McDougall, 2003 The magnitude of the current ecological crisis demands a fundamental redefinition of human identity It is no longer viable to regard human beings as the apex of creation rather humans must be recognized as existing within an intricate web of cosmic relations For Christian sacramental theology this redefinition requires that the horizon of theological reflection be shifted from a redemption centered focus to a cosmocentric one In this book Dorothy C McDougall elaborates the construction of an ecological sacramental theology based on the metaphor of the cosmos as the primary sacrament McDougall draws on the work of Thomas Berry with its foundation in a new and emergent scientific perspective as well as the social critique of ecofeminism as two significant resources

Sacramental Streams Richard Davenport, 2025-02-04 The church has long seen baptism as one of the means by which God delivers his grace to his people Many passages in the New Testament detail the value of baptism and indicate its status as one of the primary gifts God gives At the same time Jesus conversation with Nicodemus indicates the benefits of baptism should already be evident The early church understood this and saw that God had been preparing his people for the sacrament from the very beginning This book goes back through the Old Testament to draw on the various themes God has presented to inform and instruct his people about the sacrament he would later institute By examining these themes in detail it is shown that though baptism is a one time event in the life of the Christian the baptized continue to receive its benefits Baptism not only functions as an ongoing means of God's grace but as the means by which God shapes his people into the holy nation he has called them to be
