Your Voice Speaks Volumes Jane Setter, 2019-10-24 Why do we speak the way we do and what do our voices tell others about us What is the truth behind the myths that surround how we speak Jane Setter explores these and other fascinating questions in this engaging introduction to the power and the science of the voice The book first takes us on a tour of the sounds in our language and how we produce them as well as how and why those sounds vary in different varieties of English The origins of our vast range of accents are explained along with the prejudices associated with them why do we feel such loyalty to our own accent and what's behind our attitudes to others We learn that much of what we believe about how we speak may not be true is it really the case for instance that only young people use uptalk or that only women use vocal fry Our voices can also be used as criminal evidence and to help us wear different social and professional hats Throughout the book Professor Setter draws on examples from the media and from her own professional and personal experience from her work on the provenance of the terrorist Jihadi John to why the Rolling Stones sounded American Michelle Obama

Concordance to Shakespeare: Being a Verbal Index to All the Passages in the Dramatic Works of the Poet Mary Cowden-Clarke, 1845 Writing Selves Jeanne Martha Perreault, 1995 Development and Vulnerability in Close Relationships Gil G. Noam, Kurt W. Fischer, 2013-06-17 How do people develop in their important relationships How do two people come together to form a new close relationship How do relationships affect or determine who we are and who we become These questions should be central to the study of mind and development but most researchers neglect relationships and focus instead on analyses of individuals as if people were basically alone experiencing occasional fleeting moments with other people Research based on this individualist assumption has dominated the behavioral and clinical sciences but there are other voices and they are growing In this book many of the scholars who are moving relationships and attachments back to the center of human development outline their central concepts findings and perspectives People are fundamentally social and relationships are part of the fabric of being human forming an essential foundation that molds each person's mind and action A mind does not reside in one person but in relationships and communities composed of many people's interconnected minds which mutually support and define each other From the start and throughout life each person develops strengths and vulnerabilities in important relationships in communities and cultures Those relationships are so central to each person s activity and experience that without them no scientific explanation can even begin to analyze mind and action There is no mind without other people There is no psychological vulnerability that does not involve others The contributors to this book aim to establish a firm foundation for the role of relationships in human activity and health and to promote strong research by bringing together in one place most of the best research and theory on development and relationships Their goal is to stimulate a more radical inclusion of relationships in mind an ecological focus on the ways that relationships constitute action feeling and thought
