Wiinblad, 2012-12-02 Biomass is set to play an increasing role in the supply of energy both in the industrialised world and in developing countries as concern for the state of the global environment grows The possibility for the acceleration of commercial production has received support from the increasing involvement of the large power producers and the growing political commitments of several European countries The 9th European Bioenergy Conference was held in Copenhagen 24-27 June 1996 Interest in this conference series continues to grow and the event attracted around 700 delegates from 45 countries In contrast to previous events more emphasis was placed on demonstrating bioenergy technology in the marketplace Overviews on recent achievements in commercial or near commercial activities formed the main focus of the event but highlights of advances in science and technological development were also presented in addition to papers covering environmental aspects of bioenergy The proceedings contain 350 state of the art papers addressing the following areas primary production of biomass provision and production of solid biomass fuels processes for large power plants processes for decentralised heat and power production processes for production of transportation fuels market economic and

Steinert,2013-06-29 Research activity on intermediate filaments IF has increased dramatically over the past decade For the most part this surge of interest is due to their identification as ubiquitous constituents of the cytoskeleton and karyoskeleton nuclear matrix of eukaryotic cells and the fact that we know very little regarding their functions In sharp contrast to the other major cytoskeletal systems microfilaments and microtubules IF exhibit a high degree of heterogeneity with regard to their protein subunit composition Indeed one can only marvel at the number of different IF polypeptides their associated proteins IFAP and consequently the number of genes involved in encoding the multiple constituents of the various IF networks found in different cell types The chapters in this book demonstrate how various experimental approaches involving cellular molecular biochemical and immunological methods have been utilized to generate information regarding the structure and function of IF To this end we have gathered together chapters from experts in the major fields of IF research In each chapter the authors have combined reviews of the available scientific literature with their own ideas on current and future directions for IF research The chapters have been divided into five major sections which are concerned with the subcellular organization of IF the molecular structure of IF the differential expression of IF genes descriptions of associated proteins involved in the intracellular organization of IF and finally an analysis of the changes seen in IF in pathological conditions
