Security In East Asia:

Rethinking Security in East Asia J. J. Suh, Peter J. Katzenstein, Allen Carlson, 2004 Is East Asia heading towards war This text makes a case for a new theoretical approach called analytical eclecticism by the authors to the study of Asian security Identities and Security in East Asia Koro Bessho, 2013-09-13 East Asia has been relatively free from large scale conflict in the 1990s but the absence of security organisations or even of a sense of community within the region has raised doubts about its future security China and Japan are likely to bear much of the responsibility for maintaining stability but both countries have been reluctant to adopt a leadership role South east Asian states have been willing to take the initiative outside of their sub region but they possess neither the resources nor the authority to lead the whole of East Asia In the long term the ability to organise the region depends on greater clarity in the identity of leading states in the region and of the region as a whole This paper analyses the way in which issues of identity have affected the actions of the key players and assesses future challenges and possibilities in the search for regional security It concludes that Through the Association of South East Asian Nations ASEAN South east Asian states have developed a sense of confidence and unity However ASEAN s need to safeguard its newly acquired identity means that it has not exported the ASEAN way to the wider region of East Asia or the Asia Pacific The greater diversity that enlargement will bring and the effects of the crisis since 1997 are likely to make the Association s defensive instincts still more resistant to change In the 1990s Japan has sought to redefine its identity both in terms of its past and of its post war values such as pacifism and human rights This process has compelled Japan to face Asia more squarely and has increased the country s self assurance As a result it may become more willing to take the initiative in political and security as well as economic areas For China nationalism has become more important just as communism s position as the country s unifying ideology has eroded Beijing has tried to change the status quo in a forceful way By the close of the 1990s however China has become increasingly willing to act as a responsible world power A key test of this transformation will be Beijing s treatment of the Taiwan question The prospects for regional stability depend on Japan s ability to reform and return to growth The most pressing task is to revitalise East Asia s economies A return to prosperity would encourage China s reform and opening process lessen Japan s introspection make disagreements between the South east Asian states less acute and allow the Asia Pacific region as a whole to move beyond both the triumphalism of the East Pacific and the resentment of the West Non-Traditional Security in East Asia Ramon Pacheco Pardo, Jeffrey Reeves, 2015-06 In a changing security environment shaken by the United States pivot to Asia China s rise growing economic interdependence new institutional frameworks and long standing tensions regional security dynamics within East Asia have changed profoundly Non Traditional Security in East Asia assesses how and why these and other developments have affected East Asian security regimes in the early 21st Century This volume brings together experts in different areas of traditional and non traditional security ranging from arms and weapons proliferation to climate change and biosecurity to analyze the recent evolution current state and possible future of East Asian security dynamics which have been built on dynamics dating back to the Cold War This volume s holistic exploration of East Asian security makes it a sophisticated introduction for students researchers and policymakers who are interested in East Asian security and international relations

The Changing East Asian Security Landscape Stefan Fröhlich, Howard Loewen, 2017-11-14 The topic of this book deals with a highly relevant empirical issue East asian security and the dynamics of the respective governance structure or architecture are not only of regional but of global concern Since the pivot of the American pivot to East Asia and other external actor s responses to it the security architecture has changed in form size and function In order to analyze and explain these changes hypotheses derived from IR middle range theories i e soft and hard balancing will be applied to cases of bilateral and multilateral security governance in East Asia

Human Security Benny Teh Cheng Guan, 2012-01-02 Human security is becoming increasingly pronounced in recent years due to changes in the security landscape of world politics Yet inter state relations have continued to dominate security concerns in East Asia This has unfortunately eluded the broader understanding of issues and challenges facing the peoples of East Asia Home to nations with rapid economic growth and development East Asia is at the core of what some individuals have termed as the coming Asian Century Years of economic liberalization and exposure to globalization have permitted the region to achieve high levels of interconnectedness from within and without in unprecedented ways This has certainly reduced state control and opened up spaces for cross border human activities While economic wealth have increased substantially over the years it has also brought about bigger income disparities unsustainable safety nets and a surge in social problems from health issues to migratory concerns that threaten the safety and well being of individuals Human Security Securing East Asia s Future timely examines the fundamental issues causing human insecurities and evaluates the extent of which human security plays a role at the state and regional levels Covering the different areas of threats to humans and applying case study materials this volume provides an intellectual mix of perspectives that captures the relationship between people state and region This book will be of interest to those studying traditional and non traditional security threats Asian human development and critical policy analysis

The Protection and Promotion of Human Security in East Asia B. Howe, 2013-10-01 Although many of the states of East Asia have achieved startling success not all have benefited from the region s development Many of the most vulnerable sections of East Asian populations still face tremendous challenges in their daily lives have yet to enjoy the rewards of the Asian Century and may even be further imperiled as a result of the forces of development Brendan Howe examines the measurements of success in East Asian development and governance from a human centered perspective He assesses obstacles to the protection and promotion of human security and development through detailed case studies of the most challenged states in the region including Burma Timor Leste Japan and North and South Korea He looks at the roles that East Asian actors can play and have been playing in protecting and promoting human security at the theoretical and practical level

Changing Security

Dynamic in Eastern Asia N. S. Sisodia, G. V. C. Naidu, 2005 Proceedings of the 7th Asian Security Conference held at New Delhi in January 2005 A Rising China and Security in East Asia Rex Li, 2008-11-21 This volume provides a comprehensive and in depth analysis of the security discourse of Chinese policy elites on the major powers in East Asia in relation to China's self perception as a rising power It is the first book length study that utilizes International Relations theories systematically to analyze Chinese security perceptions of the United States Japan and Russia and the debate among Chinese international relations specialists on how China should respond to the perceived challenge from the major powers to its rise to a global status Rex Li argues that the security discourse of Chinese policy analysts is closely linked to their conception of China's identity and their desire and endeavour to construct a great power identity for China Drawing on extensive and up to date Chinese language sources the study demonstrates that Chinese elites perceive the power aspirations and security strategies of other East Asian powers primarily in terms of their implications for China's pursuit of great power status This new work will contribute significantly to the on going academic and policy debate on the nature and repercussions of China's rise This book will be essential reading for undergraduate and postgraduate students and scholars of Asian security China's foreign relations security studies and international relations United States Security Strategy for the East Asia-Pacific Region, 1995 The United States Security Strategy for the East Asia-Pacific Region, 1998
