Scull,2022-05-15 Selected as a 2025 Doody's Core Title Virtual services have been part of health sciences libraries for a long time in various forms including the provision of reference and research services via email or chat availability of online instruction access to electronic materials and the curation of virtual research guides But when the COVID 19 pandemic forced many libraries to close their doors and pivot to virtual services almost overnight Moving all services remote even for just a short time did highlight what worked well and what did not The situation increased visibility of these services and made patrons more aware of what was available perhaps making them more likely to expect and use those services in the future In some ways the pandemic showed us ways in which virtual services could even be better than in person services for providing prompt patron services The situation increased visibility of existing services making users more aware of what was available and revealed gaps and needed improvements in virtual services In this book copublished by the Medical Library Association librarians from academic to hospital health sciences libraries from rural to urban areas and across a range of service specialties provide blueprints and best practices for building and maintaining sustainable virtual services in health sciences libraries Each chapter in this volume addresses aspects of providing virtual services in information and access services reference and instruction collections and clinical services written by contributors who have been involved in this work in their own libraries Whether you are just beginning an implementation assessing and refining current offerings or strategizing for sustainability and looking to the future this book will provide practical advice tools and considerations for maximizing user engagement and satisfaction with virtual library services and resources Building Health Sciences Library Collections Megan Inman,Marlena Rose,2023-07-03 Selected as a 2025 Doody's Core Title Collection development is a cornerstone of librarianship and with the rapid pace that library materials are produced a thorough knowledge of collection development is more important than ever before. However, with the myriad of choices available, creating a meaningful collection can be a daunting task. Building and maintaining a health sciences library collection can be a challenge, especially in scenarios where there is no dedicated collection services department or collection development librarian. Often in library school curriculum, collection development strategies are discussed, but specific examples of bibliographic sources may not be covered in detail, particularly for health sciences resources. Many collection development books often discuss the creation of policies, budgeting practices, and usability. This book is a comprehensive reference guide for those who will be creating and curating their library health sciences collections. Moving beyond a traditional list of titles, this guide will focus on several formats and areas. It features specific bibliographic information for top resources for a variety of subject areas and in a variety of formats. This book is designed for all librarians, whether new or experienced. Each chapter of this title does a deep dive into an area of health sciences library collection building, as well as covering how to maintain a current collection. This book is designed to provide readers with a resource to lean on in determining the best bets in providing their users with health sciences resources to support curriculum practice and other user needs. Readers who are interested in gleaning techniques for maintaining their health sciences library collection will also benefit from this, as it details the deselection process. Every health sciences librarian, no matter their experience, can benefit from this reference guide.

Reference and Information Services in Health Sciences Libraries M. Sandra Wood, 1994-05-01. This is volume 1 of Current Practice in Health Sciences Librarianship, the new series that replaces MLA's classic Handbook of Medical Library Practice. Chapters included are General Reference Services, Databases and Database Searching, Microcomputers and Reference Service, Management of Reference Service, Specialized Types of Management and Reference Services, and Information Technologies Now and the Future. Contents emphasize developments in reference services over the past decade, along with future directions based on changes in information technology. The volume is aimed at practicing health sciences librarians and information science students and is relevant to other librarians as well.

Information Access and Delivery in Health Sciences Libraries Carolyn E. Lipscomb, 1996-06-04. Nine authors combine their experience and expertise to discuss the realities of circulation, interlibrary loans, and document delivery and fee-based services in health sciences libraries. This long-awaited handbook will serve not only as a textbook but also as an invaluable resource for practitioners in the field and will be useful to information specialists in other types of libraries as well. It is organized so that the whole volume or individual chapters may be read as needed. Appendixes provide further information on nuts and bolts issues like automated circulation functions, shelving terminology, and shelving measurements. A glossary of terms is also included. Managing Health Sciences Libraries in a Time of Change Claire B. Joseph, Priscilla L.
