Shell And The Kernel Renewals Of Psychoanalysis:

The Shell and the Kernel Nicolas Abraham, Maria Torok, 1994-09 This volume is a superb introduction to the richness and originality of Abraham and Torok's approach to psychoanalysis and their psychoanalytic approach to literature. Abraham and Torok advocate a form of psychoanalysis that insists on the particularity of any individual's life story, the specificity of texts, and the singularity of historical situations. In what is both a critique and an extension of Freud, they develop interpretive strategies with powerful implications for clinicians, literary theorists, feminists, philosophers, and all others interested in the uses and limits of psychoanalysis. Central to their approach is a general theory of psychic concealment, a poetics of hiding. Whether in a clinical setting or a literary text, they search out the unspeakable secret as a symptom of devastating trauma revealed only in linguistic or behavioral encodings. Their view of trauma provides the linchpin for new psychic and linguistic structures such as the transgenerational phantom, an undisclosed family secret handed down to an unwitting descendant, and the intra-psychic secret or crypt, which entombs an unspeakable but consummated desire. Throughout, Abraham and Torok seek to restore communication with those intimate recesses of the mind which are for one reason or another denied expression. Classics of French theory and practice: the essays in volume one include four previously uncollected works by Maria Torok. Nicholas Rand supplies a substantial introductory essay and commentary throughout. Abraham and Torok's theories of fractured meaning and their search for coherence in the face of discontinuity and disruption have the potential to reshape not only psychoanalysis but all disciplines concerned with issues of textual, oral, or visual interpretation.

Peeren, 2014-01-30 What does it mean to live as a ghost Exploring spectrality as a metaphor in the contemporary British and American cultural imagination Peeren proposes that certain subjects migrants servants mediums and missing persons are perceived as living ghosts and examines how this figuration can signify both dispossession and empowerment or agency Ecosophy and Educational Research for the Anthropocene Alysha J. paradigm from the classic central concern of remembering to a clinical experience which prioritises enactment and repetition. The reflections on this important paper demonstrate how it goes beyond technique to open new vistas on the conception of psychoanalysis as a whole. On Freud's Remembering, Repeating and Working Through will be essential reading for psychoanalysts and psychoanalytic psychotherapists in practice and in training. It will also be of interest to readers seeking a deeper understanding of current Freudian thinking.

The Wolf Man's Burden Lawrence Johnson, 2001. The Wolf Man was Sigmund Freud's most famous patient, a man whose enigmatic childhood dream of being gazed at by wolves outside his bedroom window bedeviled the founding practitioners of psychoanalysis. More than simply a rich source of imagery and meaning, though, the Wolf Man case might be interpreted as the primal scene of psychoanalysis itself. Lawrence Johnson regards the creation of the psychoanalytic case study as the writing of two lives: those of the analysand and the analyst. So Freud's own biography and subjective viewpoint could hardly fail to bear a direct influence on the institution of psychoanalysis. When Freud met the patient known as the Wolf Man, Johnson maintains, psychoanalysis was at an impasse because of Freud's inability to work through repressed material from his own childhood. Freud overcame this impasse through a countertransference that cast his patient in the role of a rival for the control of psychoanalysis; his means for vanquishing him set the terms for Freud's legacy to psychoanalysis. Johnson offers a rigorous methodological framework for discussing the relationship between psychoanalytic writing and the lives of those who engage in it. He fruitfully extends the work of Nicholas Abraham, Maria Torok and Jacques Derrida into the realm of Freud's own life. The result is both sophisticated psychobiography and psychoanalytic theory grounded firmly in historical lives.

Contemporary Slavic horror across media Agnieszka Jezyk, 2025-06-17. In the Western cultural production that puts individual or collective fear at its center, East Central Europe has been portrayed as an othered space of horror, lawless, frightening zones where anything can happen. Incorporating articles on literature, film, visual arts, video games, music videos and music festivals, Contemporary Slavic horror across media: Cursed zones is a pioneering anthology of academic essays devoted to Slavic horror fiction. The book focuses on works from the mid 20th century through the present, particularly the post-Soviet period. Assessing current trends in Czech, Polish, Russian, Slovak, Ukrainian and East Central European horror media, the book looks at similarities and idiosyncrasies of the genre in its Slavic variant. With this anthology, we hope to tame the Easterner Other and start exorcising monstrous East Central Europe.

Remembering Generations Ashraf H. A. Rushdy, 2003-01-14. Slavery is America's family secret, a partially hidden phantom that continues to haunt our national imagination. Remembering Generations explores how three contemporary African American writers artistically represent this notion in novels about the enduring effects of slavery on the descendants of slaves in the post-civil rights era. Focusing on Gayl Jones's Corregidora (1975), David Bradley's The Chaneysville Incident (1981) and Octavia Butler's Kindred (1979), Ashraf Rushdy situates these works in their cultural moment of production, highlighting the ways in which they respond to contemporary debates about race and family. Tracing the evolution of this literary form he considers such works as Edward Ball's Slaves in the Family 1998 in which descendants of slaveholders expose the family secrets of their ancestors Remembering Generations examines how cultural works contribute to social debates how a particular representational form emerges out of a specific historical epoch and how some contemporary intellectuals meditate on the issue of historical responsibility of recognizing that the slave past continues to exert an influence on contemporary American society

Learning Desire Sharon Todd, 2013-10-31 What role can desire play in pedagogical interaction In Learning Desire contributors from the fields of education cultural studies psychoanalysis and literary theory explore the many ways desire intersects with knowledge recognition fantasy and embodiment and what this can mean for transformative pedagogical practice While acknowledging the productive and destructive force desire can have on the learning experience the authors offer engaging innovative modes of thinking about teaching and thinking about desire as an education tool This volume rooted in theory is one also geared towards practice in taking a fresh look at the limits and possibilities of a transformative pedagogy it will also give teachers and students new languages for articulating their experiences in the classroom and beyond

The Edge of Modernism Walter Kalaidjian, 2006-01-06 Explores American poetry on genocide the Holocaust and total war as well as on postwar social antagonisms racial oppression and domestic violence Combining Psychoanalytic theory and cultural studies this account of modern poetics analyzes the ways in which literary form gives testimony to the trauma of twentieth century history

Dark Matter Richard Langston, 2020-08-04 Unravelling the thought of Alexander Kluge and Oskar Negt Collaborators for more than four decades lawyer author filmmaker and multimedia artist Alexander Kluge and social philosopher Oskar Negt are an exceptional duo in the history of Critical Theory precisely because their respective disciplines think so differently Dark Matter argues that what makes their contributions to the Frankfurt School so remarkable is how they think together in spite of these differences Kluge and Negt's gravitational thinking balances not only the abstractions of theory with the concreteness of the aesthetic but also their allegiances to Frankfurt School mentors with their fascination for other German French and Anglo American thinkers distinctly outside the Frankfurt tradition At the core of all their adventures in gravitational thinking is a profound sense that the catastrophic conditions of modern life are not humankind's unalterable fate In opposition to modernity's disastrous state of affairs Kluge and Negt regard the huge mass of dark matter throughout the universe as the lodestar for thinking together with others for dark matter is that absolute guarantee that happier alternatives to our calamitous world are possible As illustrated throughout Langston's study dark matter's promise its critical orientation out of catastrophic modernity finds its expression above all in Kluge's multimedia aesthetic
