Entranced by Story Hugh Crago, 2014-04-24 We live in a world of stories yet few of us pause to ask what stories actually are why we consume them so avidly and what they do for story makers and their audiences This book focuses on the experiences that good stories generate feelings of purposeful involvement elevation temporary loss of self vicarious emotion and relief of tension The author examines what drives writers to create stories and why readers fall under their spell why some children grow up to be writers and how the capacity for creating and comprehending stories develops from infancy right through into old age Entranced by Story applies recent research on brain function to literary examples ranging from the Iliad and Wuthering Heights to Harold and the Purple Crayon providing a groundbreaking exploration of the biological and neurological basis of the literary experience Blending research theory and biographical anecdote the author shows how it is the unique structure of the human brain with its layering of sophisticated cognitive capacities upon archaic emotion driven functions which best explains the mystery of story

Disarming the Nation Elizabeth Young, 1999-12-15 In a study that will radically shift our understanding of Civil War literature Elizabeth Young shows that American women writers have been profoundly influenced by the Civil War and that in turn their works have contributed powerfully to conceptions of the war and its aftermath Offering fascinating reassessments of works by white writers such as Harriet Beecher Stowe Louisa May Alcott and Margaret Mitchell and African American writers including Elizabeth Keckley Frances Harper and Margaret Walker Young also highlights crucial but lesser known texts such as the memoirs of women who masqueraded as soldiers In each case she explores the interdependence of gender with issues of race sexuality region and nation Combining literary analysis cultural history and feminist theory Disarming the Nation argues that the Civil War functioned in women's writings to connect female bodies with the body politic Women writers used the idea of civil war as a metaphor to represent struggles between and within women including struggles against the cultural prescriptions of civility At the same time these writers also reimagined the nation itself foregrounding women in their visions of America at war and in peace In a substantial afterword Young shows how contemporary black and white women including those who crossdress in Civil War reenactments continue to reshape the meanings of the war in ways startlingly similar to their nineteenth century counterparts Learned witty and accessible Disarming the Nation provides fresh and compelling perspectives on the Civil War women's writing and the many unresolved civil wars within American culture today
