The Rise of Architectural History David Watkin, 1980

History of Architectural Theory Hanno-Walter Kruft, 1994

As the first comprehensive encyclopedic survey of Western architectural theory from Vitruvius to the present this book is an essential resource for architects students teachers historians and theorists Using only original sources Kruft has undertaken the monumental task of researching organizing and analyzing the significant statements put forth by architectural theorists over the last two thousand years The result is a text that is authoritative and complete easy to read without being reductive

Nineteenth-Century Photographs and Architecture Micheline Nilsen, 2017-07-05 Eschewing the limiting idea that nineteenth century architecture photography merely reflects functionality the objective of this collection is to reflect the aesthetic intellectual and cultural concerns of the time The essays hold appeal for social and cultural historians as well as those with an interest in the fields of art history urban geography history of travel and tourism Nineteenth century photographers captured what could be seen and what they wanted to be seen Their images informed of exploration progress heritage and destruction Architecture was a staple subject for the first generation of photographers as it patiently tolerated the long exposures of the early processes During its formative decades photography responded to evolutionary cultural forces of market and artistic production Photographs of architecture reflected a specific political or social context modulated through individual points of view For this reason the examination of each photographic image as a primary visual document and an aesthetic object rather than a technical milestone on a chronological trajectory affords a richer multi faceted approach to the extensive and complex corpus of photographs taken by photographers all over the world This project acknowledges the importance of technique in the early decades of photography but focuses on the thematic content of the material It places the photography of architecture in an international context under the contemporary critical lens sharpened by theoretical and cultural examinations of the topic A History of Architectural Development ... Frederick Moore

Simpson, 1913

Robert Willis (1800-1875) and the Foundation of Architectural History Alexandrina Buchanan, 2013

The first full scale biography of Robert Willis the founding father of architectural history History Beyond the Text Sarah Barber, Corinna Peniston-Bird, 2013-02-01 Historians are increasingly looking beyond the traditional and turning to visual oral aural and virtual sources to inform their work The challenges these sources pose require new skills of interpretation and require historians to consider alternative theoretical and practical approaches In order to help historians successfully move beyond traditional text Sarah Barber and Corinna Peniston Bird bring together chapters from historical specialists in the fields of fine art photography film oral history architecture virtual sources music cartoons landscape and material culture to explain why when and how these less traditional sources can be used Each chapter introduces the reader to the source suggests the methodological and theoretical questions historians should keep in mind when using it and provides case studies to illustrate best practice in analysis and interpretation Pulling these disparate sources together the introduction

discusses the nature of historical sources and those factors which are unique to and shared by the sources covered throughout the book Taking examples from around the globe this collection of essays aims to inspire practitioners of history to expand their horizons and incorporate a wide variety of primary sources in their work

Rethinking Architectural Historiography Dana Arnold, Elvan Altan Ergut, Belgin Turan Ozkaya, 2006-09-27 Rather than subscribing to a single position this collection informs the reader about the current state of the discipline looking at changes across the broad field of methodological theoretical and geographical plurality Divided into three sections Rethinking Architectural Historiography begins by renegotiating foundational and contemporary boundaries of architectural history in relation to other fields such as art history and archaeology It then goes on to critically engage with past and present histories disclosing assumptions biases and absences in architectural historiography It concludes by exploring the possibilities provided by new perspectives reframing the discipline in the light of new parameters and problematics This timely and illustrated title reflects upon the current changes in historiographical practice exploring potential openings that may contribute further transformation of the disciplines and theories on architectural historiography and addresses the current question of the disciplinary particularity of architectural history

Power, Identity, and the Rise of Modern Architecture Koompong Noobanjong, 2003 This dissertation examines the evolution of Western and Modern architecture in Siam and Thailand It illustrates how various architectural ideas have contributed to the physical design and spatial configuration of places associated with negotiation and allocation of political power which are throne halls parliaments and government and civic structures since the 1850s

What is Architectural History? Andrew Leach, 2013-05-03 What is Architectural History considers the questions and problems posed by architectural historians since the rise of the discipline in the late nineteenth century How do historians of architecture organise past time and relate it to the present How does historical evidence translate into historical narrative Should architectural history be useful for practicing architects If so how Leach treats the disciplinarity of architectural history as an open question moving between three key approaches to historical knowledge of architecture within art history as an historical specialisation and most prominently within architecture He suggests that the confusions around this question have been productive ensuring a rich variety of approaches to the project of exploring architecture historically Read alongside introductory surveys of western and global architectural history this book will open up questions of perspective frame and intent for students of architecture art history and history Graduate students and established architectural historians will find much in this book to fuel discussions over the current state of the field in which they work

Art History as Cultural History Richard Woodfield, 2014-04-08 This book focuses on Aby Warburg 1866 1929 one of the legendary figures of twentieth century cultural history His collection which is now housed in the Warburg Institute of the University of London

bears witness to his idiosyncratic approach to a psychology of symbolism and explores the Nachleben of classical antiquity in its manifold cultural legacy This collection of essays offers the first translation of one of Warburg's key essays the Gombrich lecture described by Carlo Ginzburg as the richest and most penetrating interpretation of Warburg and original essays on Warburg's astrology his Mnemosyne project and his favourite topic of festivals Richard Woodfield is Research Professor in the Faculty of Art and Design at the Nottingham Trent University England He has edited E H Gombrich's Reflections on the History of Art 1987 Gombrich on Art and Psychology 1996 The Essential Gombrich 1996 and a volume on Riegl in the Critical Voices in Art Theory and Culture series He is also the General Editor of a new series of books for G B Arts International Aesthetics and the Arts Edited by Richard Woodfield Research Professor in the Faculty of Art and Design at Nottingham Trent University UK

Articulating British Classicism Elizabeth McKellar, 2017-07-05 Whereas the past decades have seen a profound reconsideration of eighteenth century visual culture the architecture of that century has undergone little evaluation Its study unlike that of the early modern period or the twentieth century has continued to use essentially the same methods and ideas over the last fifty years Articulating British Classicism reconsiders the traditional historiography of British eighteenth century architecture as it was shaped after World War II and brings together for the first time a variety of new perspectives on British classicism in the period Drawing on current thinking about the eighteenth century from a range of disciplines the book examines such topics as social and gender identities colonialization and commercialization notions of the rural urban and suburban as well as issues of theory and historiography Canonical constructions of Georgian architecture are explored including current evaluations of the continental intellectual background the relationship with mid seventeenth century Stuart court classicism and the development of the subject in the twentieth century

Time's Witness Rosemary Hill, 2021-06-24 From the Wolfson Prize winning author of God's Architect Pugin and the Building of Romantic Britain Between the fall of the Bastille in 1789 and the opening of the Great Exhibition in 1851 history changed The grand narratives of the Enlightenment concerned with kings and statesmen gave way to a new interest in the lives of ordinary people Oral history costume history the history of food and furniture of Gothic architecture theatre and much else were explored as never before Antiquarianism the study of the material remains of the past was not new but now hundreds of men and some women became antiquaries and set about rediscovering their national history in Britain France and Germany The Romantic age valued facts but it also valued imagination and it brought both to the study of history Among its achievements were the preservation of the Bayeux Tapestry the analysis and dating of Gothic architecture and the first publication of Beowulf It dispelled old myths and gave us

new ones Shakespeare's birthplace, clan tartans and the arrow in Harold's eye are among their legacies. From scholars to imposters, the dozen or so antiquaries at the heart of this book show us history in the making. Victorian Perceptions of Renaissance Architecture Katherine Wheeler, 2017-07-05. In the mid 1880s The Builder, an influential British architectural journal, published an article characterizing Renaissance architecture as a corrupt bastardization of the classical architecture of Greece and Rome. By the turn of the century, however, the same journal praised the Renaissance architect Filippo Brunelleschi as the Christopher Columbus of modern architecture. Victorian Perceptions of Renaissance Architecture 1850-1914 examines these conflicting characterizations and reveals how the writing of architectural history was intimately tied to the rise of the professional architect and the formalization of architectural education in late nineteenth-century Britain. Drawing on a broad range of evidence, including literary texts, professional journals, university curricula, and census records, Victorian Perceptions reframes works by seminal authors such as John Ruskin, Walter Pater, John Addington Symonds, and Geoffrey Scott alongside those by architect authors such as William J. Anderson and Reginald Blomfield within contemporary architectural debates. Relevant for architectural historians as well as literary scholars and those in Victorian studies, Victorian Perceptions reassesses the history of Renaissance architecture within the formation of a modern British architectural profession. Current Work in Architectural History Society of Architectural Historians of Great Britain. Symposium, 2005. The Architect : Chapters in the History of the Profession Berkeley Spiro Kostof, Professor of Architectural History, University of California, 1977-01-06. How did architects get to be architects in any given period in history? How were they trained? How did they find their clients and communicate with them? What did society think of them? Spiro Kostof's The Architect, a collection of essays by historians and architects, explores these and other intriguing questions about the profession of architecture. The first book in more than fifty years to survey the profession from its beginnings in ancient Egypt to the modern day, it is the most complete synthesis to date of our knowledge of how the architect's profession developed. Included are a major study of the Beaux Arts, a vivid memoir by the distinguished architect Joseph Esherick, and an excellent chapter on women which demonstrates how the ethic of professionalism has contributed to the exploitation of women in this as in many other professions. The Architect places the current dilemma about the architect's role in society in historical perspective and offers a good overview of the development of one of the world's oldest professions. The Invention of the English Landscape Peter Borsay, Rosemary Sweet, 2023-07-27. Since at least the Reformation, English men and women have been engaged in visiting, exploring, and portraying in words and images the landscape of their nation. The Invention of the English Landscape examines these journeys and investigations to explore how the natural and historic English landscape was reconfigured to become a widely enjoyed cultural and leisure resource. Peter Borsay considers the manifold forces behind this transformation, such as the rise of consumer culture, the media, industrial and transport revolutions, the Enlightenment, Romanticism, and the Gothic revival. In doing so, he reveals the development of a powerful bond between landscape and natural identity against the backdrop of social and political change from the early modern period to the start of the Second World War Borsay's interdisciplinary approach demonstrates how human understandings of the natural world shaped the geography of England and uncovers a wealth of valuable material from novels and poems to paintings that expose historical understandings of the landscape This innovative approach illuminates how the English countryside and historic buildings became cultural icons behind which the nation was rallied during war time and explores the emergence of a post war heritage industry that is now a definitive part of British cultural life
