Reinventing Eden:

Reinventing Eden Carolyn Merchant, 2013 Visionary quests to return to the Garden of Eden have shaped Western culture from Columbus voyages to today's tropical island retreats. Few narratives are so powerful and as Carolyn Merchant shows so misguided and destructive as the dream of recapturing a lost paradise. A sweeping account of these quixotic endeavors by one of America's leading environmentalists, Reinventing Eden traces the idea of rebuilding the primeval garden from its origins to its latest incarnations in shopping malls, theme parks, and gated communities. With eloquence and insight, Merchant shows how the drive to conquer nature and to explore and settle the globe springs from this utopian pastoral impulse throughout Western history. Time and again, human manipulation of the environment is our downfall. Eden is achieved by fencing off pristine beauty in national parks and wildlife preserves while leaving the majority of the earth in ruins. Challenging both narratives, Merchant argues that the green veneer of city park conservation has become a cover for the corruption of the earth and the neglect of its environment. Reinventing Eden is a bold new way to think about the earth that includes green political parties, sustainable development, and a partnership between humans and earth that is nothing short of an ecological revolution.

Embodiment and the New Shape of Black Theological Thought Anthony B. Pinn, 2010-06-01 Black theology tends to be a theology about no body. Though one might assume that black and womanist theology have already given significant attention to the nature and meaning of black bodies as a theological issue, this inquiry has primarily taken the form of a focus on issues relating to liberation, treating the body in abstract terms rather than focusing on the experiencing of a material, fleshy reality. By focusing on the body as a physical entity and not just a metaphorical one, Pinn offers a new approach to theological thinking about race, gender, and sexuality. According to Pinn, the body is of profound theological importance. In this first text on black theology to take embodiment as its starting point and its goal Pinn interrogates the traditional source materials for black theology such as spirituals and slave narratives seeking to link them to materials such as photography that highlight the theological importance of the body Employing a multidisciplinary approach spanning from the sociology of the body and philosophy to anthropology and art history Embodiment and the New Shape of Black Theological Thought pushes black theology to the next level

Recognizing the Autonomy of Nature Thomas Heyd, 2005-11-09 How do the ways in which we think about and describe nature shape the use and protection of the environment Do our seemingly well intentioned efforts in environmental conservation reflect a respect for nature or our desire to control nature s wildness The contributors to this collection address these and other questions as they explore the theoretical and practical implications of a crucial aspect of environmental philosophy and policy the autonomy of nature In focusing on the recognition and meaning of nature's autonomy and linking issues of metaphysics epistemology ethics and policy the essays provide a variety of new perspectives on human relationships to nature The authors begin by exploring what is meant by nature in what sense it can be seen as autonomous and what respect for the autonomy of nature might entail They examine the conflicts that arise between the satisfaction of human needs food shelter etc and the natural world The contributors also consider whether the activities of human beings contribute to nature's autonomy In their investigation of these issues they not only draw on philosophy and ethics they also discuss how the idea of nature's autonomy affects policy decisions regarding the protection of agricultural rural and beach areas The essays in the book's final section turn to management and restoration practices The essays in this section pay close attention to how efforts at environmental protection alter or reinforce the traditional relationship between humans and nature More specifically the contributors examine whether management practices as they are applied in nature conservation actually promote the autonomy of nature or whether they turn the environment into a client for policymakers

The Age of Capitalism, Consumer Culture, and the Collapse of Nature in the Anthropocene Jack Thornburg, 2024-10-02 The Age of Capitalism Consumer Culture and the Collapse of Nature in the Anthropocene argues that the stability of post industrial postmodern society is threatened by the convergence of three distinct yet interrelated crises environmental degradation capitalist economic development and the primacy of consumption and self absorption as the basis for economic development at the expense of community and social relationships Jack Thornburg contrasts advanced modern society with indigenous cultures in terms of nature and conceptions of the communal self The complex nature of capitalist oriented society has influenced how individuals conceptualize themselves The outcome the author contends is a competitive society in which individuals are alienated living in uncertain times One consequence of these crises all of which derive from the Enlightenment and the concomitant appearance and evolution of capitalism has been the destruction of a worldview balancing and connecting well being with prosperity of the natural world Money and materialism cannot buy happiness as capitalist narrative asserts Thornburg claims that the happiness sought by individuals seeking meaning through consumption can only be realized by reintegrating nature with the human spirit

Mount Mitchell and the Black Mountains Timothy Silver, 2003-12-04 Each year thousands of tourists visit Mount Mitchell the most prominent feature of North Carolina s Black Mountain range and the highest peak in the eastern United States From Native Americans and early explorers to land speculators and conservationists people have long been drawn to this rugged region Timothy Silver explores the long and complicated history of the Black Mountains drawing on both the historical record and his experience as a backpacker and fly fisherman He chronicles the geological and environmental forces that created this intriguing landscape then traces its history of environmental change and human intervention from the days of Indian European contact to today Among the many tales Silver recounts is that of Elisha Mitchell the renowned geologist and University of North Carolina professor for whom Mount Mitchell is named who fell to his death there in 1857 But nature's stories of forest fires chestnut blight competition among plants and animals insect invasions and most recently airborne toxins and acid rain are also part of Silver's narrative making it the first history of the Appalachians in which the natural world gets equal time with human history It is only by understanding the dynamic between these two forces Silver says that we can begin to protect the Black Mountains for future generations

Wilderness or Home? Asebe Regassa Debelo, 2016

This book critically probes into the politics of nature conservation and commodification Building on political ecology the book argues that conservation is used by state and non state actors as an instrument of controlling multidimensional spaces of indigenous communities The study creates a nexus between the hegemonic discourse of wilderness conservation in colonial Africa and Ethiopia's appropriation of this narrative and how it internally exported it to its peripheries It found out that the successive Ethiopian regimes the imperial military and developmental state share commonalities in using nature conservation both for political control of societies and their territories and as a means of economic extraction through commodification Asebe Regassa Debelo is a graduate of the Bayreuth International Graduate School of African Studies BIGSAS Series Contributions to African Research Beitrage zur Afrikaforschung Vol 66 Subject Sociology African Studies

Earth Matters on Stage Theresa J. May, 2020-08-09 Earth Matters on Stage Ecology and Environment in American Theater tells the story of how American theater has shaped popular understandings of the environment throughout the twentieth century as it argues for theater's potential power in the age of climate change Using cultural and environmental history seven chapters interrogate key moments in American theater and American environmentalism over the course of the twentieth century in the United States It focuses in particular on how drama has represented environmental injustice and how inequality has become part of the American environmental landscape As the first book length ecocritical study of American theater Earth Matters examines both familiar dramas and lesser known grassroots plays in an effort to show that theater can be a powerful force for social change from frontier drama of the late nineteenth century to the eco theater movement This book argues that theater has always and already been part of the history of environmental ideas and action in the United States Earth Matters also maps the rise of an ecocritical thought and eco theater practice what the author calls ecodramaturgy showing how theater has informed environmental perceptions and policies Through key plays and productions it identifies strategies for artists who want their work to contribute to cultural transformation in the face of climate change

A World Trimmed with Fur Jonathan Schlesinger, 2017-01-11 In the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries booming demand for natural resources transformed China and its frontiers Historians of China have described this process in stark terms pristine borderlands became breadbaskets Yet Manchu and Mongolian archives reveal a different story Well before homesteaders arrived wild objects from the far north became part of elite fashion and unprecedented consumption had exhausted the region's most precious resources In A World Trimmed with Fur Jonathan Schlesinger uses these diverse archives to reveal how Qing rule witnessed not the destruction of unspoiled environments but their invention Qing frontiers were never pristine in the nineteenth century pearl divers had stripped riverbeds of mussels mushroom pickers had uprooted the steppe and fur bearing animals had disappeared from the forest In response the court turned to purification it registered and arrested poachers reformed territorial rule and redefined the boundary between the pristine and the corrupted Schlesinger's resulting analysis provides a framework for rethinking the global invention of nature Toxic Lake Thomas Shevory, 2023-12-05 Onondaga Lake is sacred territory for members of the Haudenosaunee Confederacy But by the mid twentieth century it was dubbed the most polluted lake in America The most expensive cleanup effort in American history was initiated in the 1990s which in turn generated a new set of controversies Physical Culture and the

The Care of Things Jerome Denis, David Pontille, 2025-01-22 What does a coffee machine a car road signs a smartphone a cathedral a work of art a satellite a bicycle a washing machine a bridge a watch a computer the body of a prominent politician and a tractor have in common Pretty much nothing except for the fact that no matter how small large important or insignificant something is it rarely survives without being cared for Every object eventually experiences wear and tear it deteriorates stops working or breaks down But are we giving the care of things the recognition it deserves A counterpoint to our modern obsession with innovation but less striking than the one off act of restoration the delicate act of making things last rarely attracts our attention This book disrupts our dominant narratives by putting those individuals skilled in the art of maintenance front and centre Jerome Denis and David Pontille shine a spotlight on the subtle aspects of caring for things tracing the stories of those involved and with them the ethical challenges raised and political lessons learned These people demonstrate a sensitivity and attentiveness to fragility they encourage us to cultivate a material diplomacy in which wear is accepted and our relation to things becomes a matter of negotiation and compromise a far cry from the frenetic rhythm of planned obsolescence inherent in hyper consumerism Maintenance demarcates the contours of a world in which we have relinquished the human longing for unlimited power and technological autonomy a world where our attachment to things is more profound than we ever imagined Ecospirit Laurel Kearns, Catherine Keller, 2009-08-25 We hope even as we doubt that the environmental crisis can be controlled Public awareness of our species self destructiveness as material beings in a material world is growing but so is the destructiveness The practical interventions needed for saving and restoring the earth will require a collective shift of such magnitude as to take on a spiritual and religious intensity This transformation has in part already begun Traditions of ecological theology and ecologically aware religious practice have been preparing the way for decades Yet these traditions still remain marginal to society academy and church With a fresh transdisciplinary approach Ecospirit probes the possibility of a green shift radical enough to permeate the ancient roots of our sensibility and the social sources of our practice From new language for imagining the earth as a living ground to current constructions of nature in theology science and philosophy from environmentalism's questioning of postmodern thought to a garden of green doctrines rituals and liturgies for contemporary religion these original essays explore and expand our sense of how to proceed in the face of an ecological crisis that demands new thinking and acting In the midst of planetary crisis they activate imagination humor ritual and hope
