Patterns Of Racial Discrimination Volume 2:

Politics and the Professors Henry J. Aaron, 2010-12-01 In the early 1960s America was in a confident mood and embarked on a series of efforts to solve the problems of poverty racial discrimination unemployment and inequality of educational opportunity The programs of the Great Society and the War on Poverty were undergirded by a broad consensus about what our problems as a nation were and how we should solve them But by the early seventies both political and scholarly tides had shifted Americans were divided and uncertain about what to do abroad fearful of military inferiority and pessimistic about the capacity of government to deal affirmatively with domestic problems A new administration renounced the rhetoric of the Great Society and changed the emphasis of many programs On the scholarly front new research called into question the old faiths on which liberal legislation had been based In this book the sixteenth volume in the Brookings series in Social Economics Henry Aaron describes both the initial consensus and its subsequent decline He examines the evolution of attitude and pronouncements by scholars and popular writers on the role of the federal government and its capacity to bring about beneficial change in three broad areas poverty and discrimination education and training and unemployment and inflation He argues that the political eclipse of the Great Society depended more on events external to it war in Vietnam dissolution of the civil rights coalition and finally the Watergate scandal and all its repercussions than on its intrinsic failings Aaron concludes that both the initial commitment to use national policies to solve social and economic problems and the subsequent disillusionment of scholars and laymen alike rest largely on preconceptions and faiths that have little to do with research themselves 35th Anniversary Retrospective Konstantinos Tatsiramos, Solomon W. Chrisler, Donald R. McCreary, 2010-03-12 Donald R McCreary and Joan C Chrisler The Development of Gender Studies in Psychology Studies of sex differences are as old as the eld of psychology and they have been conducted in every sub eld of the discipline There are probably many reasons for the popularity of these studies but three reasons seem to be most prominent First social psychological studies of person perception show that sex is especially salient in social groups It is the rst thing people notice about others and it is one of the things we remember best Fiske Haslam Stangor Lynch Duan Glass 1992 For example people may not remember who uttered a witty remark but they are likely to remember whether the quip came from a woman or a man Second many people hold rm beliefs that aspects of physiology suit men and women for particular social roles Men's greater upper body strength makes them better candidates for manual labor and their greater height gives the impression that they would make good leaders i e people we look up to Women's reproductive capacity and the caretaking tasks e g breastfeeding baby minding that accompany it make them seem suitable for other roles that require gentleness and nurturance Third the logic that underlies hypothesis testing in the sciences is focused on difference Researchers design their studies with the hope that they can reject the null hypothesis that experimental groups do not differ

Bibliography on Racism, 1972-1975 Center for Minority Group Mental Health Programs (U.S.), 1978 Race And Place John W. Frazier, 2019-05-20 This book addresses the issues in an empirical fashion after examining different sociological and geographic perspectives It provides a basic understanding of the multi faceted nature of racial inequalities in urban America both in a broad context and in separate analyses of housing America, History and Life, 1982 Provides historical coverage of the United States and Canada from prehistory to the present Includes information abstracted from over 2 000 journals published worldwide Racialization and Religion Nasar Meer, 2015-04-10 This volume locates the contemporary study of anti-Semitism and Islamophobia squarely within the fields of race and racism. As such, it challenges the extent to which discussion of the racialization of these minorities remains unrelated to each other or is explored in distinct silos as a series of internal debates. By harnessing the explanatory power of long-established organizing concepts within the study of race and racism, this collection of articles makes a historically informed theoretical and empirical contribution to aligning these analytical pursuits. The collection brings together a range of perspectives on this subject, including a comparison between Islamophobia in early modern Spain and twenty-first century Europe, an examination of the new anti-Semitism, and an analysis of online anti-Muslim and anti-Semitic jokes. This book was originally published as a special issue of Ethnic and Racial Studies.
