Mountain ,2013 Set in 1901 Shadow of the Mountain chronicles just under one year in the history of a town that I have named Mission and modeled after Salisbury Vermont It focuses on two characters Paul Williams the town s best fisherman and a quiet solitary man and Mary Jenkins a young woman living by herself in the cabin that her father built managing to get by mostly through subsistence farming It follows the developing relationship between Paul and Mary that is complicated by several elements but primarily by Paul s past relationship with Mary s father Jonathon Jenkins who died pinned beneath a fallen tree while Paul watched unable to save him despite his best efforts The book also examines economic developments in the town as it transitions from a reliance on logging to a tourist economy and pays particular attention to the way those changes further complicate Paul s and Mary s relationship especially Paul s losing his job at the logging company The novel closes with the suggestion that Paul and Mary will end up together but there is enough remaining uncertainty to make the ending ambivalent rather than conclusive Shadow of the Mountain Scott R.
