Directions in the Study of Late Life Religiousness and Spirituality explores new ways of thinking about a topic that was once taboo but that has now attracted considerable attention from the gerontological community. It examines various approaches to methodology and definition that are used in the study of religion, spirituality, and aging. In addition, it explores the ways that gerontological research can highlight the role of religion and spirituality in the lives of older adults. The first section will introduce you to new ways of thinking about research methodology and data analysis that can be applied to studying the complexity of older adults' religious, spiritual practice and beliefs. You will learn several approaches to the study of phenomena that are both personal and also deeply embedded in community. The second section addresses issues of definition, exploring important questions that call for critical reflection, such as: What are we studying? What social and psychological influences shape our thinking about definition? Do the definitions used by gerontologists match those held by older people? The final section moves the study of religion, spirituality, and aging beyond a focus on health and mortality to examine well-being more broadly in the context of the life experiences of older adults. Here is a small sample of what you will learn about in New Directions in the Study of Late Life Religiousness and Spirituality:

- structural equation modeling: a statistical method designed to capture the dynamics inherent in the passage of time
- feminist qualitative methods for studying spiritual resiliency in older women
- spirituality as a public health issue

In the course of a long career, Colin Murray Parkes, one of the most important and influential psychiatrists working in the field of bereavement and loss, has produced a body of work which can be considered truly ground-breaking. His early studies involved working alongside John Bowlby in the development of attachment theory and led to his pioneering work on the Harvard Bereavement Project in the USA and at the new St Christopher's Hospice in Britain. Parkes focussed on two psychological processes: grief, which is the painful search for a lost person or object of attachment; and transition, which is the process of changing the assumptive world in ways that ensure that nothing worthwhile need be completely lost. Out of the struggle to resolve the conflict between holding on and letting go of the old assumptions, there gradually emerges a new and more mature model of the world. These ideas throw light on a wide range of life change events and have proved useful to people faced with bereavement physical disabilities dying disasters and even terrorist attacks In recent years he has supported humanitarian efforts in countries including Rwanda India and Japan Parkes career has spanned several decades and touched countless lives In The Price of Love Parkes presents papers which span the full extent of his career covering and linking together our understanding of the five major areas of his work Love and grief Crisis trauma and transition Death and dying Disasters War and terrorism breaking the cycle The papers included here have been carefully selected and annotated to show how Parkes thinking has developed during a career as researcher practitioner and educator In each section of the book psychological and social causes are paired with consequences and interventions both preventive and therapeutic and explored from Western and cross cultural perspectives all with Parkes customary clarity and compassion This unique collection of papers will prove invaluable to psychologists psychiatrists palliative care staff counsellors and students as well as those studying international conflict and working with the bereaved
