

The background of the book cover is a photograph of a woman in a long black dress standing on a dark, rocky outcrop. She is looking out over a body of water towards a distant, hazy shoreline under a dramatic, cloudy sky. The overall mood is somber and atmospheric.

Death Customs E. Bendann, 2007

Death and Changing Rituals J. Rasmus Brandt, Håkon Roland, Marina Prusac, 2014-07-31 The forms by which a deceased person may be brought to rest are as many as there are causes of death In most societies the disposal of the corpse is accompanied by some form of celebration or ritual which may range from a simple act of deportment in solitude to the engagement of large masses of people in laborious and creative festivities In a funerary context the term ritual may be taken to represent a process that incorporates all the actions performed and thoughts expressed in connection with a dying and dead person from the preparatory pre death stages to the final deposition of the corpse and the post mortem stages of grief and commemoration. The contributions presented here are focused not on the examination of different funerary practices, their function and meaning, but on the changes of such rituals, how and when they occurred and how they may be explained. Based on case studies from a range of geographical regions and from different prehistoric and historical periods, a range of key themes are examined concerning belief and ritual, body and deposition, place, performance and commemoration, exploring a complex web of practices.

Encyclopædia Britannica, 1810 The Last Act, 1876 Death in Mycenaean Lakonia (17th to 11th c. BC) Chrysanthi Gallou, 2019-12-27. A Silent Place: Death in Mycenaean Lakonia is the first book-length systematic study of the Late Bronze Age (LBA) burial tradition in south-eastern Peloponnese, Greece, and the first to comprehensively present and discuss all Mycenaean tombs and funerary contexts excavated and/or simply reported in the region from the 19th century to the present day. The book will discuss and reconstruct the emergence and development of the Mycenaean mortuary tradition in Lakonia by examining the landscape of death, the burial architecture, the funerary and post-funerary customs and rituals, and offering patterns over a long period. The author proposes patterns of continuity from the Middle Bronze Age, even the Early Bronze Age, in terms of burial architecture, to the LBA and, equally important, from the Late Bronze Age to the Early Iron Age, and reconstructs diachronic processes of invention of tradition and identity in Mycenaean communities on the basis of tomb types and their material culture. The text highlights the social, political, and economic history of Late Bronze Age Lakonia from the evolution of the Mycenaean civilisation and the establishment of palatial administration in the Spartan vale to the demise of Mycenaean culture and the turbulent post-collapse centuries as reflected by the burial offerings. The book also brings to publication the chamber tombs at Epidavros-Limera that remained largely unpublished since their excavation in the 1930s and 1950s. Epidavros-Limera was one of the most important prehistoric coastal sites in prehistoric southern Greece, early 3rd to late 4th millennium BC, and one of the main harbour towns of the Mycenaean administrative centres of central Lakonia. It is one of very few Mycenaean sites that flourished uninterruptedly from the emergence of the Mycenaean civilisation until after the collapse of the palatial administration and into the transition to the Early Iron Age. The present study of the funerary architecture and of the pottery from the tombs suggests that the site was responsible for the introduction of the chamber tomb type on the Greek mainland in the latest phase of the Middle Bronze Age, definitely no later than the transitional Middle Bronze Age/Late Bronze Age period and not in the early phase of the Late Bronze Age/Late Helladic I as previously assumed.
