Models For The Multitudes Social Values:

Realism and the Birth of the Modern United States Stanley Corkin, 1996 This book offers an interdisciplinary view of American culture in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Using the conventions of historical study Stanley Corkin draws out the ways in which the works of writers and filmmakers from 1885 to 1925 shaped and were shaped by the business politics and social life of the period Corkin traces the entrance of the United States into the modern age by considering the historical dimension of cinema and literary aesthetics first of realism then naturalism and finally modernism He begins with the work of writer William Dean Howells and the advent of American cinema under the stewardship of Thomas Edison arguing that realism was complexly involved in Progressive political and economic reform Next analyses of Theodore Dreiser's novel Sister Carrie and the films of the Edison Company's star director Edwin S Porter detail the relationships of naturalism to the increasingly abstract presentation of the material commodity through mass marketing The study culminates with an examination of the parallels between Ernest Hemingway's In Our Time and the D W Griffith film The Birth of a Nation These two modernist works Corkin contends illustrate strategies of expression that attempt to move the material commodity away from its economic base and into a pristine apolitical realm These literary and cinematic works both reflect and participate in the economic political and social reorganization of American life from the top down The result Corkin concludes is a world in which a conception of a human being is asserted as differing little from that of a machine a tree or an animal

The Body in the Reservoir Michael Ayers Trotti, 2010-02-15 Centered on a series of dramatic murders in nineteenth and early twentieth century Richmond Virginia The Body in the Reservoir uses these gripping stories of crime to explore the evolution of sensationalism in southern culture In Richmond as across the nation the embrace of modernity was accompanied by the prodigious growth of mass culture and its accelerating interest in lurid stories of crime and bloodshed But while others have emphasized the importance of the penny press and yellow journalism on the shifting nature of the media and cultural responses to violence Michael Trotti reveals a more gradual and nuanced story of change In addition Richmond's racial makeup one third to one half of the population was African American allows Trotti to challenge assumptions about how black and white media reported the sensational the surprising discrepancies offer insight into just how differently these two communities experienced American justice An engaging look at the connections between culture and violence this book gets to the heart or perhaps the shadowy underbelly of the sensational as the South became modern

The Making of a Bestseller Arthur T. Vanderbilt, 1999-01-01 Writer F Scott Fitzgerald's career itself is a metaphor for the vagaries of book publishing If Fitzgerald would have had his way we would today refer to The Great Gatsby as either Gold Hatted Gatsby Trimalchio in West Egg or The High Bouncing Lover A few years before Gatsby Fitzgerald had become a literary sensation at the age of 23 Helen Hooven Santmyer a contemporary of Fitzgerald's would not have a successful novel published until she was 88 and living in a nursing home In this book the author explores that mysterious place in publishing where art and commerce can either clash mesh or both Along the way a wide range of authors from the literary greats to today s commercial superstars editors agents and publishers share their thoughts insights and experiences What inspires writers John Steinbeck for example wrote every novel as if it were his last as if death were imminent Why are some books successful and appreciated while others fall into oblivion The answers are often elusive never absolute but the stories and anecdotes are always fascinating

Pauline Hopkins and the American Dream Alisha Knight,2011-04-15 Pauline Elizabeth Hopkins was perhaps the most prolific black female writer of her time Between 1900 and 1904 writing mainly for Colored American Magazine she published four novels at least seven short stories and numerous articles that often addressed the injustices and challenges facing African Americans in post Civil War America In Pauline Hopkins and the American Dream Alisha Knight provides the first full length critical analysis of Hopkins s work Scholars have frequently situated Hopkins within the domestic sentimental tradition of nineteenth century women s writing with some critics observing that aspects of her writing particularly its emphasis on the self made man seem out of place within the domestic tradition Knight argues that Hopkins used this often dismissed theme to critique American society s ingrained racism and sexism In her Famous Men and Famous Women series for Colored American Magazine she constructed her own version of the success narrative by offering models of African American self made men and women Meanwhile in her fiction she depicted heroes who fail to achieve success or must leave the United States to do so Hopkins risked and eventually lost her position at Colored American Magazine by challenging black male leaders liberal white philanthropists and white racists and by conceiving a revolutionary treatment of the American Dream that placed her far ahead of her time Hopkins is finally getting her due and this clear eyed analysis of her work will be a revelation to literary scholars historians of African American history and students of women s studies Alisha Knight is an associate professor of English and American Studies at Washington College Her published articles include Furnace Blasts for the Tuskegee Wizard Revisiting Pauline E Hopkins Booker T Washington and the Colored American Magazine which appeared in American Periodicals

Loopholes and Retreats John Cullen Gruesser, Hanna Wallinger, 2009 The essays in this volume explore the loopholes and retreats employed and exploited by African American polemicists poets novelists slave narrators playwrights short story writers essayists editors educators historians clubwomen and autobiographers during the nineteenth century These exciting contributions use historicist comparative transnational literary historical cultural studies and Foucauldian perspectives to examine how apparent weakness was turned into strength defensiveness into offensiveness and the machinery of oppression into the keys to liberation

A Fictive People Ronald J. Zboray, 1993-01-28 This book explores an important boundary between history and literature the antebellum reading public for books written by Americans Zboray describes how fiction took root in the United States and what literature contributed to the readers sense of themselves He traces the rise of fiction as a social history centered on the book trade and chronicles the large societal changes shaping circumscribing and sometimes defining the limits of the antebellum reading public A Fictive People explodes two notions that are commonplace in cultural histories of the nineteenth century first that the spread of literature was a simple force for the democratization of taste and second that there was a body of nineteenth century literature that reflected a nation of readers Zboray shows that the output of the press was so diverse and the public so indiscriminate in what it would read that we must rethink these conclusions The essential elements for the rise of publishing turn out not to be the usual suspects of rising literacy and increased schooling Zboray turns our attention to the railroad as well as private letter writing to see the creation of a national taste for literature He points out the ambiguous role of the nineteenth century school in encouraging reading and convincingly demonstrates that we must look more deeply to see why the nation turned to literature He uses such data as sales figures and library borrowing to reveal that women read as widely as men and that the regional breakdown of sales focused the power of print

Catharine Maria Sedgwick Lucinda L. Damon-Bach, Victoria Clements, 2003 The essays in this volume examine the full breadth and complexity of the extensive oeuvre of American literary pioneer Catharine Maria Sedgwick 1789 1867

George Bellows and Urban America Marianne Doezema, 1992-01-01 George Bellows s spirited and virile paintings of New York in the early decades of the twentieth century celebrated the city s bigness and bolness Although these works clearly challenged the conservative practices of the National Academy and linked Bellows with the anti academic art of Robert Henri and the Eight they were highly popular even with arch conservatives In this book Marianne Doezema explores why it was that Bellows s paintings despite being considered coarse in technique and subject matter were acclaimed by critics and patrons by conservatives progressives and radicals alike Doezeema focuses on three of Bellows's principal urban themes the excavation for Pennsylvania Station prizefights and tenement life on the Lower East Side Drawing on journals and periodicals of the period she discusses how the prominent often newsworthy motifs painted by Bellows evoked particular associations and meanings for his contemporaries Arguing that the implicit message of these paintings was distinctly unrevolutionary she shows that the excavation paintings celebrated industrialization and urbanization the boxing pictures presented the sport as brutal and its fans as bloodthirsty and the depictions of the Lower East Side conformed to a moralistic middle class view of poverty In many of Bellows's subject pictures of this era says Doezeema the artist approached issues of changing moral and social values in a way that not only seemed congenial to many members of his audience but also verified their attitudes and preconceptions about urban life in America

Spirit, Qi, and the Multitude Hyo-Dong Lee,2013-11-11 We live in an increasingly global interconnected and interdependent world in which various forms of systemic imbalance in power have given birth to a growing demand for genuine pluralism and democracy As befits a world so interconnected this book presents a comparative theological and philosophical attempt to construct new underpinnings for the idea of democracy by bringing the Western concept of spirit into dialogue with the East Asian nondualistic and nonhierarchical notion of qi The book follows the historical adventures of the idea of qi through some of its Confucian and Daoist textual histories in East Asia mainly Laozi Zhu Xi Toegye Nongmun and Su un and compares them with analogous conceptualizations of the ultimate creative and spiritual power found in the intellectual constellations of Western and or Christian thought namely Whitehead s Creativity Hegel s Geist Deleuze s chaosmos and Catherine Keller s Tehom The book adds to the growing body of pneumatocentric Spirit centered panentheistic Christian theologies that emphasize God s liberating equalizing and pluralizing immanence in the cosmos Furthermore it injects into the theological and philosophical dialogue between the West and Confucian and Daoist East Asia which has heretofore been dominated by the American pragmatist and process traditions a fresh voice shaped by Hegelian postmodern and postcolonial thought This enriches the ways in which the pluralistic and democratic implications of the notion of qi may be articulated In addition by offering a valuable introduction to some representative Korean thinkers who are largely unknown to Western scholars the book advances the study of East Asia and Neo Confucianism in particular Last but not least the book provides a model of Asian contextual theology that draws on the religious and philosophical resources of East Asia to offer a vision of pluralism and democracy A reader interested in the conversation between the East and West in light of the global reality of political oppression economic exploitation and cultural marginalization will find this book informative engaging and enlightening

Style and the Scribbling Women Mary P. Hiatt,1993-01-30 Derogation of nineteenth century women novelists was often the immediate response to their works While modern feminist scholarship has repudiated this view of scribbling women finding much of value in both substance and style in this body of literature many critics and academics remain uninformed and continue to present an almost totally male canon as representative of meritorious writing of this period The present work undertakes an empirical test of stereotypical notions about women s and men s nineteenth century fiction utilizing the computer to examine 80 000 words of running text from passages randomly chosen in twenty novels each by women and men This material is analyzed for occurrences of various aspects of writing style such as similes parallel structures rhetorical devices and certain adverbs and adjectives as well as for sentence length and complexity That these nonimpressionistic findings show no overwhelming gender differences should finally put to rest traditional negative stereotypes about nineteenth century women writers The author of an empirical analysis of twentieth century fiction by men and women Professor Hiatt uses these previous findings for a comparison of twentieth and nineteenth century materials The twentieth century analysis showed greater linguistic and stylistic disparities between men s and women s writing A comparison with the nineteenth century materials indicates that diachronic shifts have occurred much more broadly and drastically in fiction by male authors Carefully documented and written this study will be valuable for researchers and students of women s studies nineteenth century American literature linguistics stylistics and computer applications in the humanities
