GATT, WTO and the Regulation of International Trade in Textiles Claudia Jiménez Cortés, 2018-08-20 Published in 1997 in this book an attempt has been made to analyze the legal structure of GATT and the WTO as well as those agreements which control trade in textiles One of the GATT s major failures was its inability to come into line with the new economic reality and the needs of those states who created this system for controlling international trade Trade in textiles was an excellent example of this Now the WTO aims to overcome this problem thanks to its greater pragmatism and its search for solutions to free trade difficulties The WTO is not however the perfect solution Its highly political character allows room for improvement even though the key to its success still lies with the effective cooperation of member states As for the textile sector this new panorama for trade in goods provides it with a new opportunity to finally return to the general legal framework in the year 2005

liberalize services and has locked in some pre GATS liberalization What is missing he contends is a GATS Think that would generate liberalization from now on efficient This is a question that is only scarcely if ever analysed in existing literature Boris Rigod aims to provide an answer to this fundamental concern Using the tools of economic analysis and in particular the concept of economic efficiency as a benchmark the author states that domestic regulatory measures should only be subject to scrutiny by WTO bodies when they cause negative international externalities through terms of trade manipulations He then suggests that WTO law applied by the WTO judiciary can prevent WTO members from attaining optimal levels of regulation By applying a law and economics methodology Rigod provides an innovative solution to the problem of how to reconcile members regulatory autonomy and WTO rules as well as offering a novel analytical framework for assessing domestic regulations in the light of WTO law

International Trade Regulation Jianfu Chen, Zhiqiong June Wang, 2024-10-07 The international trade regulatory system is a dynamic system that has been evolving throughout its history Tension and conflict are part of the system While calls for the abolition of the principal trade regulation authority the WTO have failed to understand this nature of the system proponents for reforms have so far not paid sufficient attention to the evolving nature of tension and conflict This book examines the evolving dynamics in international trade regulation from the conclusion of GATT in 1947 to the current crisis facing the WTO from a perspective of emerging powers of developing countries with a focus of China as the latest force that demands reforms of the international trade regulatory regime There is an extensive body of scholarship on ideological struggles the rise of developing countries geopolitical contest the emerging powers especially China the use misuse or abuse of trading rules and so on There is however a lack of a single concise research book that synthesises these underlying causes and factors into a coherent and precise analytical theme This book attempts to fill this research gap by building upon the existing scholarship and placing the various tensions and conflicts in a perspective that treats them as dynamic factors that have propelled a continuing process of evolution of the international trade regulation The book will interest those researching on international trade regulation as well as development studies
