Renaissance had established itself as one of the most significant literary events of the century and today much of the best American fiction is southern fiction Though the flowering of realistic and local color writing during the first two decades of the century was a sign of things to come the period between the two world wars was the crucial one for the South s literary development a literary revival in Richmond came to fruition at Vanderbilt University a group of young men produced The Fugitive a remarkable controversial magazine that published some of the century s best verse in its brief run and the publication and widespread recognition of Faulkner among others inaugurated the great flood of southern writing that was to follow in novels short stories poetry and plays With more than forty years of experience writing and reading about the subject and friendships with many of the figures discussed J A Bryant is uniquely qualified to provide the first comprehensive account of southern American literature since 1900 Bryant pays attention to both the cultural and the historical context of the works and authors discussed and presents the information in an enjoyable accessible style No lover of great American literature can afford to be without this book

The Short Stories of Frank Yerby Veronica T. Watson, 2020-04-20 Frank Yerby s first novel The Foxes of Harrow established him as a writer and launched a forty nine year career in which he published thirty three novels He also became the first African American writer to sell more than a million copies of his work and to have a book adapted into a movie by a Hollywood studio He garnered legions of loyal fans of his writing Yet few know that Yerby began his writing career with the publication of a short story in his school newspaper in 1936 the first of nine stories he would publish in the 1930s and 40s Most stories appeared in small journals and magazines and were largely forgotten once he started writing novels This groundbreaking collection gives readers access to an intriguingly diverse selection of Yerby s short fiction The stories collected here eleven of which have never previously been published paint a picture of Yerby as an intellectual who thought deeply about several philosophical questions at the center of understanding what it means to be human The stories also reveal him as an artist committed to exploring a range of human drives longings conflicts and passions from the quirky to the serious and in a variety of writing styles With an attention to historical detail voice and character that he became known for these stories give us new insights into this important African American writer who dared to believe he could earn a living as a writer

Dear Jane, Love, John John J. Minerva, 2018-01-03 The book is intended primarily to be family history for the next several generations of Minervas It also contributes to the canon of personal diaries of the Korean War It presents an aspect of war and army life that families back home would not have considered Being in the armed service for his country a young man had to rearrange his daily life in the framework of the circumstances the US Army presented He was living with other men like himself in close quarters moving frequently There was also in this case a pet puppy dog for company His room and meals of various qualities would be supplied but he had to arrange for his laundry housekeeping and mainly recreational activities of some kind for those many hours when his services were not being required by the command that otherwise would be empty and subject to massive stretches of boredom

Multicultural Curriculum Ram Mahalingam, Cameron McCarthy, 2013-10-28 Multicultural Curriculum is a collection of original essays brought together to develop new theories and meaningful praxis to build a new paradigm for teaching multiculturalism in today's classroom The impressive list of contributors shows how the current epistemological and pedagogical practices that are designed to forward multiculturalism actually serves to essentialize cultures the antithesis of what multicultural education is designed to accomplish The editors offer alternative theories classroom teaching methods and policies that are designed to promote true cultural understanding and equality

Impermanent Blackness Korey Garibaldi, 2023-02-14 Unlike many other professional sectors in the United States the publishing business had dozens of Black authors and literary professionals at its vanguard during the early to mid twentieth century As authors and sometimes executives they forged innumerable now forgotten cross racial partnerships This book examines the lives and contributions of those intellectuals artists and cultural professionals who regularly worked and fraternized across the color line in twentieth century America Garibaldi examines the character of what was known at the time as interracial literary culture commonly defined by Black and cross racial representation in America's predominantly white cultural life He argues that cross racial collaborations which challenged the status quo and attempted to bridge the gap between American and African American literature took place throughout the century in a variety of forms Support for Black authors and non stereotypical representations of persons of African descent and the leadership of Black authors and editors such as W S Braithwaite 1878 1962 reflected changes driven by deliberate conscious acts Aspiring and established black authors and corresponding white interlocutors worked closely together in developing new ideas and perspectives in the first seven decades of the twentieth century even as white supremacy and hate speech also emerged and spread widely in print and popular culture The book is organized chronologically and thematically covering interracial responses to the racial tensions of the early twentieth century the resegregation along racial lines of American literary culture in the 1920s the mainstream success of several African American authors in the 1930s and 40s the emergence of multiracial children s literature tensions between supporters of racial cosmopolitanism and those lamenting the death of Negro literature after World War II and the effect of the Civil Rights and Black Power movements on the meaning and legacy of interracial literary culture

The Conscience of the Folk Revival Scott Barretta, 2012-12-19 Israel G Izzy Young was the proprietor of the Folklore Center in Greenwich Village from the late 1950s to the early 1970s The literal center of the New York folk music scene the Center not only sold records books and guitar strings but served as a concert hall meeting spot and information kiosk for all folk scene events Among Young s first customers was Harry Belafonte among his regular visitors were Alan Lomax and Pete Seeger Shortly after his arrival in New York City in 1961 an unknown Bob Dylan banged away at songs on Young s typewriter Young would also stage Dylan s first concert as well as shows by Joni Mitchell the Fugs Emmylou Harris and Tim Buckley Doc Watson Son House and Mississippi John Hurt The Conscience of the Folk Revival The Writings of Israel Izzy Young collects Young s writing from his regular column Frets and Frails for Sing Out Magazine 1959 1969 to his commentaries on such contentious issues as copyright and commercialism Also including his personal recollections of seminal figures from Bob Dylan and Alan Lomax to Harry Smith and Woody Guthrie this collection removes the rose tinting of past memoirs by offering Young s detailed day by day accounts A key collection of primary sources on the American countercultural scene in New York City this work will interest not only folk music fans but students and scholars of American social and cultural history

Deans and Truants Gene Andrew Jarrett, 2013-03-01 For a work to be considered African American literature does it need to focus on black characters or political themes Must it represent these within a specific stylistic range Or is it enough for the author to be identified as African American In Deans and Truants Gene Andrew Jarrett traces the shifting definitions of African American literature and the authors who wrote beyond those boundaries at the cost of critical dismissal and at times obscurity From the late nineteenth century to the end of the twentieth de facto deans critics and authors as different as William Howells Alain Locke Richard Wright and Amiri Baraka prescribed the shifting parameters of realism and racial subject matter appropriate to authentic African American literature while truant authors such as Paul Laurence Dunbar George S Schuyler Frank Yerby and Toni Morrison perhaps the most celebrated African American author of the twentieth century wrote literature anomalous to those standards Jarrett explores the issues at stake when Howells the Dean of American Letters argues in 1896 that only Dunbar s entirely black verse written in dialect would succeed Three decades later Locke the cultural arbiter of the Harlem Renaissance stands in contrast to Schuyler a journalist and novelist who questions the existence of a peculiarly black or New Negro art Next Wright s 1937 blueprint for African American writing sets the terms of the Chicago Renaissance but Yerby s version of historical romance approaches race and realism in alternative literary ways Finally Deans and Truants measures the gravitational pull of the late 1960s Black Aesthetic in Baraka s editorial silence on Toni Morrison s first and only short story Recitatif Drawing from a wealth of biographical historical and literary sources Deans and Truants describes the changing notions of race politics and gender that framed and were framed by the authors and critics of African American culture for more than a century
