Regulating The Automobile Studies In Regulation Of Economic Activity:

The Economic Effects of Airline Deregulation Steven Morrison, Clifford Winston, 2010-12-01 In 1938 the U S Government took under its wing an infant airline industry Government agencies assumed responsibility not only for airline safety but for setting fares and determining how individual markets would be served Forty years later the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978 set in motion the economic deregulation of the industry and opened it to market competition This study by Steven Morrison and Clifford Winston analyzes the effects of deregulation on both travelers and the airline industry The authors find that lower fares and better service have netted travelers some 6 billion in annual benefits while airline earnings have increased by 2 5 billion a year Morrison and Winston expect still greater benefits once the industry has had time to adjust its capital structure to the unregulated marketplace and they recommend specific public policies to ensure healthy competition

Journal of Economic Literature ,1987 The Political Economy of American Trade Policy Anne O.

Krueger, 2007-12-01 Exploring the political and economic determinants of trade protection this study provides a wealth of information on key American industries and documents the process of seeking and conferring protection Eight analytical histories of the automobile steel semiconductor lumber wheat and textile and apparel industries demonstrate that trade barriers rarely have unequivocal benefits and may be counterproductive They show that criteria for awarding protection do not take into account the interests of consumers or other industries and that political influence and an organized lobby are major sources of protection Based on these findings a final essay suggests that current policy fails to consider adequately economic efficiency the public good and indirect negative effects This volume will interest scholars in economics business and public policy who deal with trade issues Government Regulatory Activity United States.
