A Commerce of Knowledge Simon Mills, 2020-01-07 A Commerce of Knowledge tells the story of three generations of Church of England chaplains who served the English Levant Company in Syria during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries Reconstructing the careers of its protagonists in the cosmopolitan city of Ottoman Aleppo Simon Mills investigates the links between English commercial and diplomatic expansion and English scholarly and missionary interests the study of Middle Eastern languages the exploration of biblical and Greco Roman antiquities and the early dissemination of Protestant literature in Arabic Early modern Orientalism is usually conceived as an episode in the history of scholarship By shifting the focus to Aleppo A Commerce of Knowledge brings to light the connections between the seemingly separate worlds tracing the emergence of new kinds of philological and archaeological enquiry in England back to a series of real world encounters between the chaplains and the scribes booksellers priests rabbis and sheikhs they encountered in the Ottoman Empire Setting the careers of its protagonists against a background of broader developments across Protestant and Catholic Europe Mills shows how the institutionalization of English scholarship and the later English attempt to influence the Eastern Christian churches were bound up with the international struggle to establish a commercial foothold in the Levant He argues that these connections would endure until the shift of British commercial and imperial interests to the Indian subcontinent in the second half of the eighteenth century fostered new currents of intellectual life at home accounts of the past and especially by those which viewed him as an embarrassment or worse In addition to exploring the many reasons why Cromwell was so vehemently remembered or forgotten in Ireland Sarah Covington finally uncovers the larger truths conveyed by sometimes fanciful or invented accounts Contrary to being damaging examples of myth making the memorializations contained in martyrologies folk tales or newspaper polemics were often productive in cohering communities or in displaying agency in the form of counter memories that claimed Cromwell for their own and reshaped Irish history in the process
