings papers      Raising Parents Patricia M. Crittenden, 2013-04-03 This book provides a systematic account of parental behaviour and the means of identifying and addressing inadequate parenting It is intended for professionals who work with children or adults who were harmed as children and its central concern is with parents who endanger their children or whose children may endanger themselves or others Understanding and helping troubled parents to become secure and balanced people is of crucial importance for the parents themselves for their children and for society at large This book is a guide to understanding parents as people who have children as opposed to seeing them as existing solely in terms of their ability to fulfill their children s needs The book shares equally a respect for theory empirical science and social values and applications It aims to provide a springboard for new lines of research e g around the role of danger in eliciting inadequate parental behavior and the interdependency of parent and child behaviour as well as a guide for clinicians and professionals who must protect both disturbed individuals and the public to understand their clients patients better both parents and children Raising Parents will be essential reading for professionals and practitioners in the field including psychologists psychotherapists psychiatrists and social workers as well as those taking courses in attachment and psychopathology developmental psychology clinical psychology and behavioural courses in psychiatry Vision and Mind Alva Noë, Evan Thompson, 2002-10-25 The philosophy of perception is a microcosm of the metaphysics of mind Its central problems What is perception What is the nature of perceptual consciousness How can one fit an account of perceptual experience into a broader account of the nature of the mind and the world are at the heart of metaphysics Rather than try to cover all of the many strands in the philosophy of perception this book focuses on a particular orthodoxy about the nature of visual perception The central problem for visual science has been to explain how the brain bridges the gap between what is given to the visual system and what is actually experienced by the perceiver The orthodox view of perception is that it is a process whereby the brain or a dedicated subsystem of the brain builds up representations of relevant figures of the environment on the basis of information encoded by the sensory receptors Most adherents of the orthodox view also believe that for every conscious perceptual state of the subject there is a particular set of neurons whose activities are sufficient for the occurrence of that state Some of the essays in this book defend the orthodoxy most criticize it and some propose alternatives to it Many of the essays are classics Contributors G E M Anscombe Dana Ballard Daniel Dennett Fred Dretske Jerry Fodor H P Grice David Marr Maurice Merleau Ponty Zenon Pylyshyn Paul Snowdon and P F Strawson , Annual Review of Gerontology and Geriatrics, Volume 7, 1987 K. Warner Schaie, PhD, 1987-11-15 This volume of the ARGG is devoted to the behavioral sciences with particular attention given to topics in experimental and applied psychology With the rapid rate of research in this field of aging the contributors address a number of important basic and applied topics that are underrepresented in other literature Composition As a Human Science Louise Wetherbee Phelps, 1991-07-25 This groundbreaking collection of essays is one of the first works to reflect directly and systematically on the conceptual and ethical basis for composition studies as a new discipline of written language Phelps articulates a philosophy of composition generous enough to accommodate all the strands of current work without being overly eclectic an open framework subject to modification and addition as the field develops She draws on wide reading in the humanities and social sciences including cognitive science linguistics literary theory education philosophy hermeneutics rhetoric and psychology to define the contribution and place of composition studies within the larger intellectual and cultural community The book will therefore interest theorists and scholars in a wide variety of fields Handbook of Cognitive Science Paco Calvo, Toni Gomila, 2008-11-05 The Handbook of Cognitive Science provides an overview of recent developments in cognition research relying upon non classical approaches Cognition is explained as the continuous interplay between brain body and environment without relying on classical notions of computations and representation to explain cognition The handbook serves as a valuable companion for readers interested in foundational aspects of cognitive science and neuroscience and the philosophy of mind The handbook begins with an introduction to embodied cognitive science and then breaks up the chapters into separate sections on conceptual issues formal approaches embodiment in perception and action embodiment from an artificial perspective embodied meaning and emotion and consciousness Contributors to the book represent research overviews from around the globe including the US UK Spain Germany Switzerland France Sweden and the Netherlands

Perception of Print Ovid J.L. Tzeng, Harry Singer, 2017-03-27 In the late 1970s reading research had become a true interdisciplinary endeavour with flavours of anthropology artificial intelligence cognitive psychology educational psychology linguistics neuroscience and instructional technology Given appropriate integration results from these diverse perspectives can enhance our understanding of reading behaviour tremendously both in its acquisition and in its skilled functioning Thus the enthusiasm for such interdisciplinary interaction had been quite intense for some time In the years before publication the National Reading Conference had been doing everything possible to accelerate this interaction Originally published in 1981 the chapters in this book are the fruits of that effort The research focuses on specifying skills in identifying alphabetical elements and the rules that govern their combination on constructing models that characterize the recognition of individual words and the interpretation of texts and on discovering what factors are responsible for blocking the normal acquisition process in many children Chapters 2 to 12 of this book reflect these changing foci They are nevertheless sandwiched by two chapters that deal with the historical background and future outlook of reading instruction Environments of

Intelligence Hajo Greif, 2017-09-01 What is the role of the environment and of the information it provides in cognition More specifically may there be a role for certain artefacts to play in this context These are questions that motivate 4E theories of cognition as being embodied embedded extended enactive In his take on that family of views Hajo Greif first defends and refines a concept of information as primarily natural environmentally embedded in character which had been eclipsed by information processing views of cognition He continues with an inquiry into the cognitive bearing of some artefacts that are sometimes referred to as intelligent environments Without necessarily having much to do with Artificial Intelligence such artefacts may ultimately modify our informational environments With respect to human cognition the most notable effect of digital computers is not that they might be able or become able to think but that they alter the way we perceive think and act The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.tandfebooks.com/doi/view/10.4324/9781315401867> has been made available under a Creative Commons CC BY licence The Mind's We Diane Gillespie, 1992 In a journey to the theoretical roots of human psychology Diane Gillespie defends the concept of contextualism in a field in which mechanism has prevailed Gillespie explains both theories in a historical overview of cognitive psychology and then contrasts them in three chapters on visual perception memory and categorization She clarifies the inadequacy of mechanism as the sole model of cognition by including narratives based on her own life that focus on the dynamic ways we interact with the world Providing a subtheme of contemporary concern Gillespie argues that a psychological theory open to everyday contexts has important implications for women whose perspectives have been underrepresented in the literature of cognitive psychology She does not posit contextualism as the next exclusive viewpoint but suggests instead a pluralism with no one viewpoint overshadowing the others

Event Cognition Viki McCabe, Gerald J. Balzano, 2014-02-24 This series of volumes is dedicated to furthering the development of psychology as a branch of ecological science In its broadest sense ecology is a multidisciplinary approach to the study of living systems their environments and the reciprocity that has evolved between the two The purpose of this series is to form a useful collection a resource for people who wish to learn about ecological psychology and for those who wish to contribute to its development The series will include original research collected papers reports of conferences and symposia theoretical monographs technical handbooks and works from the many disciplines relevant to ecological psychology

Parenting Representations Ofra Mayseless, 2006-04-10 The study of parents from their own perspective not just as socializing agents of their children has been long neglected This book summarizes and presents the new and surging literature on parenting representations namely parents views emotions and internal world regarding their parenting Within this area several prominent researchers typically coming from the attachment tradition suggested various ways of assessing parenting representations mostly by way of semi structured interviews This book presents their conceptualizations and includes detailed descriptions of their interviews and their coding schemes In addition a review and summary of the growing number of findings in this domain and an integrated conceptualization that serves a theoretical base for future research are presented Finally the clinical implications of the study of parenting representations are discussed at large Clinical notions and conceptualizations regarding parenting representations are presented and thoroughly discussed including detailed case studies that demonstrate among other things intergenerational transmission of representations
