Jackson,2020-09-03 When British and American leaders today talk of the nation whether it is Boris Johnson Barack Obama or Donald Trump they do so in part in terms established by eighteenth century British literature The city on a hill and the sovereign individual are tropes at the center of modern Anglo American political thought and the literature that accompanied Britain's rise to imperial prominence played a key role in creating them We Are Kings is the first book to interpret eighteenth century British literature from the perspective of political theology Spencer Jackson returns here to a body of literature long associated with modernity's origins without assuming that modernity entails a separation of the religious from the profane The result is a study that casts this literature in a surprisingly new light From the patriot to the marriage plot the narratives and characters of eighteenth century British literature are the products of the politicization of religion Jackson argues the real story of this literature is neither secularization nor the survival of orthodox Judeo Christianity but rather the expansion of a movement beginning in the High Middle Ages to transfer the transcendent authority of the Catholic Church to the English political sphere The novel and the modern individual then are in a sense both secular and religious at once products of a modern political faith that has authorized Anglo American exceptionalism from the eighteenth century to the present

AngloModern Janet Wolff,2018-05-31 Early twentieth century art and art practice in Britain and the United States were Janet Wolff asserts marginalized by critics and historians in very similar ways after the rise of post Cubist modern art In a masterly book on the sociology of modernism Wolff explores work that was primarily realist and figurative and investigates the social institutional political and aesthetic processes by which that art fell by the wayside in the postwar period Throughout she shows that questions of gender and ethnicity play an important role in critical curatorial and historical evaluations For example Wolff finds that the work of the artists central to the development of the Whitney Museum was relegated to a secondary status in the postwar period when realism was labeled feminine in contrast to the aggressive masculinity of abstract expressionism The three key periods considered in AngloModern are the early twentieth century when modernist art and existing and new realist traditions coexisted in a certain tension the postwar period in which modernism claimed superiority over realism and the late twentieth century when a retrieval of the realist and figurative traditions seemed to occur Wolff concludes by considering this re emergence as well as the limitations of earlier discussions of the struggles of realist and figurative art to endure the currents of modernism Narrating Modernity: The British

Problem Picture, 1895-1914 Pamela M. Fletcher, 2018-02-05 This title was first published in 2003 Problem pictures were very popular during the Edwardian period These pictures invited multiple interpretations of modern life and were often slightly risqué Pamela Fletcher explores how these works of art engaged with questions of gender sexuality and identity during their heyday The British Controversialist and Literary Magazine, 1870 Reality Gender Vision Brenda R.

Weber, 2014-03-03 This essay collection focuses on the gendered dimensions of reality television in both the United States and Great Britain Through close readings of a wide range of reality programming from Finding Sarah and Sister Wives to Ghost Adventures and Deadliest Warrior the contributors think through questions of femininity and masculinity as they relate to the intersections of gender race class and sexuality They connect the genre's combination of real people and surreal experiences of authenticity and artifice to the production of identity and norms of citizenship the commodification of selfhood and the naturalization of regimes of power Whether assessing the Kardashian family brand portrayals of hoarders or big family programs such as 19 Kids and Counting the contributors analyze reality television as a relevant site for the production and performance of gender In the process they illuminate the larger neoliberal and postfeminist contexts in which reality TV is produced promoted watched and experienced Contributors David Greven Dana Heller Su Holmes Deborah Jermyn Misha Kavka Amanda Ann Klein Susan Lepselter Diane Negra Laurie Ouellette Gareth Palmer Kirsten Pike Maria Pramaggiore Kimberly Springer Rebecca Stephens Lindsay Steenberg Brenda R Weber The Making of English Photography: Allegories, Since the production of the first negative by William Henry Fox Talbot in Wiltshire's Lacock Abbey in 1835 English photography has played a central role in revolutionizing the production of images yet it has largely evaded critical attention The Making of English Photography investigates this new enterprise and specifically how professional photographers shaped a strange aesthetic for their practice The Making of English Photography examines the development of English photography as an industrial commercial and most problematically artistic enterprise Concentrating on the first decades of photography's history Edwards tracks the pivotal distinction between art and document as it emerged in the writings of the men of science and professional photographers suggesting that this key opposition is rooted in social fantasies of the worker Through a close reading of the photographic press in the 1860s he both reconstructs the ideological world of photographers and employs the unstable category of photography to cast light on art class and industrial knowledge Bringing together an array of early photographs recent historical and theoretical scholarship and extensive archival sources The Making of English Photography sheds new light on the prevailing discourses of photography as well as the antinomies of art and work in a world shaped by social division Shaping the City to Come Deborah Lewittes, 2022-02-15 This study reassesses modern architecture and town planning in mid twentieth century England highlighting ideas and debates that were in circulation as modernist ideals gradually took root The book reveals an architectural culture that was serious active and visionary with impact that extended into the postwar years Through close studies of specific works and writings the author acknowledges the importance of the international context of modern architecture as it intersected with the variety of narratives that defined English modernism such as national identity the New Empiricism and the picturesque taking into account the large community of migr architects who settled in England with the approach of World War II as well as a more general dissemination of international style forms and theories from continental Europe The book places familiar figures such as Berthold Lubetkin and Ern Goldfinger as well as projects such as Tecton s Penguin Pool and the Festival of Britain s Live Architecture Exhibition in new light presenting a rich picture of the modern architectural climate in England The study draws attention to the debates proposals and processes that fed into the development of modernist urban minded and forward looking architectural ideals
