gathering of some of the Muslim world's most prominent experts in Jurisprudence Fiqh and economists issued the Kuala Lumpur Declaration Fatwa in which they identified risk sharing as the essence of Islamic finance. The Declaration opened the door for a new Fiqh approach to take the lead in developing the jurisprudence of multilateral and multi counterparty transactions. This Declaration Fatwa provides a prime motivation to search for a comprehensive model of risk sharing that can serve as an archetypal contract encompassing all potential contemporary financial transactions. From the perspective of Islamic Jurisprudence Fiqh, the technicalities of the concept of risk sharing in contemporary finance have yet to be defined in Islamic literature. This book attempts to clarify and shed light on these technicalities from the perspective of Fiqh. It is a comprehensive study that relies on the fundamental Islamic sources to establish a theoretical and practical perspective of Fiqh encompassing risk sharing in Islamic finance as envisioned in the Kuala Lumpur Declaration of 2012. This new paradigm should lead to a more efficient approach to multilateral and multi counterparty Islamic contracts which heretofore has been lacking in the current configuration of Islamic finance.

Cross-country Consumption Risk Sharing, a Long-run

Perspective Mr. Zhaogang Qiao, 2010-03-01. This paper estimates an empirical nonstationary panel regression model that tests long run consumption risk sharing across a sample of OECD and emerging market EM countries. This is in contrast to the existing literature on consumption risk sharing which is mainly about risks at business cycle frequency. Since our methodology focuses on identifying cointegrating relationships while allowing for arbitrary short run dynamics, we can obtain a consistent estimate of long run risk sharing while disregarding any short run nuisance factors. Our results show that long run risk sharing in OECD countries increased more than that in EM countries during the past two decades.

Public-Private Partnerships In Pursuit of Risk Sharing and Value for Money OECD, 2008-05-21. This book highlights good practices and summarises what countries should consider before entering into public private partnerships PPPs.

Sharing the Knowledge Steven M. Rinaldi, 2000. This is the 33rd volume in the Occasional Paper series of the U.S. Air Force Institute for National Security Studies INSS. This paper, along with Occasional Paper 32 Richard Aldrich's Cyberterrorism and Computer Crimes: Issues Surrounding the Establishment of an International Legal Regime, address the context surrounding the question of how the U.S. military responds to the cyber threat facing the American military and society today. The U.S. military has become increasingly dependent upon the nation's information and communications infrastructures. Concurrently, threats to and vulnerabilities in these infrastructures are expanding in large part due to structural factors not likely to disappear in the future. To prevail against the increasing threat, the military and more broadly the government needs to adopt a risk reduction and management program. A crucial element of this risk management program is information sharing with the private sector. However, substantial barriers threaten to block information exchanges between the government and private sector. These barriers include concerns over release of sensitive material under Freedom of Information Act requests, antitrust actions, protection of business confidential and other private material, possible liability due to shared information disclosure of classified information and burdens entailed with cooperating with law enforcement agencies There is good cause to believe that the government and private sector can overcome these barriers guided by lessons learned from numerous successful government private sector information sharing mechanisms This analysis concludes with actions the government should undertake to develop an information sharing mechanism with the private sector Key among them are actively engaging the private sector from the onset determining information requirements and fostering a partnership based on trust Sharing the Challenge Interagency Floodplain Management Review Committee (U.S.),1994 Text of Sharing the Challenge Floodplain Management into the 21st Century The Report of the Interagency Floodplain Management Review Committee It proposes a better way to manage floodplains Sharing Clinical Trial Data Institute of Medicine,Board on Health Sciences Policy,Committee on Strategies for Responsible Sharing of Clinical Trial Data,2015-04-20 Data sharing can accelerate new discoveries by avoiding duplicative trials stimulating new ideas for research and enabling the maximal scientific knowledge and benefits to be gained from the efforts of clinical trial participants and investigators At the same time sharing clinical trial data presents risks burdens and challenges These include the need to protect the privacy and honor the consent of clinical trial participants safeguard the legitimate economic interests of sponsors and guard against invalid secondary analyses which could undermine trust in clinical trials or otherwise harm public health Sharing Clinical Trial Data presents activities and strategies for the responsible sharing of clinical trial data With the goal of increasing scientific knowledge to lead to better therapies for patients this book identifies guiding principles and makes recommendations to maximize the benefits and minimize risks This report offers guidance on the types of clinical trial data available at different points in the process the points in the process at which each type of data should be shared methods for sharing data what groups should have access to data and future knowledge and infrastructure needs Responsible sharing of clinical trial data will allow other investigators to replicate published findings and carry out additional analyses strengthen the evidence base for regulatory and clinical decisions and increase the scientific knowledge gained from investments by the funders of clinical trials The recommendations of Sharing Clinical Trial Data will be useful both now and well into the future as improved sharing of data leads to a stronger evidence base for treatment This book will be of interest to stakeholders across the spectrum of research from funders to researchers to journals to physicians and ultimately to patients Risk Sharing, Risk Spreading and Efficient Regulation T.V.S. Ramamohan Rao,2015-10-22 The book provides an integrated approach to risk sharing risk spreading and efficient regulation through principal agent models It emphasizes the role of information asymmetry and risk sharing in contracts as an alternative to transaction cost considerations It examines how contracting as an institutional mechanism to conduct transactions spreads risks while attempting consolidation It further highlights the shifting emphasis in contracts from Coasian transaction cost saving to risk sharing and shows how it creates difficulties associated with risk spreading and emphasizes the need for efficient regulation of contracts at various levels Each of the chapters is structured using a principal agent model and all chapters incorporate adverse selection and exogenous randomness as a result of information asymmetry as well as moral hazard and endogenous randomness due to the self interest seeking behavior on the part of the participants Sharing the Costs and Benefits of Energy and Resource Activity Lila Katz

Risk Sharing and Financial Contagion in Asia Mr.Phurichai Rungcharoenkitkul, 2011-10-01 This paper assesses financial integration in Asia in terms of risk sharing benefit versus financial contagion cost We construct a new measure of risk sharing based on a term structure model which allows identification of realized stochastic discount factors Risk sharing is low in Asia and varies across time and countries whereas contagion risks are more significant intra regionally and relatively stable over the past decade An overall tradeoff exists between risk sharing and contagion but the terms of tradeoffs vary across countries depending on relative economic fluctuations and inflation differentials Asia therefore can potentially enhance risk sharing without raising contagion risk
