Proceedings of the United States National Museum Robert Asa Cushman, United States National Museum, 1925 The Biology and Conservation of Elasmobranchs and Chimaeras Nuri Başusta, Elizabeth Grace Tunka Bengil, 2024-10-14 As aquatic predators since the Cretaceous period Elasmobranchs sharks skates rays and chimaeras represent one of the oldest vertebrate groups with very little morphological or physiological adaptations Though they are remarkably ancient and praised as God like creatures in some parts of the world they are among the most feared in the public eye as a consequence of their negative portrayal throughout history Unfortunately as it is the case with many aquatic species in recent years climate change and anthropogenic pressures such as food competition pollution and habitat degradation have significantly threatened their populations On top of this having low fecundity late sexual maturation and slow growth rates as well as their opportunistic feeding behavior make them vulnerable to commercial fisheries even though in most cases they are not the target species As a result nowadays many species are endangered some data deficient or nearly extinct with the need for urgent knowledge for conservation actions Producing science based information on elasmobranchs and chimaeras is crucial for population sustainability conservation and management actions In this Research Topic we invite author contributions on elasmobranchs and chimaeras biology and ecology e.g. reproduction biology feeding ecology age and growth distribution migration and many other aspects to bring together this imperative knowledge to provide a base for conservation and management actions locally or regionally Notes on Cestode Parasites of Sharks and Skates Edwin Linton, 1924
